The following Rules for entering the Harbour of Port Blair are published for general information :—

The Penal Settlement of Port Blair, on the East side, and about four leagues from the South end of the South Great Andaman, is in Latitude 11° 43' North, and Longitude 92° 47' East from Greenwich; it has a spacious and safe harbour extending a considerable distance inland; the entrance is fronted by Ross Island, which extends about one mile in length in a N. N. E. and S. S. W. direction, its greatest breadth being about 1,000 yards, and its height above the level of the sea about 250 feet. Ross Island is easily distinguished from the surrounding land by its cleared appearance and the Houses on its summit, which, when the Sun shines on them, are visible for a distance of eleven to twelve miles. This Island is the principal depôt of the Settlement and the residence of the Superintendent.

The Northern entrance to the harbour is between the North point of Ross Island and a point on the main land called "North Point," a distance of 1½ miles across, having deep water from within 100 yards of the shore on either side.

Vessels entering the North Channel should make the North end of Ross Island, keeping at a convenient distance from it, in not less than 10 fathoms, and stand to the Westward until the Channel between Ross Island and the main land is well open in about 25 fathoms, and the landing place and store-houses on the West side of Ross Island about S. E., Magnetic, then stand for the anchorage about S. S. E., and anchor off the town in from 9 to 15 fathoms, sandy bottom, about 500 yards from the beach, with the Superintendent's house on the hill bearing from E. by N. to E. N. E. Magnetic, and Atalanta point about West.

The line of shoal water off the N. and N. W. end of Ross Island is marked by small red buoys inside of which it would not be prudent to borrow.

The South Channel, formed between the South end of Ross Island and the Main, is narrow, and should only be attempted by Steamers or Sailing Vessels with a steady fair wind.

"Sesostris Reef," a dangerous patch, having only 1½ fathoms in some parts, rocky, uneven ground, bears S½ E. Magnetic, about three-fourths of a mile from the South end of Ross Island; it is about 600 to 800 yards in extent, and is marked by a red buoy which should be given a good berth, as the ground about is rocky and uneven.

Vessels entering this Channel from the Southward with a fair wind should, when about two miles to the Southward of Ross Island, at a convenient distance from the main land, keep the highest point of Ross Island about N. by E Magnetic, and steer for it, passing well to the Westward of the Reef buoy; and with the buoy bearing S. 25 E. Magnetic, and the South end of Ross Island N. by E. about half a mile distance, the Channel between Ross Island and the Main will be well open when a N. N. W. course will lead up the Channel to the anchorage, keeping as near Mid Channel as possible.

During the strength of the S. W. Monsoon the wind generally hangs well to the Southward and often blows fresh and steadily along shore for some days with a current to the North-Eastward. Vessels coming from the Northward should therefore make the land to the Southward of Ross Island, if possible, and run up.

Wood and fresh water are easily obtained; and for Vessels having lost spars, or received other serious damage in the Bay or in the vicinity of the Andamans, Port Blair affords a very desirable place of shelter where their defects may be made good.

Government of India.

Abstract of the Proceedings of the Council of the Governor-General of India assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the provisions of the Act of Parliament 24 and 25 Vic., C. 67.

THE Council met at Government House on Wednesday, the 12th November 1862.

The Hon'ble Mr ROBERTS took the Oath of Allegiance and the Oath that he would faithfully discharge the duties of his office.

BILL TO AMEND THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE.

The Hon'ble MR. HARINGTON moved for leave to bring in a Bill to amend the Code of Civil Procedure. He said that Section XXIII of Act XXIII. of 1861 provided for appeals to the Sudder Court being heard by Courts consisting of at least two Judges, and Section 386 of the Code of Civil Procedure declared that the term Sudder Court should, when that Code was extended to any Non-Regulation Provinces, include the highest Civil Courts of Appeal. But no provision was made for the case of such Courts consisting (as was almost invariably the case) of a single Judge, and a doubt had therefore arisen as to the power of such Courts to exercise the jurisdiction of the Sudder Court when that jurisdiction could only be exercised by a bench consisting of two or more Judges. The present Bill would remove that doubt. A similar provision had already been made in respect of the Code of Criminal Procedure. A Section had been added to the Bill to prevent the legality of decisions or orders already passed by the Judges of the highest Civil Courts of Appeal in the Non-Regulation Provinces being questioned on the ground that they had been passed by single Judges.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

STRAITS' SETTLEMENT POLICE BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. HARINGTON moved for leave to bring in a Bill to amend the law for regulating the Police in the several Stations of the Settlement of Prince of Wales' Island, Singapore, and Malacca. He said that this Bill had been prepared in consequence of a representation from the Governor of the Straits Settlement of the inconvenience there experienced from no law existing to authorize the enlistment of the Police Force for a stated period, and from the omission of the Straits Settlement from certain provisions of the Police Act (XLVIII. of 1860) which gave power over Coffee Houses, Boarding Houses, and the like. Those Sections, as originally drawn, had included the Straits Settlement, and he (Mr. Harington) had been unable to discover why that Settlement had subsequently been omitted. The Governor appeared to have stated good and sufficient reasons for the extension of those provisions to the Stations under his Government. With regard to the other point no such law as that asked for existed in the Presidency Towns, or, so far as he (Mr. Harington) was aware, in the United Kingdom. But the Governor had pointed out the peculiarities of the circumstances to be dealt with. In the Presidency Towns the rate of pay was sufficient to induce men enlisting in the Police to remain, and, when any retired, there was no difficulty in filling their places. But in the Straits Settlement the Commissioners of Police complained of the constant changes that were taking place, and which rendered nugatory their efforts to keep the Police Force in an efficient state. The Governor noticed that in the Colony of Hong Kong it had been necessary to adopt a law requiring the Officers of Police to enlist for five years, and prohibiting retirement at an earlier period except in certain circumstances. The Governor considered that great advantage would result from a similar enactment in the Straits Settlement, and the first two Sections of the present Bill had been framed with a view to a modification of the law in the direction recommended by the Governor.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

SUBORDINATE MEDICAL OFFICERS' WIDOWS' AND ORPHANS' BILL.

The Hon'ble the LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR said that, as this Bill had not been circulated in its amended form, he would postpone his motion for its passing till the next Meeting.

The Council adjourned.

MARINE DEPARTMENT.

No. 528.

Fort William, the 17th October 1862.

The following Rules for entering the Harbour of Port Blair are published for general information:—

The Penal Settlement of Port Blair, on the East side, and about four leagues from the South end of the South Great Andaman, is in Latitude 11° 43' North, and Longitude 92° 47' East from Greenwich; it has a spacious and safe harbour extending a considerable distance inland; the entrance is fronted by Ross Island, which extends about one mile in length in a N. N. E. and S. S. W. direction, its greatest breadth being about 1,000 yards, and its height above the level of the sea about 250 feet. Ross Island is easily distinguished from the surrounding land by its cleared appearance and the Houses on its summit, which, when the Sun shines on them, are visible for a distance of eleven to twelve miles. This Island is the principal depôt of the Settlement and the residence of the Superintendent.

The Northern entrance to the harbour is between the North point of Ross Island and a point on the main land called "North Point," a distance of 1½ miles across, having deep water from within 100 yards of the shore on either side.

Vessels entering the North Channel should make the North end of Ross Island, keeping at a convenient distance from it, in not less than 10 fathoms, and stand to the Westward until the Channel between Ross Island and the main land is well open in about 25 fathoms, and the landing place and store-houses on the West side of Ross Island about S. E., Magnetic, then stand for the anchorage about S. S. E., and anchor off the town in from 9 to 15 fathoms, sandy bottom, about 500 yards from the beach, with the Superintendent's house on the hill bearing from E. by N. to E. N. E. Magnetic, and Atalanta point about West.

The line of shoal water off the N. and N. W. end of Ross Island is marked by small red buoys inside of which it would not be prudent to borrow.

The South Channel, formed between the South end of Ross Island and the Main, is narrow, and should only be attempted by Steamers or Sailing Vessels with a steady fair wind.

"Sesostris Reef," a dangerous patch, having only 1½ fathoms in some parts, rocky, uneven ground, bears S½ E. Magnetic, about three-fourths of a mile from the South end of Ross Island; it is about 600 to 800 yards in extent, and is marked by a red buoy which should be given a good berth, as the ground about is rocky and uneven.

Vessels entering this Channel from the Southward with a fair wind should, when about two miles to the Southward of Ross Island, at a convenient distance from the main land, keep the highest point of Ross Island about N. by E. Magnetic, and steer for it, passing well to the Westward of the Reef buoy; and with the buoy bearing S. 25 E. Magnetic, and the South end of Ross Island N. by E. about half a mile distance, the Channel between Ross Island and the Main will be well open when a N. N. W. course will lead up the Channel to the anchorage, keeping as near Mid Channel as possible.

During the strength of the S. W. Monsoon the wind generally hangs well to the Southward and often blows fresh and steadily along shore for some days with a current to the North-Eastward. Vessels coming from the Northward should therefore make the land to the Southward of Ross Island, if possible, and run up.

Wood and fresh water are easily obtained; and for Vessels having lost spars, or received other serious damage in the Bay or in the vicinity of the Andamans, Port Blair affords a very desirable place of shelter where their defects may be made good.

12. With a view to prevent fictitious biddings designed to obstruct the Sale, it is hereby notified that the Officer of Government superintending the Sale shall be competent at any time during the Sale to withdraw any unsold lot, and immediately to put it up again for sale at a maximum upset price, diminishing the same gradually until a bid is obtained, and the first bonâ fide bidder for a lot, after it has been offered for sale in the mode here described, shall be held and declared to be the purchaser of the said lot, and the Officer of Government superintending the Sale shall also be competent to dispose in the same manner of as many of the subsequent lots as he may think proper; provided always, that no lot shall be sold below the minimum price of 400 Rupees specified in the second of these Conditions.

13. The purchaser of any lot shall have the option of naming and purchasing in immediate succession at the same price and under the same conditions any number of lots of the same Agency Opium not exceeding altogether twenty-five lots; provided always, that there remain a sufficient number of lots of the Opium to complete the said twenty-five.

14. In the event of any dispute or difference touching or concerning any matter or question arising out of the sale of the Opium included in this Notification, or adjustment of the account thereof, the same shall and may be tried and decided in the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

15. The following papers, together with samples of the Opium for sale, will be exhibited for inspection on the day of Sale, or may be seen previously to that date by application at the Office of the Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue:—

No. 1.—Certificate of the Opium advertized for sale.

No. 2.—Report of the examination of such Opium.

16. The Public are hereby informed that, in providing the investment of the Behar and Benares Opium for the year 1861-62, the same precautions have been taken as those which have been observed during past years, to have the drug procured and set down in a pure state, to have only the prescribed quantity of leaves used in forming the cakes, and to have the due proportion of Opium put into each cake. An account of the weight of the drug when packed at Behar and Benares, and a Statement of the average weight of the chests indiscriminately taken for the purpose of comparison from the despatches on arrival at Calcutta, may be seen, on application, at the Office of the Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue, four chests of Behar and Benares Opium, viz., two of the season's provision under sale, and two of the provision's season will be also shown to the purchasers in the Sale Rooms on the day of Sale, to enable them to judge of the state of preservation of the drug in the chests offered for sale.

17. Any further information respecting weight or quality of the Opium advertized for sale that may be desired by parties connected with the trade will, as heretofore, be furnished to them on application at the Office of the Board of Revenue, but in accordance with established usage, under no circumstances will the Board entertain or recognize any claim to compensation for loss from any alleged deficiency of weight, abstraction of Opium, or adulteration of the drug, which may be preferred on reference to chests after the sale and delivery of the Opium for shipment.

18. It is hereby further notified, that, under the 6th Article of the Convention between Great Britain and France, dated the 7th March 1815, quoted below, the Agents in India of the French Government, or persons duly appointed by them, are entitled to demand, that out of the quantities of Behar and Benares Opium declared as above for sale at the twelve sales of the year 1863, there shall be delivered to them, at the average of the particular Sale or Sales to which the Opium so applied for may belong, a quantity not exceeding in the aggregate 300 chests, and the Agents of the French Government must make requisitions specifying the quantity of Opium required by them at any particular sale within thirty days from the advertizement of such intended sale; provided, however, that the Agents of the French Government may make such requisition for the whole quantity within thirty days from the publication of this Notification. If the Agents of the French Government shall not make the requisitions for Opium within the time abovementioned, the entire quantity of about 39,617 Chests of Behar and Benares as above estimated will be brought to sale in the usual manner; and if they shall make application for a quantity of Opium to be delivered to them out of the quantity advertised for sale at each or any of the twelve Sales abovementioned, but shall not pay for it within the prescribed period of payment, the Government of Bengal reserves to itself the right of disposing of the Opium which the French Authorities may so fail to pay for, either by increasing the quantity reserved at the Sale next ensuing the date of payment, or by selling it at a Sale to be held expressly for the purpose.

Provided that 10 per Cent. ad valorem shall be charged on all Spirits used exclusively in arts and manufactures, or in chemistry, subject to such rules as the local Government shall from time to time prescribe, for ascertaining that such Spirits are unfit for use as a beverage and incapable of being converted to that purpose. And the Officer in charge of the Custom House, subject to the general instructions of the Local Government, shall decide what Spirits fall within this Proviso, and his decision thereon shall be final in law.

III. The following additional Article shall be read as part of Schedule A of the said Act:—

Additional Article of Schedule A.

Firewood ... Free.

IV. This Act shall be read and taken as part of the said Act XI of 1862.

Act to be read as part of Act XI of 1862.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

THIS Bill proposes three amendments in Schedule A of Act XI of 1862 (to amend the Duties of Customs on Goods imported and exported by Sea.)

The first amendment proposed is in Article 18 of the Schedule relating to Machinery.

Previously to the passing of Act VII of 1859, Machinery of all kinds imported by Sea into the Presidencies of Bengal and Madras was liable to a duty of 3½ per cent when imported on British Bottoms, and of 7 per cent. when imported on Foreign Bottoms. The same duties were chargeable at Bombay until the enactment of Act I of 1852. Under the two Acts just mentioned Machinery imported for the improvement of the communications and the development of the resources of the country was allowed to be admitted free of duty, and by Act X of 1860 the exemption was extended to Machinery of all kinds. The same general exemption is contained in Act XI of 1862, which now regulates the rates of Custom duties on Goods imported or exported by Sea throughout the British Territories in India.

It is considered that the later enactments have carried the exemption from duty farther than was requisite or proper, and that they involve an unnecessary sacrifice of Customs Revenue. Under Article 18, as it now stands, it must be obvious that many articles included under the head of Machinery may be admitted free of duty, for the exemption of which no special or adequate ground exists. It is proposed therefore to revert to the rule in force previously to the passing of Act X of 1860, and to confine the exemption from duty to Machinery used exclusively for purposes of agriculture, navigation, mining, or manufacture, or for Railway purposes, and materials forming necessary component parts of such Machinery. The latter part of the Article, amended as proposed, appears a proper concession in favor of component parts of Machinery used exclusively for the purposes mentioned in the former part of the Article.

A slight alteration is also proposed in the Note to Article 18, in order to give the Local Governments, acting under the general instructions of the Government of India, authority to control the Officers of their respective Custom-houses in construing the Article in question. A similar provision is contained in the new Customs Bill as regards the administration of the Department generally. There seems no doubt that the provision will conduce to the convenience of the public, while it will leave full power in the hands of the Supreme Government to issue such instructions as it may consider necessary for the protection of the Customs Revenue and for maintaining uniformity of practice in the several Presidencies.

The next alteration proposed is in Article 23 of the Schedule, which relates to the duty on Spirits. Under that Article methylated Spirits, or Spirits used exclusively in arts or manufactures, or in chemistry, are liable, on importation by Sea, to the same duty as Spirits intended for human consumption as a beverage. It is thought that, with a view to the promotion of arts and manufactures, a distinction should be made between Spirits exclusively used for those purposes thereof, and Spirits used for other purposes. Spirits of Wine, under certain restrictions, are allowed to be used duty free in the United Kingdom, and when the Bill to amend the Law relating to the Abkaree Revenue of Bengal was before the late Legislative Council, a Section was proposed, the object of which was to place the law in India on the same footing in this respect as the law at home, but the proposition was opposed on two grounds. The first ground was that the state of the Finances at the time would not admit of our giving up any source of Revenue, and that while we were imposing new taxes which would bear heavily on the poorer and lower classes, we ought not to remit any existing tax however wise it might be on principle to do so. The second ground was that no proper means existed in this country to prevent frauds on the Revenue.

With regard to the first of these grounds the improvement which has taken place in the state of the Finances since this ground of objection was urged, has enabled the Government to remove the taxes alluded to as those which would affect the poorer and lower classes, and Financial considerations no longer appear to offer any obstacle to granting some remission of duty, which has again been asked for, in favor of Spirits used in manufactures and arts, or in chemistry. The Government of Bengal supports the recommendation of the Board of Revenue at Calcutta for a reduction of the present duty on methylated Spirits, and these Authorities seem to anticipate no difficulty in adopting measures which will prevent any abuses from taking place consequent on an alteration of the law. It is not however proposed to admit methylated Spirits free of duty. What is proposed is, that such Spirits shall be charged with duty at the rate of 10 per cent. ad valorem. The importation will also be subject to such rules as the Government shall from time to time prescribe for ascertaining that the Spirits are unfit for use as a beverage, and incapable of being converted to that purpose. Spirits distilled in the country and which may be intended to be used in arts or manufactures, or in chemistry, will be dealt with separately.

The third and last alteration proposed in the Schedule is the addition of an Article to exempt firewood, when imported by Sea, from the payment of duty, thereby placing firewood on the same footing as coke and coal which are admitted free of duty. Owing to the large consumption on the Railways and other causes, firewood has risen greatly in price, and in some parts of the country it is becoming very scarce. It is desirable to encourage its importation as much as possible, but the present high duty is found to operate as a serious impediment. The amount of Customs Revenue realized on this article is very trifling, and on Financial grounds there is no object in retaining the duty.

Commencement of Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THIS Bill, while maintaining all the existing classes of Courts in British Burmah, defines the jurisdiction to be exercised by each class of Courts, and lays down rules for the admission of Regular as well as Second and Special Appeals, which, it is considered, will greatly improve the administration of Civil Justice in that branch of the Department.

Special Appeals will be admissible under the Bill on the same grounds on which such Appeals may be admitted in the Regulation Provinces, that is, on the ground of the decision of the Court below being contrary to some law or usage having the force of law, or of a substantial error or defect in law, or in the procedure or investigation of the case which may have produced error or defect in the decision of the case upon the merits. Special Appeals will be cognizable by the Chief Commissioner alone in his capacity of Judicial Commissioner, or principal Civil Judge of the Province. In order to keep the law settled it is obviously desirable that there should be only one tribunal for the determination of the questions which may arise in Special Appeal. But it is proposed that the Divisional Commissioners shall be allowed, on certain conditions, to admit a Second Appeal from the decisions passed in Regular Appeal by the Officers subordinate to them. No such Appeal is allowed in the Regulation Provinces, but looking to the comparatively short period that British Burmah has been subject to our rule, and to other circumstances, it is thought desirable that, for a time at least, the Appellate Authorities immediately over the District Officers should possess larger powers of interference with the decisions of their subordinates than are exercised by the corresponding Authorities in our older Provinces.

The Bill proposes to extend the Code of Civil Procedure, with some modifications, to British Burmah generally. The Code is already in force, under an order of the Supreme Government, in the entire Territory, with exception to the Province of Pegu, in which the proceedings of the Civil Courts are regulated by a Code prepared by Major Sparks, the Commissioner of Pegu, and which bears that Officer's name. Major Sparks' Code does not differ very materially from the Code of Civil Procedure, but it is considered that there should be a uniform Code for the whole Province. The modifications proposed to be made in the Code in its application to British Burmah do not affect the general principles on which the Code is based. They relate chiefly to the powers to be exercised, in certain matters, by the controlling Authorities, and are considered desirable to adapt the Code to the peculiarities of the Province.

It was thought that the Governor-General in Council, acting under the authority conveyed in one of the concluding Sections of the Code, might extend the Code, by an order in Council, to the Province of Pegu, but the learned Advocate-General has given it as his opinion that as, subsequently to the passing of the Code, the Supreme Government sanctioned Major Sparks' Code being introduced into the Province of Pegu, and the order conveying such sanction has since received the force of law by a Section in the Indian Councils Act of last year, an Act of the Legislature is necessary to repeal Major Sparks' Code and to authorize the substitution for it, within the Province of Pegu, of the Code of Civil Procedure contained in Act VIII of 1859.

The Bill further proposes to extend to the Province of Pegu, in supersession of the Law of Limitation contained in Major Sparks' Code, the general Law of Limitation contained in Act XIV of 1859, which is already in force in the remaining portion of the Territory. The opinion given by the Advocate General that a new law is necessary to introduce the Code of Civil Procedure into the Province of Pegu, in the place of Major Sparks' Code, applies equally to the general Law of Limitation. Major Sparks has proposed two slight alterations in the general Law of Limitation, should it be determined to extend that law to British Burmah, and the Chief Commissioner agrees with him, and thinks that, so far as British Burmah is concerned, the two alterations proposed by Major Sparks should be made general. One of these alterations relates to claims for the partition of joint undivided Estates, and the other to Mortgages. The first alteration appears to me to be unnecessary, and to have been proposed under a mistaken view of the law. The other proposed alteration ought not, in my opinion, to be adopted. The other Acts which the Bill proposes to extend to British Burmah have been, for some time, in force in other parts of India, and have been found to work well, and as cases such as those to which the provisions of these Acts are applicable, must frequently occur in British Burmah, where no law now exists for their disposal, the extension of the Acts to the Province seems desirable.

The 5th November 1862.

M. WYLIE,
Depy. Secy. to the Govt. of India,
Home Department.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 19th November 1862, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their Report thereon in six weeks :—

No. 55 OF 1862.

A Bill to regulate the admission of Appeals to Her Majesty in Council from certain Judgments and Orders in Provinces not subject to the General Regulations.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to regulate the admission of Appeals to Her Majesty in Council from certain judgments and orders in Provinces not subject to the General Regulations; It is enacted as follows :—

Admission of Appeal.

I. If a party in a suit is desirous of preferring an Appeal to Her Majesty in Council from any final judgment, decree, or order made on Appeal or revision by the Court of highest Civil jurisdiction in any Province in British India not subject to the General Regulations, or from any such final judgment, decree, or order made in the exercise of original jurisdiction by the said Court, in any case in which the sum or matter at issue is above the amount or value of 10,000 Rupees, or in which such judgment, decree, or order shall involve, directly or indirectly, any claim, demand, or question to or respecting property amounting to or of the value of 10,000 Rupees, or from any other final judgment, decree, or order made either on appeal or otherwise as aforesaid, when the said Court shall declare that the case is a fit one for appeal to Her Majesty in Council, such Court shall admit such Appeal subject to such rules and orders as shall be in force, or shall from time to time be made in that behalf by Her Majesty in Council in respect of such Appeals from Her Majesty's High Courts of Judicature in British India.

Appeal from interlocutory judgments.

II. It shall further be lawful for such Court at at its discretion, upon the petition of any party who considers himself aggrieved by any preliminary or interlocutory judgment, decree, order or sentence of such Court in any such proceeding as aforesaid (not being of Criminal jurisdiction), to grant permission to such party to appeal against the same to Her Majesty in Council subject to such rules, regulations, and limitations as shall be in force, or as shall from time to time be declared by Her Majesty respecting Appeals from final judgments, decrees, orders, and sentences of Her Majesty's said High Courts of Judicature.

Notice of Appeal to the other party.

III. On the admission or permission of the Appeal by the Court as hereinbefore provided, the Court shall forthwith cause notice to be given to the other party that the Appellant has preferred an Appeal to Her Majesty in Council.

Court may either enforce judgment taking security, or suspend execution pending Appeal.

IV. The Court, if applied to, may either order the judgment or determination appealed against to be enforced, taking sufficient security for the performance of such order or decree as Her Majesty in Council may make on the Appeal; or it may direct, on similar security being found, that no order for enforcing the judgment or determination shall be issued pending the Appeal, and that, if any such order has been issued, it shall, so far as it has not been executed, be suspended.

Appellant to find security for costs of Appeal.

V. In either of the cases mentioned in the last preceding Section the Court shall require the Appellant to find security for the payment of such costs as it may think likely to be incurred by the Appeal.

Time for presentation of Petition of Appeal.

VI. If a party who is desirous of preferring an Appeal to Her Majesty in Council in any of the cases mentioned in Section I or Section II of this Act shall require the assistance of the said Court for obtaining security from the other party for staying execution of the judgment, decree, order, or sentence that has been passed, or for any other purpose, he shall present his Petition to the said Court within six calendar months from the date of the judgment or determination appealed against.

If security be found inadequate, Court may require it to be increased.

VII. If at any time pending an Appeal under this Act the security taken from either party appears inadequate, whether from the increase or improvement of the property forming the subject of appeal, or from the insufficiency of the securities, the Court before which the Appeal is pending may, on the application of the other party, require further security.

If additional security be not furnished.

VIII. In default of such further security being found, if the original security was furnished by the Appellant, the Court may issue an order for enforcing the judgment or determination appealed against as if no such original security had been given; and if the original security was furnished by the respondent, the Court, so far as may be practicable, shall compel him to deliver up the property forming the subject of appeal, which shall be disposed of in conformity with such of the rules in force as may be applicable to the particular case.

Proceedings in the suit appealed to be forwarded to Her Majesty in Council.

IX. Appeal from order of enforcement.

XVI. An Appeal shall lie from any decree or order made by such last mentioned Court relating to the enforcement or execution of any such decree or order made in appeal as aforesaid in the same manner and subject to the same laws, rules, and regulations as an Appeal from an order or decree made upon a petition for the enforcement of execution of the decree or order first appealed from, would have been.

Court of highest Civil jurisdiction may execute decrees by order of Her Majesty in Council.

XVII. Nothing herein contained shall be construed so as to prevent the said Court of highest Civil jurisdiction from enforcing or obtaining execution of a decree or order made or passed by Her Majesty in Council, if Her Majesty in Council shall think fit to decree or order the said Court to enforce or execute the same.

Saving of Her Majesty's power as to receiving or rejecting Appeals.

XVIII. Nothing in this Act contained shall be understood to bar the full and unqualified exercise of Her Majesty's pleasure upon all Appeals to Her, either in rejecting any she may consider inadmissible, or in receiving any she may judge admissible.

Interpretation of "British India."

XIX. The words "British India" denote the Territories which are or may become vested in Her Majesty by the said Statute 21 and 22 Vic. c. 106, entitled "An Act for the better Government of India."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to extend to the Non-Regulation Provinces the Rules relating to the admission of Appeals to Her Majesty in Council, and to the execution of the decrees passed on such Appeals which are now in force in the Regulation Provinces of the three Presidencies.

The right of Her Majesty to admit Appeals from decisions passed by the Courts in the Non-Regulation Provinces, equally with Appeals from the decisions passed by the Courts in the Regulation Provinces, is not questioned. But there is no law empowering the Courts in the Non-Regulation Provinces to allow or even to receive Appeals from their decisions to the Queen in Council, or, of their own authority, to transmit the records of the cases in which the Appeal is made, or a translation of the papers, to England. The consequence is that parties wishing to appeal to the Queen in Council from decisions passed by the Courts in the Non-Regulation Provinces, are compelled to prefer their Appeals direct to the Privy Council, and an order has to be sent from home for the translation of the papers and their transmission to England. This necessarily adds to the expense of the Appeal, and also causes delay in the hearing and decision of the Appeal. The present Bill is introduced in consequence of the receipt of a communication from the Registrar of the Privy Council, intimating that, in the opinion of the Lords of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, measures should be taken to place the prosecution of Appeals from the highest Civil tribunals in the Non-Regulation Provinces on the same footing as Appeals to Her Majesty in Council from the Courts in the Presidencies of Bengal, Madras, and Bombay.

It is proposed shortly to revise the existing rules relating to Appeals to Her Majesty in Council from the Courts in this country, and to frame a new Code of Rules to regulate such Appeals; but some time must necessarily elapse before the new Code is ready for promulgation.

No. 528.

Port William, the 17th October 1862.

The following Rules for entering the Harbour of Port Blair are published for general information :—

The Penal Settlement of Port Blair, on the East side, and about four leagues from the South end of the South Great Andaman, is in Latitude 11° 43' North, and Longitude 92° 47' East from Greenwich; it has a spacious and safe harbour extending a considerable distance inland; the entrance is fronted by Ross Island, which extends about one mile in length in a N. N. E. and S. S. W. direction, its greatest breadth being about 1,000 yards, and its height above the level of the sea about 250 feet. Ross Island is easily distinguished from the surrounding land by its cleared appearance and the Houses on its summit, which, when the Sun shines on them, are visible for a distance of eleven to twelve miles. This Island is the principal depôt of the Settlement and the residence of the Superintendent.

The Northern entrance to the harbour is between the North point of Ross Island and a point on the main land called "North Point," a distance of 1½ miles across, having deep water from within 100 yards of the shore on either side.

Vessels entering the North Channel, should make the North end of Ross Island, keeping at a convenient distance from it, in not less than 10 fathoms, and stand to the Westward until the Channel between Ross Island and the main land is well open in about 25 fathoms, and the landing place and store-houses on the West side of Ross Island about S. E., Magnetic, then stand for the anchorage about S. S. E., and anchor off the town in from 9 to 15 fathoms, sandy bottom, about 500 yards from the beach, with the Superintendent's house on the hill bearing from E. by N. to E. N. E. Magnetic, and Atalanta point about West.

The line of shoal water off the N. and N. W. end of Ross Island is marked by small red buoys inside of which it would not be prudent to borrow.

The South Channel, formed between the South end of Ross Island and the Main, is narrow, and should only be attempted by Steamers or Sailing Vessels with a steady fair wind.

"Sesostris Reef," a dangerous patch, having only 1½ fathoms in some parts, rocky, uneven ground, bears S½ E. Magnetic, about three-fourths of a mile from the South end of Ross Island; it is about 600 to 800 yards in extent, and is marked by a red buoy which should be given a good berth, as the ground about is rocky and uneven.

Vessels entering this Channel from the Southward with a fair wind should, when about two miles to the Southward of Ross Island, at a convenient distance from the main land, keep the highest point of Ross Island about N. by E. Magnetic, and steer for it, passing well to the Westward of the Reef-buoy; and with the buoy bearing S. 25 E. Magnetic, and the South end of Ross Island N. by E. about half a mile distance, the Channel between Ross Island and the Main will be well open when a N. N. W. course will lead up the Channel to the anchorage, keeping as near Mid Channel as possible.

During the strength of the S. W. Monsoon the wind generally hangs well to the Southward and often blows fresh and steadily along shore for some days with a current to the North-Eastward. Vessels coming from the Northward should therefore make the land to the Southward of Ross Island, if possible, and run up.

Wood and fresh water are easily obtained; and for Vessels having lost spars, or received other serious damage in the Bay or in the vicinity of the Andamans, Port Blair affords a very desirable place of shelter where their defects may be made good.

ORDERS by the LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR, N. W. Provinces.

POLICE DEPARTMENT.—No. 878A.—Nynee Tal, the 5th November 1862.—Mr. H. B. Goad, Assistant Inspector-General of Police in the Benares Division, officiated as District Superintendent of Police at Jounpoor from the 26th of July, the date of Lieutenant Garton's departure, until the 15th of September last, when he was relieved by Lieute. Clarke.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.—No. 1216A.—Nynee Tal, the 7th November 1862.—The following Rule of the Rules issued by the Government of Bengal for the sale of unassessed waste lands, and the redemption of the revenue of such lands already granted for a term of years, with the explanation given in answer by that Government to a question put to it, is adopted for the North-Western Provinces, and is published for general information as shewing the terms on which redemption of russudee grant assessment may be effected:—

RULE 19.—All grants of waste land already made for a term of years, under previously existing Rules, in which no right of occupancy or proprietorship exists, except that of the grantee or that derived from him, will be treated for the purposes of this Rule as if the land were permanently settled; and the grantees or their representatives may redeem the future land revenue of such grants or of any compact part of them in perpetuity for an amount equal to the present value of all future stipulated annual payments calculated at 5 per cent. interest, provided the said amount is not less than two Rupees eight annas an acre on the whole area of which the revenue is redeemed.

Extract paragraph 3, Questions and Answers from the Hon'ble A. Eden, Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to C. B. Stewart, Esquire, No. 2120, dated the 19th September 1862.

Questions.

3. What interpretation does the 19th Rule bear as regards holders of old grants in Bengal?

I apprehend that the redemption of the Land Revenue of such old grants will be regulated on the principle upon which deferred annuities are calculated.

Will the amount of purchase money or price of redemption be ascertained on the calculation of the interest that would accrue from the amount paid up equalling the rate of assessment during a period of twenty years? or how?

Answers.

3. The redemption of future payments of revenue will be calculated precisely as an Actuary would calculate the present value of a deferred annuity with interest at 5 per cent.

Thus, if a beegah of land is held rent-free for twenty years, at four annas a year for the next twenty years, at 8 annas a year for the next twenty years, and at 12 annas a year thereafter in perpetuity, the amount for which all future payments may be redeemed at once would be calculated thus:—

Present value at 5 per cent. of a deferred annuity of 4 annas from the 21st to the 10th year ...	0	0	0
Ditto ditto of 8 annas from the 41st to the 60th year ...	0	0	0
Ditto ditto of 12 annas from the 61st year for ever ...	0	0	0

The amount will be found to be very small.

No. 1219A.—The 8th of November 1862.—Whereas it appears to the Hon'ble the Lieutenant-Governor that land is required to be taken up, in the District of Bijnore, at the public expense, for a public purpose, viz., for Distillerie, it is hereby notified that land in the Villages, and to the extent shewn in the margin, is required for the purpose specified above.

LEGISLATIVE.

THE following Act of the Governor-General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor-General on the 24th November 1862, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT No. XXI OF 1862.

An Act to provide for the dissolution of the Subordinate Medical Officers' Widows' and Orphans' Fund, and the distribution of the funds belonging thereto.

Preamble.

WHEREAS by certain Regulations prepared and adopted by certain members of the Subordinate Medical Department, a Society was established at Ferozepore, in 1852, for raising a Fund called "The Subordinate Medical Officers' Widows' and Orphans' Fund." the interest, dividends, and proceeds of which Fund were directed to be applied in making provision, at certain specified rates, for the widows and children of the subscribers; and it was directed that such provision should be made solely out of the interest and dividends of the said Fund; and whereas a petition has been presented to His Excellency the Governor-General in Council by certain subscribers and members of the said Society, stating that no subscriptions have been contributed to the said Fund since the year 1857, and that, in consequence thereof and of the deaths of several of the subscribers to the said Fund, no steps have been or can be taken to make the provision intended by the Regulations of the said Fund, and that no pensions whatever have, since the year 1857, been paid to any of the persons entitled to the benefits of the said Fund, and that, therefore, the expectations of the Founders of the Fund have been disappointed and the objects for which such Fund was established have failed; and praying that an Act may be passed to wind-up the affairs of the said Fund; and whereas no provision is made in the Regulations of such Fund for the dissolution thereof or the distribution of the funds belonging thereto, and it is expedient to make provision for the same by law; It is enacted as follows :—

On petition, the High Court may order the winding-up of the Fund.

I. On the petition to the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal of a majority of the subscribers of the said Subordinate Medical Officers' Widows' and Orphans' Fund, or of any ten subscribers of the Society and pensionaries on the said Fund, praying for the dissolution of the said Society, and the winding-up of the affairs of the said Fund, it shall be lawful for the said Court to make order for the same on the said petition, as fully as if the Regulations of the said Fund provided for the winding-up of the said Fund; and it shall be lawful for the said Court to make order for ascertaining and declaring the rights which attach on the said Fund, and for taking the accounts of the said Fund, and for the apportionment, division, and distribution of the said Fund, and for the ascertainment of the nature and numbers of the different claims on the said Fund, and of the persons having or entitled to make the said claims; and for the payment of the proper costs of the subscribers of the said Society, and of all parties conducing or otherwise concerned in the matter of the said petition and subsequent proceedings for winding-up the said Fund.

Accountant or Actuary may be employed

II. It shall be lawful for the said Court, in such way as they may think fit, to obtain the assistance of an Accountant or Actuary the better to enable the Court to determine any matter relating to the division and distribution of the Fund, and to act upon the certificate of such person.

Pensions may be commuted

III. In the cases of pensioners, or persons entitled to become pensioners, who shall consent to commute their pensions, it shall be lawful for the said Court to order that the amounts to be paid in commutation shall be settled, invested, or paid in such manner as will give the several persons therein interested the full benefit thereof.

IV. In the cases of pensioners or persons entitled to become pensioners, who shall refuse to commute their pensions, it shall be lawful for the said Court to order a sufficient sum to be set apart out of the said Fund to provide for the due payment of such pensions. The said Court may also sanction and give effect to any arrangement which it may deem just and sufficient for the future payment of any commuted sum or uncommuted pensions by any Life Insurance Company willing to undertake the payment of such pensions.

Money may be invested or other arrangement made to pay pensions.

V. Guardians of minors pensioners, and of minors, if any, entitled to become pensioners on the said Fund, shall have full power and authority to consent on their behalf to commute the pensions of the minors for a fixed sum; and the said Court shall have full power and authority to give effect to such consent, and to make such order as the said Court may deem just for the application of the said commuted sum for the future benefit of the infant; and if there be no guardian, the mother, during her widowhood, may act as guardian, unless the said Court shall otherwise order; and if necessary, the said Court may appoint a guardian for any minor.

Case of minors entitled to pensions.

VI. In dividing and distributing the said Fund every part thereof which shall not be awarded by the said Court to members or representatives of deceased members, may, if the said Court shall think fit, be applied for the benefit of pensioners or persons entitled to become pensioners, whether they shall consent to commute their interests or not.

Every part of the Fund may be applied.

VII. With a view to expedite the distribution of the surplus of the said Fund over and above what may probably be necessary to provide for the pensions, the said Court shall have full power and authority at any time to order payment of a dividend of the said probable surplus to the persons entitled to the same, although the exact surplus and the exact amount of charges may not then be ascertained.

Dividend may be made in anticipation.

VIII. For the purpose of winding-up the said Fund, and finally closing the accounts thereof, the like proceedings shall be had for the bringing in of claimants on the said Fund, as in ordinary administration suits for bringing in creditors and other persons; and claimants being pensioners or entitled to be pensioners, who may neglect to come in, in a due course, or within the time limited for that purpose, shall be deemed to have consented to commute their pensions, and a final distribution may be made of the said Fund.

Mode of bringing in claimants.

Additional Article of Schedule A.

Firewood	... Free.

IV. This Act shall be read and taken as part of the said Act XI of 1862.

Act to be read as part of Act XI of 1862.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THIS Bill proposes three amendments in Schedule A of Act XI of 1862 (to amend the Duties of Customs on Goods imported and exported by Sea).

The first amendment proposed is in Article 18 of the Schedule relating to Machinery.

Previously to the passing of Act VII of 1859, Machinery of all kinds imported by Sea into the Presidencies of Bengal and Madras was liable to a duty of 3½ per cent. when imported on British Bottoms, and of 7 per cent. when imported on Foreign Bottoms. The same duties were chargeable at Bombay until the enactment of Act I of 1852. Under the two Acts just mentioned Machinery imported for the improvement of the communications and the development of the resources of the country was allowed to be admitted free of duty, and by Act X of 1860 the exemption was extended to Machinery of all kinds. The same general exemption is contained in Act XI of 1862, which now regulates the rates of Custom duties on Goods imported or exported by Sea throughout the British Territories in India.

It is considered that the later enactments have carried the exemption from duty farther than was requisite or proper, and that they involve an unnecessary sacrifice of Customs Revenue. Under Article 18, as it now stands, it must be obvious that many articles included under the head of Machinery may be admitted free of duty, for the exemption of which no special or adequate ground exists. It is proposed therefore to revert to the rule in force previously to the passing of Act X of 1860, and to confine the exemption from duty to Machinery used exclusively for purposes of agriculture, navigation, mining, or manufacture, or for Railway purposes, and materials forming necessary component parts of such Machinery. The latter part of the Article, amended as proposed, appears a proper concession in favor of component parts of Machinery used exclusively for the purposes mentioned in the former part of the Article.

A slight alteration is also proposed in the Note to Article 18, in order to give the Local Governments, acting under the general instructions of the Government of India, authority to control the Officers of their respective Custom houses in construing the Article in question. A similar provision is contained in the new Customs Bill as regards the administration of the Department generally. There seems no doubt that the provision will conduce to the convenience of the public, while it will leave full power in the hands of the Supreme Government to issue such instructions as it may consider necessary for the protection of the Customs Revenue and for maintaining uniformity of practice in the several Presidencies.

The next alteration proposed is in Article 23 of the Schedule, which relates to the duty on Spirits. Under that Article methylated Spirits, or Spirits used exclusively in arts or manufactures, or in chemistry, are liable, on importation by Sea, to the same duty as Spirits intended for human consumption as a beverage. It is thought that, with a view to the promotion of arts and manufactures, a distinction should be made between Spirits exclusively used for the purposes thereof, and Spirits used for other purposes. Spirits of Wine, under certain restrictions, are allowed to be used duty free in the United Kingdom, and when the Bill to amend the Law relating to the Abkaree Revenue of Bengal was before the late Legislative Council, a Section was proposed, the object of which was to place the law in India on the same footing in this respect as the law at home, but the proposition was opposed on two grounds. The first ground was that the state of the Finances at the time would not admit of our giving up any source of Revenue, and that while we were imposing new taxes which would bear heavily on the poorer and lower classes, we ought not to remit any existing tax however wise it might be on principle to do so. The second ground was that no proper means existed in this country to prevent frauds on the Revenue.

With regard to the first of these grounds the improvement which has taken place in the state of the Finances since this ground of objection was urged, has enabled the Government to remove the taxes alluded to as those which would affect the poorer and lower classes, and Financial considerations no longer appear to offer any obstacle to granting some remission of duty, which has again been asked for, in favor of Spirits used in manufactures and arts, or in chemistry. The Government of Bengal supports the recommendation of the Board of Revenue at Calcutta for a reduction of the present duty on methylated Spirits, and these Authorities seem to anticipate no difficulty in adopting measures which will prevent any abuses from taking place consequent on an alteration of the law. It is not however proposed to admit methylated Spirits free of duty. What is proposed is, that such Spirits shall be charged with duty at the rate of 10 per cent. ad valorem. The importation will also be subject to such rules as the Government shall from time to time prescribe for ascertaining that the Spirits are unfit for use as a beverage, and incapable of being converted to that purpose. Spirits distilled in the country and which may be intended to be used in arts or manufactures, or in chemistry, will be dealt with separately.

The third and last alteration proposed in the Schedule is the addition of an Article to exempt firewood, when imported by Sea, from the payment of duty, thereby placing firewood on the same footing as coke and coal which are admitted free of duty. Owing to the large consumption on the Railways and other causes, firewood has risen greatly in price, and in some parts of the country it is becoming very scarce. It is desirable to encourage its importation as much as possible, but the present high duty is found to operate as a serious impediment. The amount of Customs Revenue realized on this article is very trifling, and on Financial grounds there is no object in retaining the duty.

Commencement of Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THIS Bill, while maintaining all the existing classes of Courts in British Burmah, defines the jurisdiction to be exercised by each class of Courts, and lays down rules for the admission of Regular as well as Second and Special Appeals, which, it is considered, will greatly improve the administration of Civil Justice in that branch of the Department.

Special Appeals will be admissible under the Bill on the same grounds on which such Appeals may be admitted in the Regulation Provinces, that is, on the ground of the decision of the Court below being contrary to some law or usage having the force of law, or of a substantial error or defect in law, or in the procedure or investigation of the case which may have produced error or defect in the decision of the case upon the merits. Special Appeals will be cognizable by the Chief Commissioner alone in his capacity of Judicial Commissioner, or principal Civil Judge of the Province. In order to keep the law settled it is obviously desirable that there should be only one tribunal for the determination of the questions which may arise in Special Appeal. But it is proposed that the Divisional Commissioners shall be allowed, on certain conditions, to admit a Second Appeal from the decisions passed in Regular Appeal by the Officers subordinate to them. No such Appeal is allowed in the Regulation Provinces, but looking to the comparatively short period that British Burmah has been subject to our rule and to other circumstances, it is thought desirable that, for a time at least, the Appellate Authorities immediately over the District Officers should possess larger powers of interference with the decisions of their subordinates than are exercised by the corresponding Authorities in our older Provinces.

The Bill proposes to extend the Code of Civil Procedure, with some modifications, to British Burmah generally. The Code is already in force, under an order of the Supreme Government, in the entire Territory, with exception to the Province of Pegu, in which the proceedings of the Civil Courts are regulated by a Code prepared by Major Sparks, the Commissioner of Pegu, and which bears that Officer's name. Major Sparks' Code does not differ very materially from the Code of Civil Procedure, but it is considered that there should be a uniform Code for the whole Province. The modifications proposed to be made in the Code in its application to British Burmah do not affect the general principles on which the Code is based. They relate chiefly to the powers to be exercised, in certain matters, by the controlling Authorities, and are considered desirable to adapt the Code to the peculiarities of the Province.

It was thought that the Governor-General in Council, acting under the authority conveyed in one of the concluding Sections of the Code, might extend the Code, by an order in Council, to the Province of Pegu, but the learned Advocate-General has given it as his opinion that as, subsequently to the passing of the Code, the Supreme Government sanctioned Major Sparks' Code being introduced into the Province of Pegu, and the order conveying such sanction has since received the force of law by a Section in the Indian Councils Act of last year, an Act of the Legislature is necessary to repeal Major Sparks' Code and to authorize the substitution for it, within the Province of Pegu, of the Code of Civil Procedure contained in Act VIII of 1859.

The Bill further proposes to extend to the Province of Pegu, in supersession of the Law of Limitation contained in Major Sparks' Code, the general Law of Limitation contained in Act XIV of 1859, which is already in force in the remaining portion of the Territory. The opinion given by the Advocate General that a new law is necessary to introduce the Code of Civil Procedure into the Province of Pegu, in the place of Major Sparks' Code, applies equally to the general Law of Limitation. Major Sparks has proposed two slight alterations in the general Law of Limitation, should it be determined to extend that law to British Burmah, and the Chief Commissioner agrees with him, and thinks that, so far as British Burmah is concerned, the two alterations proposed by Major Sparks should be made general. One of these alterations relates to claims for the partition of joint undivided Estates, and the other to Mortgages. The first alteration appears to me to be unnecessary, and to have been proposed under a mistaken view of the law. The other proposed alteration ought not, in my opinion, to be adopted. The other Acts which the Bill proposes to extend to British Burmah have been, for some time, in force in other parts of India, and have been found to work well, and as cases such as those to which the provisions of these Acts are applicable, must frequently occur in British Burmah, where no law now exists for their disposal, the extension of the Acts to the Province seems desirable.

The 5th November 1862.

M. WYLIE,
Depy. Secy. to the Govt. of India,
Home Department.

THE following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 19th November 1862, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their Report thereon in six weeks:—

No. 55 of 1862.

A Bill to regulate the admission of Appeals to Her Majesty in Council from certain Judgments and Orders in Provinces not subject to the General Regulations.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to regulate the admission of Appeals to Her Majesty in Council from certain judgments and orders in Provinces not subject to the General Regulations; It is enacted as follows:—

Admission of Appeal.

I. If a party in a suit is desirous of preferring an Appeal to Her Majesty in Council from any final judgment, decree, or order made on Appeal or revision by the Court of highest Civil jurisdiction in any Province in British India not subject to the General Regulations, or from any such final judgment, decree, or order made in the exercise of original jurisdiction by the said Court, in any case in which the sum or matter at issue is above the amount or value of 10,000 Rupees, or in which such judgment, decree, or order shall involve, directly or indirectly, any claim, demand, or question to or respecting property amounting to or of the value of 10,000 Rupees, or from any other final judgment, decree, or order made either on appeal or otherwise as aforesaid, when the said Court shall declare that the case is a fit one for appeal to Her Majesty in Council, such Court shall admit such Appeal subject to such rules and orders as shall be in force, or shall from time to time be made in that behalf by Her Majesty in Council in respect of such Appeals from Her Majesty's High Courts of Judicature in British India.

Appeal from interlocutory judgments.

II. It shall further be lawful for such Court at its discretion, upon the petition of any party who considers himself aggrieved by any preliminary or interlocutory judgment, decree, order or sentence of such Court in any such proceeding as aforesaid (not being of Criminal jurisdiction), to grant permission to such party to appeal against the same to Her Majesty in Council subject to such rules, regulations, and limitations as shall be in force, or as shall from time to time be declared by Her Majesty respecting Appeals from final judgments, decrees, orders, and sentences of Her Majesty's said High Courts of Judicature.

Notice of Appeal to the other party.

III. On the admission or permission of the Appeal by the Court as hereinbefore provided, the Court shall forthwith cause notice to be given to the other party that the Appellant has preferred an Appeal to Her Majesty in Council.

Court may either enforce judgment taking security, or suspend execution pending Appeal.

IV. The Court, if applied to, may either order the judgment or determination appealed against to be enforced, taking sufficient security for the performance of such order or decree as Her Majesty in Council may make on the Appeal; or it may direct, on similar security being found, that no order for enforcing the judgment or determination shall be issued pending the Appeal, and that, if any such order has been issued, it shall, so far as it has not been executed, be suspended.

Appellant to find security for costs of Appeal.

V. In either of the cases mentioned in the last preceding Section the Court shall require the Appellant to find security for the payment of such costs as it may think likely to be incurred by the Appeal.

Time for presentation of Petition of Appeal.

VI. If a party who is desirous of preferring an Appeal to Her Majesty in Council in any of the cases mentioned in Section I or Section II of this Act shall require the assistance of the said Court for obtaining security from the other party for staying execution of the judgment, decree, order, or sentence that has been passed, or for any other purpose, he shall present his Petition to the said Court within six calendar months from the date of the judgment or determination appealed against.

If security be found inadequate, Court may require it to be increased.

VII. If at any time pending an Appeal under this Act the security taken from either party appears inadequate, whether from the increase or improvement of the property forming the subject of appeal, or from the insufficiency of the securities, the Court before which the Appeal is pending may, on the application of the other party, require further security.

If additional security be not furnished.

VIII. In default of such further security being found, if the original security was furnished by the Appellant, the Court may issue an order for enforcing the judgment or determination appealed against as if no such original security had been given; and if the original security was furnished by the respondent, the Court, so far as may be practicable, shall compel him to deliver up the property forming the subject of appeal, which shall be disposed of in conformity with such of the rules in force as may be applicable to the particular case.

Proceedings in the suit appealed to be forwarded to Her Majesty in Council.

IX. In every case of Appeal under this Act the Court shall certify and transmit to Her Majesty in Council under the seal of the Court two true and correct copies of all evidence, proceedings, judgments, decrees, and orders had or made in the case appealed, so far as the same have relation to the matters of appeal, together with a copy of the reasons given by such Court for or against the judgment or determination appealed against.

Expense of copying and translating papers in Appeals to be paid by Appellants.

X. The expense of preparing the two aforesaid copies, and of translating into English so much of the original documents as may not be in that language, shall be defrayed by the party prosecuting the Appeal.

Court to require a deposit for such expense as a preliminary to admission of Appeal.

XI. The Court shall cause the deposit by the Appellant, within the time allowed for furnishing security for costs of Appeal, of such a sum as shall be sufficient to cover the expense of making the two aforesaid copies, and when such deposit shall have been made, and not till then, to declare the Appeal admitted, and to give notice thereof to the Appellant and respondent respectively.

Either party, on paying for the same, may obtain copy of any paper.

XII. Either party, on application, may obtain one or more authenticated copies of any of the papers in the suit on paying the reasonable expenses incurred in preparing them.

And of any local regulation or law.

XIII. Either party, in like manner, may obtain an authenticated copy of any local regulation or law which he may require in the Appeal.

Decrees of Her Majesty in Council how to be executed.

XIV. The orders or decrees of Her Majesty in Council, when duly certified, shall be enforced and executed, under the directions of the said Court, by the Judge or Officer by whom the suit was originally tried in the manner and according to the rules and laws applicable to the execution and enforcement of original orders or decrees made by such Judge or Officer.

Execution how to be obtained.

XV. Any party desirous of enforcing or obtaining execution of any such decree or order made in Appeal as aforesaid, shall present a petition for that purpose to the Court which made the first decree or order appealed from, and the said petition shall be accompanied by a certified copy of the decree or order made in Appeal and sought to be enforced or executed.

Appeal from order of enforcement.

XVI. An Appeal shall lie from any decree or order made by such last mentioned Court relating to the enforcement or execution of any such decree or order made in appeal as aforesaid in the same manner and subject to the same laws, rules, and regulations as an Appeal from an order or decree made upon a petition for the enforcement of execution of the decree or order first appealed from, would have been.

Court of highest Civil jurisdiction may execute decrees by order of Her Majesty in Council.

XVII. Nothing herein contained shall be construed so as to prevent the said Court of highest Civil jurisdiction from enforcing or obtaining execution of a decree or order made or passed by Her Majesty in Council, if Her Majesty in Council shall think fit to decree or order the said Court to enforce or execute the same.

Saving of Her Majesty's power as to receiving or rejecting Appeals.

XVIII. Nothing in this Act contained shall be understood to bar the full and unqualified exercise of Her Majesty's pleasure upon all Appeals to Her, either in rejecting any she may consider inadmissible, or in receiving any she may judge admissible.

Interpretation of "British India."

XIX. The words "British India" denote the Territories which are or may become vested in Her Majesty by the said Statute 21 and 22 Vic. c. 106, entitled "An Act for the better Government of India."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to extend to the Non-Regulation Provinces the Rules relating to the admission of Appeals to Her Majesty in Council, and to the execution of the decrees passed on such Appeals which are now in force in the Regulation Provinces of the three Presidencies.

The right of Her Majesty to admit Appeals from decisions passed by the Courts in the Non-Regulation Provinces, equally with Appeals from the decisions passed by the Courts in the Regulation Provinces, is not questioned. But there is no law empowering the Courts in the Non-Regulation Provinces to allow or even to receive Appeals from their decisions to the Queen in Council, or, of their own authority, to transmit the records of the cases in which the Appeal is made, or a translation of the papers, to England. The consequence is that parties wishing to appeal to the Queen in Council from decisions passed by the Courts in the Non-Regulation Provinces, are compelled to prefer their Appeals direct to the Privy Council, and an order has to be sent from home for the translation of the papers and their transmission to England. This necessarily adds to the expense of the Appeal, and also causes delay in the hearing and decision of the Appeal. The present Bill is introduced in consequence of the receipt of a communication from the Registrar of the Privy Council, intimating that, in the opinion of the Lords of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, measures should be taken to place the prosecution of Appeals from the highest Civil tribunals in the Non-Regulation Provinces on the same footing as Appeals to Her Majesty in Council from the Courts in the Presidencies of Bengal, Madras, and Bombay.

It is proposed shortly to revise the existing rules relating to Appeals to Her Majesty in Council from the Courts in this country, and to frame a new Code of Rules to regulate such Appeals; but some time must necessarily elapse before the new Code is ready for promulgation.

No. 528.

Fort William, the 17th October 1862.

The following Rules for entering the Harbour of Port Blair are published for general information :—

The Penal Settlement of Port Blair, on the East side, and about four leagues from the South end of the South Great Andaman, is in Latitude 11° 43' North, and Longitude 92° 47' East from Greenwich; it has a spacious and safe harbour extending a considerable distance inland; the entrance is fronted by Ross Island, which extends about one mile in length in a N. N. E. and S. S. W. direction, its greatest breadth being about 1,000 yards, and its height above the level of the sea about 250 feet. Ross Island is easily distinguished from the surrounding land by its cleared appearance and the Houses on its summit, which, when the Sun shines on them, are visible for a distance of eleven to twelve miles. This Island is the principal depôt of the Settlement and the residence of the Superintendent.

The Northern entrance to the harbour is between the North point of Ross Island and a point on the main land called "North Point," a distance of 1½ miles across, having deep water from within 100 yards of the shore on either side.

Vessels entering the North Channel should make the North end of Ross Island, keeping at a convenient distance from it, in not less than 10 fathoms, and stand to the Westward until the Channel between Ross Island and the main land is well open in about 25 fathoms, and the landing place and store-houses on the West side of Ross Island about S. E., Magnetic, then stand for the anchorage about S. S. E., and anchor off the town in from 9 to 15 fathoms, sandy bottom, about 500 yards from the beach, with the Superintendent's house on the hill bearing from E. by N. to E. N. E. Magnetic, and Atalanta point about West.

The line of shoal water off the N. and N. W. end of Ross Island is marked by small red buoys inside of which it would not be prudent to borrow.

The South Channel, formed between the South end of Ross Island and the Main, is narrow, and should only be attempted by Steamers or Sailing Vessels with a steady fair wind.

"Sesostris Reef," a dangerous patch, having only 1½ fathoms in some parts, rocky, uneven ground, bears S½ E. Magnetic, about three-fourths of a mile from the South end of Ross Island; it is about 600 to 800 yards in extent, and is marked by a red buoy which should be given a good berth, as the ground about is rocky and uneven.

Vessels entering this Channel from the Southward with a fair wind should, when about two miles to the Southward of Ross Island, at a convenient distance from the main land, keep the highest point of Ross Island about N. by E. Magnetic, and steer for it, passing well to the Westward of the Reef buoy; and with the buoy bearing S. 25 E. Magnetic, and the South end of Ross Island N. by E. about half a mile distance, the Channel between Ross Island and the Main will be well open when a N. N. W. course will lead up the Channel to the anchorage, keeping as near Mid Channel as possible.

During the strength of the S. W. Monsoon the wind generally hangs well to the Southward and often blows fresh and steadily along shore for some days with a current to the North-Eastward. Vessels coming from the Northward should therefore make the land to the Southward of Ross Island, if possible, and run up.

Wood and fresh water are easily obtained; and for Vessels having lost spars or received other serious damage in the Bay or in the vicinity of the Andamans, Port Blair affords a very desirable place of shelter where their defects may be made good.

By Order,

JOHN G. REDDIE,
Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of India.

2. The Opium will be ordinarily offered for sale at an upset price of Rupees 400 per chest, and sold to the highest bidder above that price, except under the circumstances for which provision is made by Clause 12 of the Conditions of Sale.

3. The Sale shall commence at the hour of 11 A. M. of the day fixed by previous Notification, and shall not be continued after the hour of 5 P. M., but if at that hour any of the lots advertized for sale shall remain unsold, the Sale may, at the discretion of the Board of Revenue, be resumed on the next day following (not being Sunday or a Public Holiday) at the hour of 11 A. 4. Each lot shall contain five Chests.

5. A Promissory Note, for a sum calculated according to the scale noted in the margin, shall be taken as a deposit on each lot from the purchaser in the Sale Room, and before the lot is registered in the Sale Book, and all such Promissory Notes shall be redeemed on the part of the purchasers at this Office by Bank of Bengal Receipts, or by substitution of other Public Securities of the Bengal Government, on or before 4 o'clock in the afternoon of the fifth day after the sale, or, on the other hand, failing such redemption by the time aforesaid, then the lot or lots for which no Bank of Bengal Receipts or deposit of other Public Securities as aforesaid shall have been delivered in shall be re-sold at such time or times and under such conditions of re-sale as the Board of Revenue shall see fit, and all losses and expenses whatsoever attending such re-sale shall be borne and paid by the defaulters, whilst any profit accruing from such re-sale shall be forfeited to Government.

6. The Promissory Notes, taken on the day of Sale under the last mentioned condition, if remaining unredeemed at 4 o'clock of the fifth day following the day of Sale, will be placed in the hands of the Solicitor to the Government for realization on such manner as to him shall seem fit.

7. No tender of Money, Bank of Bengal Receipts, or Public Securities on account of Opium, upon which the prescribed Deposit may not have been made before 4 o'clock of the fifth day following the day of Sale, will be afterwards accepted.

8. The Opium now advertised for sale shall be paid for within fifteen clear days from the the day of Sale, and in case any lots of such Opium shall not be so paid for and adjusted, then the Cash Deposit made under the fifth Condition, or any Public Securities that may have been deposited on account of such lots or chests, shall be forfeited, and the Opium shall be disposed of on account of Government at such time and in such manner as the Board of Revenue shall think fit, and the first purchaser shall futher be required to make good any loss or difference of price between that obtained at the re-sale and the amount at which the Opium was first purchased, forfeiting all advantages that may arise from such re-sale.

12. With a view to prevent fictitious biddings designed to obstruct the Sale, it is hereby notified that the Officer of Government superintending the Sale shall be competent at any time during the Sale to withdraw any unsold lot, and immediately to put it up again for sale at a maximum upset price, diminishing the same gradually until a bid is obtained, and the first bonâ fide bidder for a lot, after it has been offered for sale in the mode here described, shall be held and declared to be the purchaser of the said lot, and the Officer of Government superintending the Sale shall also be competent to dispose in the same manner of as many of the subsequent lots as he may think proper; provided always, that no lot shall be sold below the minimum price of 400 Rupees specified in the second of these Conditions.

13. The purchaser of any lot shall have the option of naming and purchasing in immediate succession at the same price and under the same conditions any number of lots of the same Agency Opium not exceeding altogether twenty-five lots; provided always, that there remain a sufficient number of lots of the Opium to complete the said twenty-five.

14. In the event of any dispute or difference touching or concerning any matter or question arising out of the sale of the Opium included in this Notification, or adjustment of the account thereof, the same shall and may be tried and decided in the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

15. The following papers, together with samples of the Opium for sale, will be exhibited for inspection on the day of Sale, or may be seen previously to that date by application at the Office of the Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue: —

No. 1.—Certificate of the Opium advertized for sale.

No. 2.—Report of the examination of such Opium.

16. The Public are hereby informed that, in providing the investment of the Behar and Benares Opium for the year 1861-62, the same precautions have been taken as those which have been observed during past years, to have the drug procured and set down in a pure state, to have only the prescribed quantity of leaves used in forming the cakes, and to have the due proportion of Opium put into each cake. An account of the weight of the drug when packed at Behar and Benares, and a Statement of the average weight of the chests indiscriminately taken for the purpose of comparison from the despatches on arrival at Calcutta, may be seen, on application, at the Offices of the Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue, four chests of Behar and Benares Opium, viz., two of the season's provision under sale, and two of the provision's season will be also shown to the purchasers in the Sale Rooms on the day of Sale, to enable them to judge of the state of preservation of the drug in the chests offered for sale.

17. Any further information respecting weight or quality of the Opium advertized for sale that may be desired by parties connected with the trade will, as heretofore, be furnished to them on application at the Office of the Board of Revenue, but in accordance with established usage, under no circumstances will the Board entertain or recognize any claim to compensation for loss from any alleged deficiency of weight, abstraction of Opium, or adulteration of the drug, which may be preferred on reference to chests after the sale and delivery of the Opium for shipment.

18. It is hereby further notified, that, under the 6th Article of the Convention between Great Britain and France, dated the 7th March 1815, quoted below, the Agents in India of the French Government, or persons duly appointed by them, are entitled to demand, that out of the quantities of Behar and Benares Opium declared as above for sale at the twelve sales of the year 1863, there shall be delivered to them, at the average of the particular Sale or Sales to which the Opium so applied for may belong, a quantity not exceeding in the aggregate 300 chests, and the Agents of the French Government must make requisitions specifying the quantity of Opium required by them at any particular sale within thirty days from the advertizement of such intended sale; provided, however, that the Agents of the French Government may make such requisition for the whole quantity within thirty days from the publication of this Notification. If the Agents of the French Government shall not make the requisitions for Opium within the time abovementioned, the entire quantity of about 39,617 Chests of Behar and Benares as above estimated will be brought to sale in the usual manner; and if they shall make application for a quantity of Opium to be delivered to them out of the quantity advertised for sale at each or any of the twelve Sales abovementioned, but shall not pay for it within the prescribed period of payment, the Government of Bengal reserves to itself the right of disposing of the Opium which the French Authorities may so fail to pay for, either by increasing the quantity reserved at the Sale next ensuing the date of payment, or by selling it at a Sale to be held expressly for the purpose.

Botanic Gardens, Calcutta.

REPORT ON THE CONDITION OF THE ROYAL BOTANIC GARDENS, CALCUTTA, FROM THE 1st APRIL 1861 TO THE 1st APRIL 1862.

The Garden.—During the past year the various details of this Department have been zealously managed by the Head Gardener, Mr. Scott. Considerable improvements on the general plan of arrangement in the Garden have been effected. These consist principally in planting groups of several of the rare and peculiar families of plants after the manner of the Palmetum commenced by Dr. Falconer. A fine group of Cycadeæ has been formed on this principle, while the Coniferæ (Pine trees and their allies) scattered over the Garden have, so far as their size would admit of their removal, been collected on the west bank of the canal where they will form one of the most beautiful features of the Garden.

The success of this method of grouping living plants according to their botanical affinities has induced me to re-consider the entire subject of the arrangement of the Gardens. To enable me to explain the change it seems necessary to me to carry out, before the arrangement of the trees and plants in the Garden can be brought to a method that will hold good through all the future of the Garden, I must state briefly the plan followed since the formation of the Gardens. At the establishment of the Gardens in 1795 there was, so far as I can find, no definite plan on which the planting of trees or shrubs was conducted. Trees of striking appearance seem to have been placed where it was hoped they would prove most effective in the landscape when full grown. This idea seems to have guided the planting operations of Colonel Kyd, Dr. Buchanan Hamilton, and Dr. Roxburgh.

Dr. Wallich also followed generally the same plan with the modification of forming plantations of trees collected on his travels in different parts of India, such as the fine collection of trees from the tropical forests of Nepal, which still exists at the part of the Garden called the Nepal Mount. The fine avenues of Mahogany trees, Cycasies and Bauhinia, probably planted by Dr. Roxburgh, and for which the Gardens were famous, have now almost disappeared. The indiscriminate planting which has been going on ever since the formation of the Gardens has now ended in great confusion and overcrowding, while the usefulness of the Gardens as a scientific establishment has been greatly affected. This must evidently be the case when it is known that when a genus containing two species has these species removed often further than a mile from each other, thus rendering comparison of allied species almost hopeless.

Several attempts have formerly been made to remedy the evil I complain of, but the difficulty of undoing the work of more than fifty years has prevented any fixed plan of re-arrangement being acted on.

The shortest and speediest method would certainly be that intended by Dr. Griffith of cutting down all the trees in the Garden except the very rarest, and then re-planting the entire space on a definite plan first laid down on a Map.

This plan of Dr. Griffith's seems to be the natural explanation of the extensive changes he made in the aspect of the Gardens, and for which he was so much blamed. Had he remained in charge of the Gardens a few years longer he would probably have succeeded in arranging the plants on a scientific plan. Dr. Falconer first shewed the great advantages of a scientific grouping of the live plants in the Garden by the formation of the Palmetum, and a general collection of Monocotyledons plants. All additions to the species of Palms now cultivated in the Botanic Gardens can at once be placed in their proper sites next their nearest botanical allies.

The want of any arrangement, however, in the other parts of the Garden has now reached such a point that it is almost impossible to carry on the work of planting out the annual additions to the species in cultivation, and whatever is planted adds only to the confusion already existing.

After many months' deliberation, and ten days spent in carefully examining the advantages and disadvantages of a scientific arrangement as strictly carried out in the Botanic Gardens of Buitenzorg in Java, certainly the most beautiful Botanic Garden in the world, I have decided on the following plan:—

I have resolved to give over nearly a third of the Botanic Gardens to a general arboretum, the site of which is the oldest part of the Garden, and where are found nearly all the magnificient trees planted by the earlier Superintendents of the Gardens. This will leave a large tract of land covered with low jungle and grass, and a small extent of Garden near the Conservatory, formerly the site of Dr. McClelland's Medicinal Plant Garden and examples of natural orders.

On this portion of the Garden the various natural orders of exogenous plants will be placed, while the ground in the vicinity of the Palmetum found by Dr. Falconer will afford ample space for the families of endogenous plants. Dr. Thompson has already placed the Zingiberaceæ and Bamboos near the Palms.

As the first step to the attainment of my object I have had a Map of the Garden prepared on a large scale, and, with the assistance of Mr. Scott, the general outlines of the plan were drawn on this Map.

The details of the arrangement were then placed on the Map in the open air simultaneously with a careful consideration of the capabilities of the ground and its suitability to the different species required to be planted. The method of arrangement followed was that adopted in my printed catalogue of the plants of the Botanic Gardens, but that system was not rigidly followed when any peculiarity in the landscape required a departure from it. The last stage of the proceeding was to fix poles five feet high on the site of every plant to be placed in the ground, and labels were attached to these poles. By these means a tolerably correct idea was formed of the effect of the planting proposed to be completed this year.

In fixing the imaginary limits of each order due consideration has been given to the number of species likely to be added to those of the order already in the Garden. Some orders, such as Berberideæ, could have their limits fixed at once, as no additional species can be expected, while others, such as Terebinthaceæ, have had extensive spaces appropriated both to the order and the genera. Orders of herbaceous or shrubby plants have been brought near the roads so as not to be hidden by large trees. Of large shrubs and trees only two examples of each species have been planted. No large or fine trees have been cut down, but those occurring on the ground have been taken advantage of in the general arrangement, some of them serving as specimens of the arrangement, while others form good objects in the view.

In the case of orders composed of trees and climbing plants, such as the Bignoniaceæ, the climbers will be trained to cast iron columns placed with as artistic effect as possible among the trees without reference to their botacial relations either of genera or species. This has been done in the case of the Bignoniaceæ, an order abounding in trees with large showy flowers, and in climbing plants of great beauty, and the effect is most pleasing. I have had the most hearty assistance from Mr. Scott in arranging the minutest details of the grouping of the plants. His long experience in the Botanic Gardens has enabled him to avoid pieces of ground unsuitable for the growth of certain plants, while his knowledge of landscape gardening has been most valuable.

Visitors to the Botanic Gardens have for long complained of the want of labels on the trees and shrubs. This want has to a certain extent been remedied. During the past year 400 labels have been attached to trees near the most frequented roads. These labels are of zinc, they are of two sizes, seven inches long by four broad, and six by three inches is the smallest size. The botanical, English or Native name, when known, and general native country of the plant, are painted in white on a black ground. The label is attached to the stem of the tree by four copper nails or by wire to one of the branches when they conceal the trunk.

Mr. Stacy, the European Overseer, having resigned the appointment last August, I obtained the permission of the Lieutenant-Governor to dispense with that appointment and to engage the services of a European Gardener instead on an increased salary. As yet I have not been able to engage a well-trained Gardener. I have had one to two applications, but the smallness of the salary offered (Rupees 150 a month) has been objected to.

The most important event in the history of the Botanic Gardens for the past year is the share the Gardens have had on the introduction of the Quinine yielding Cinchona into India. I was directed last September to proceed to Java viâ Singapore to procure plants and seed of the species of Cinchona cultivated by the Dutch, also to examine the method of cultivation adopted in that Island, and afterwards to proceed to Madras to report on the prospects of the success of the experiment of cultivating the Cinchona in the Neilgherries. The results of this mission are fully detailed in my Report to the Government of India. I derived great assistance from the varied resources of the Botanic Gardens in carrying out my operations connected with this important subject. The Native Gardeners that accompanied me were lent from the Botanic Gardens, as also were the wardian cases for the transport of the plants.

The Cinchona plants were brought to Calcutta from Java before they were taken to Madras. During the fourteen days they remained in Calcutta they were so carefully tended by Mr. Scott that, when they reached their destination at Ootacamund, only a mortality of 1 per cent. had occured during the entire period spent on the journey from Java to the Neilgherries. While I was in Calcutta, before proceeding to Madras, I received the sanction of Lord Canning to a proposal to commence the cultivation of Cinchona in the Mountains of the Bengal Presidency, and, as a nucleus of this cultivation, I was authorized to leave a few plants of Cinchona Calisaya and C. Pahudiana in the Botanic Gardens, pending arrangements for their final destination. This occurred in the beginning of December. While I was at Ootacamund I procured 204 plants belonging to four other species of Cinchona besides those I obtained in Java. Several of these plants were destroyed between the foot of the Neilgherries and the Railway Station by the upsetting of one of the carts on which the wardian cases were carried. The remainder of these plants reached the Botanic Grrdens on the 13th January 1862. On my return from Madras I found that some seeds of Cinchona Pahudiana sown during my absence had germinated to the number of 548. In the Report of last year I mentioned the germination of seeds of species of Cinchona brought by me from England. About 120 of these seeds had grown by the end of May 1861, but during the hot period between that time and the middle of October many of the young plants died. On the approach of the cold weather all the remaining seedlings, more or less, recovered, while four young plants of the Red Bark (Cinchona Succirubra) grew rapidly. Of the Cinchona plants raised in the Botanic Gardens thirty-one plants remained on the 19th January 1862. The seeds I distributed in March 1861 germinated only at Ootacamund and at Peradinia, the Botanic Garden of Ceylon. The following Table shews the number of plants collected in the Botanic Gardens, Calcutta, on the 19th January 1862, as the commencement of the experiment in Bengal:—

On my return to Calcutta from Madras I received permission to commence the cultivation of the Cinchona near Darjeeling. I was, however, not able to leave Calcutta until the 25th March, being detained by my duties as Professor of Botany at the Medical College.

During this time the Cinchona plants suffered considerably, and a few died, in all 34.

I engaged the services of Mr. T. Stubbs, a European Gardener in charge of the cultivation, and on the 25th March I sent him to Darjeeling in charge of the following number of plants:—

Encouraged by the successful keeping of so many plants of Cinchona in the climate of Calcutta for so many months, I was induced to test the effects of the climate on some of the species by a more prolonged trial. With this intention I left two well grown plants of C. Succirubra and four of C. Pahudiana in the Botanic Gardens of Calcutta, and I gave directions that they should receive no more than the ordinary care bestowed on the other plants in the Garden. Besides these plants I was obliged to leave fourteen cuttings of C. Succirubra, three of C. Nitida, and one of C. Micrantha in the propagating beds of the Botanic Gardens.

The thirteen wardian cases containing Cinchona plants were taken by Railway to Sahebgunge, from whence, after a delay of two days, they were removed to Caragolah Ghaut in the small Steamer. On the 29th March the plants were transported by coolies to Purneah, but though the distance is only twenty-four miles, the difficulties attending the moving of such heavy cases were so great that several of them were nearly forty-eight hours in arriving at Purneah, and they all suffered much from exposure to the sun. On the 1st April the cases were still detained at Purneah for want of carriage.

Garden Roads and Buildings.—The roads and footpaths are generally in good order, with the exception of two short lines, the repairs of which it has been quite impossible to complete. The material for repairing them has been purchased, and no unavoidable delay will take place in rendering them passable at all seasons.

I have found it necessary to enforce the Rules of the Garden concerning the non-admission of carriages and horses. Great damage has been done to the roads from the great number of carriages and riding horses brought into the Garden by visitors from Howrah.

The Rules of the Garden strictly prohibit any such practice, and, besides, the roads were made only for pedestrians, and they could not be made capable of withstanding the constant passage of carriages and horses without a large expenditure of money as well as time. An important line of road leading to the Gardens has been projected, by which visitors from Howrah will avoid the present circuitous and bad route they are forced to take. This road will enter the Garden at the eastern extremity, where it will join a line of roads in the Garden suitable for carriages as far as the bridges over the Canal. This will give the public a pleasant drive in the Gardens for half a mile along the river bank. The cast iron Ghaut, referred to in my last Report, has been completed. It is a great boon to visitors from Calcutta, as it affords a dry and secure landing place at all states of the tide.

Distribution of Plants and Seeds.—This Department of the Garden has so far as possible been confined to a system of exchange with scientific establishments and contributors. Numerous applications for seeds and ornamental plants have been received from residents of Calcutta, but, in accordance with the orders of Government, all such applications have been refused.

All plants that could be spared from the Botanic Gardens can now easily be procured from the numerous Native nursery men of Calcutta, or from the Agri-Horticultural Society.

The usual supplies of English and Native vegetable seeds were sent to all European Regiments indenting for them within the fixed time.

Wardian cases, containing on an average twenty-five plants each, have been sent to the following Botanic Gardens and private individuals:—

The gratuitous distribution of plants to the residents of Calcutta was reduced to 549 species; sixty packets of seeds, containing each from 50 to 100 species, were exchanged with different Botanic Gardens. Among the Botanic Gardens receiving these seeds may be mentioned the Gardens of Kew, Paris, Montpellier, Florence, Malta, Algiers, Trinidad, Mauritius, Melbourne, Sydney, Buitenzorg, Peradinia, Ootacamund, Saharunpore, &c.

Many valuable and interesting plants and seeds have been received in exchange for the plants from the Calcutta Botanic Gardens. During the past year twenty-four cases have been received. The number of new species introduced into the Gardens by this means probably exceeds 400; thirty packets of seed have also been received.

The Herbarium.—It is with great satisfaction that I have to record an annual grant of Rupees 600 (£60) for the support of the valuable Herbarium attached to the Botanic Gardens. This sum will enable the Superintendent to defray the expenses of maintaining the Herbarium in an efficient condition. The collection of dried plants is of such an extent that several years will still elapse before the arrangement of the Herbarium can be completed. The work of gluing down the specimens on sheets of paper, in accordance with the plan followed in all English Herbaria, has been carried on during the past year under my inspection by Natives whom I have trained to the work. Simultaneously with this a portion of the Herbarium has been similarly prepared in England:

I have been enabled to accomplish this through the kindness of Sir William Hooker, who allowed me to secure the services of the men employed at the Royal Herbarium at Kew. These men were allowed to glue down the plants sent to England from Calcutta for this purpose. Mr. Black, the Curator of the Royal Herbarium, prepared the specimens for the process of mounting them on paper, and the labor of gluing down was done by the men at their leisure hours. I have thus had a much larger number of specimens rendered fit for consultation than could possibly be accomplished in Calcutta. All the unnamed and obscure species have also been compared with the specimens in the Herbarium at Kew before being returned to Calcutta.

Through the kindness of Professor Asa Gray, of Cambridge University, United States, I have procured a supply of Manilla Hemp paper for the envelopes of the genera. This paper is the strongest and most durable that can be procured, and is used in the Royal Herbarium of Kew as well as in that of the Dublin University.

The following additions of dried plants have been received since last report:—Two instalments of Dr. Hooker and Thomson's Indian Herbarium. A small collection from Dr. Mueller, of Melborne Botanic Gardens. Mr. Thwaites, Director of the Peradinia Botanic Gardens, has also presented a collection of plants from his valuable Herbarium of Ceylon plants. An interesting packet of North American plants, collected by Dr. Hector, of Captain Palliser's Expedition to the Rocky Mountains, was presented by Sir William Hooker. During my mission to Java I made extensive collections of plants on the Mountains of that Island and also in Singapore. A valuable collection of dried specimens of the plants cultivated in the Botanic Garden of Buitenzorg was prepared for the Calcutta Herbarium by M. Teysmann, the Director of that Garden.

The Library.—Rupees 600 a year have also been sanctioned for the support and preservation of the extensive Library of Botanical Works attached to the Botanic Gardens.

This sum will allow of the purchase of the principal Botanical Periodicals and of the most important new Works on Botany. For some years, however, most of this annual grant will be devoted to the filling up of the many blanks in the more valuable Works already in the Library. Rupees 280 have been expended this year on the purchase of some volumes of the Botanical Magazine which were wanting to complete the set of that publication.

The following Botanical Periodicals and Publications of Scientific Societies will be received regularly:—

Curtis' Botanical Magazine.
Annales des Sciences Naturalles.
The Natural History Review.
Annals and Magazine of Natural History.
Quarterly Journal of Microscopical Science.
Gardener's Chronicle and Agricultural Gazette.
Linnea.
Botanische Zeitung.
Bonplandia.
Proceedings of the Linnæan Society.
Transaction of Ditto Ditto.
Journal of the Asiatic Society of Calcutta.
Journal of the Agri-Horticultural Society of India.

Sixteen pages of the new Catalogue of the plants cultivated in the Botanical Gardens have been printed, and the remainder of the Work out to be finished in a few months.

An enumeration of the species of Acanthaceæ of the Continent of Africa and the adjacent Islands, with descriptions of new genera and species, has been contributed to the Journal of the proceedings of the Linnæan Society, and I am now engaged on a similar Work on the Acanthaceæ of East India. Two Artists have been employed in making Drawings of all the unfigured plants that have flowered in the Botanic Gardens during the entire year.

ACT No. XXI OF 1862.

An Act to provide for the dissolution of the Subordinate Medical Officers' Widows' and Orphans' Fund, and the distribution of the funds belonging thereto.

Preamble.

WHEREAS by certain Regulations prepared and adopted by certain members of the Subordinate Medical Department, a Society was established at Ferozepore, in 1852, for raising a Fund called "The Subordinate Medical Officers' Widows' and Orphans' Fund," the interest, dividends, and proceeds of which Fund were directed to be applied in making provision, at certain specified rates, for the widows and children of the subscribers; and it was directed that such provision should be made solely out of the interest and dividends of the said Fund; and whereas a petition has been presented to His Excellency the Governor-General in Council by certain subscribers and members of the said Society, stating that no subscriptions have been contributed to the said Fund since the year 1857, and that, in consequence thereof and of the deaths of several of the subscribers to the said Fund, no steps have been or can be taken to make the provision intended by the Regulations of the said Fund, and that no pensions whatever have, since the year 1857, been paid to any of the persons entitled to the benefits of the said Fund, and that, therefore, the expectations of the Founders of the Fund have been disappointed and the objects for which such Fund was established have failed; and praying that an Act may be passed to wind-up the affairs of the said Fund; and whereas no provision is made in the Regulations of such Fund for the dissolution thereof or the distribution of the funds belonging thereto, and it is expedient to make provision for the same by law It is enacted as follows :—

On petition, the High Court may order the winding-up of the Fund.

I. On the petition to the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal of a majority of the subscribers of the said Subordinate Medical Officers' Widows' and Orphans' Fund, or of any ten subscribers of the Society and pensionaries on the said Fund, praying for the dissolution of the said Society, and the winding-up of the affairs of the said Fund, it shall be lawful for the said Court to make order for the same on the said petition, as fully as if the Regulations of the said Fund provided for the winding-up of the said Fund; and it shall be lawful for the said Court to make order for ascertaining and declaring the rights which attach on the said Fund, and for taking the accounts of the said Fund, and for the apportionment, division, and distribution of the said Fund; and for the ascertainment of the nature and numbers of the different claims on the said Fund, and of the persons having or entitled to make the said claims; and for the payment of the proper costs of the subscribers of the said Society, and of all parties conducting or otherwise concerned in the matter of the said petition and subsequent proceedings for winding-up the said Fund.

Accountant or Actuary may be employed.

II. It shall be lawful for the said Court, in such way as they may think fit, to obtain the assistance of an Accountant or Actuary the better to enable the Court to determine any matter relating to the division and distribution of the Fund, and to act upon the certificate of such person.

Pensions may be commuted.

III. In the cases of pensioners, or persons entitled to become pensioners, who shall consent to commute their pensions, it shall be lawful for the said Court to order that the amounts to be paid in commutation shall be settled, invested, or paid in such manner as will give the several persons therein interested the full benefit thereof.

IV. In the cases of pensioners or persons entitled to become pensioners, who shall refuse to commute their pensions, it shall be lawful for the said Court to order a sufficient sum to be set apart out of the said Fund to provide for the due payment of such pensions. The said Court may also sanction and give effect to any arrangement which it may deem just and sufficient for the future payment of any commuted sum or uncommuted pensions by any Life Insurance Company willing to undertake the payment of such pensions.

Money may be invested or other arrangement made to pay pensions.

V. Guardians of minors pensioners, and of minors, if any, entitled to become pensioners on the said Fund, shall have full power and authority to consent on their behalf to commute the pensions of the minors for a fixed sum; and the said Court shall have full power and authority to give effect to such consent, and to make such order as the said Court may deem just for the application of the said commuted sum for the future benefit of the infant; and if there be no guardian, the mother, during her widowhood, may act as guardian, unless the said Court shall otherwise order; and if necessary, the said Court may appoint a guardian for any minor.

Case of minors entitled to pensions.

VI. In dividing and distributing the said Fund every part thereof which shall not be awarded by the said Court to members or representatives of deceased members, may, if the said Court shall think fit, be applied for the benefit of pensioners or persons entitled to become pensioners, whether they shall consent to commute their interests or not.

Every part of the Fund may be applied.

VII. With a view to expedite the distribution of the surplus of the said Fund over and above what may probably be necessary to provide for the pensions, the said Court shall have full power and authority at any time to order payment of a dividend of the said probable surplus to the persons entitled to the same, although the exact surplus and the exact amount of charges may not then be ascertained.

Dividend may be made in anticipation.

VIII. For the purpose of winding-up the said Fund, and finally closing the accounts thereof, the like proceedings shall be had for the bringing in of claimants on the said Fund, as in ordinary administration suits for bringing in creditors and other persons; and claimants being pensioners or entitled to be pensioners, who may neglect to come in, in a due course, or within the time limited for that purpose, shall be deemed to have consented to commute their pensions, and a final distribution may be made of the said Fund.

Mode of bringing in claimants.

Every Register so appointed shall be styled the "District Register" of the District to which he is appointed, and his Office shall be styled the "District Register Office."

The Lieutenant-Governor may appoint "District Registers."

III. The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may establish subordinate Offices of Registry for such Sub-Divisions of Districts or at such places as shall to him seem proper, and every such subordinate Office shall be styled a "Deputy Register Office" of the District in which it is situated: and the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may appoint any person whom he may think fit to the charge of such "Deputy Register Office," and the person so appointed shall be styled a "Deputy Register" of the District to which the Office of which he has charge belongs.

The Lieutenant-Governor may appoint "Deputy Registers."

IV. The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal shall fix the limits of the various Sub-Divisions and places for or at which the Deputy Register Offices are established, and may, from time to time, alter the limits so fixed.

Limits of Sub-Divisions for Deputy Register Offices to be fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor.

V. Except as in this Act provided, the registration of deeds at any "District Register Office" or "Deputy Register Office" shall be subject to all the Laws and Regulations now in force as to the registration of deeds, in the same way as if the Register Offices to be established under this Act had been expressly mentioned or referred to throughout such Laws and Regulations.

One of such copies shall be forwarded by the Deputy Register to the District Register of the District within which his Office is situate, and the District Register on receiving such copy shall register the same as if it had been presented to him in the first instance by the person registering. All fees required for registration shall be paid, by or on behalf of the person tendering the deed for registration, before the same is registered.

The Superintendent may thereupon order the Contractor, from whose depot the laborer is removed, to pay him such a sum of money as to the Superintendent shall seem necessary in order to enable the laborer to return to the place where he was registered: and on failure of the Contractor to pay such sum within twenty-four hours of his being ordered to do so, the Superintendent may advance the amount to the laborer: and all the provisions of the last preceding Section as to sums advanced by the Superintendent shall be applicable, so far as the circumstances of the case will permit, to advances made by him under this Section.

No. 1665.—Allahabad, the 19th Nov. 1862.—The following Notification issued by the Government of India, in the Home Department, is re-published for general information:—

No. 6157, dated the 13th November 1862.—The Governor General in Council is pleased to reattach to the North-Western Provinces, the Punjab, and Oude Mr. R. C. Oldfield, of the Civil Service, who has reported his return, on the 10th instant, from Furlough. No. 1680.—The 21st November 1862.—The services of the Reverend J. Sharkey having been placed at the disposal of this Government, the Hon'ble the Lieutenant-Governor has been pleased to appoint him to be Chaplain of Meerut.

Financial Department.—No. 2060A.—Nynee Tal, the 12th November 1862.—The following Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India, in the Financial Department, No. 519A., dated the 30th September 1862, is published for general information.—

Read again paragraph 3 of Financial Resolution, dated 15th November 1860, by which Local Governments were empowered to re-distribute among the Sections of a Department the sanctioned items composing the aggregate grant allowed for that Department in the Budget on the conditions—

1*st*.—That any alterations in the distribution of the charge of a Department be at once reported with all details to the Government of India.

2*nd*.—That no salary of a gazetted Officer be altered or re-distributed without the sanction of Government previously obtained.

3*rd*.—That no general rates of pay or allowances shall be altered, nor any charge incurred which can pledge the Government beyond the year to which the estimate relates without the sanction of the Government of India.

Read again paragraphs 12 and 13 of letter to the Government of Madras, dated 21st June 1862, stating that the powers conferred on Local Government by paragraph 3 of the Resolution of 17th November 1860 cannot be conveniently enlarged at present, but that the limitations of those powers will be interpreted in a liberal spirit, and that, when once the Budget Estimates have been passed, special applications to this Government for sanction of alterations made within prescribed limits, or of fresh charges on account of Salaries, Establishments, and Contingencies which can be met from Budget Grants, shall not be necessary, but shall be superseded by a Monthly Return of all such alterations and charges to be transmitted by the Local Governments on the first of the month following that in which they may have been sanctioned, and by a similar Return from the Civil Pay-Masters, which will be sent to this Department through the Deputy Auditor and Accountant-General, with two additional columns of remarks, in which it will be the duty of the Civil Pay-Master and Deputy Auditor and Accountant-General to indicate any deviation from prescribed Rules which may appear to require the notice of this Government.

Read again Extract from Proceedings in this Department, dated 27th May 1861, which, in cancelment of the previous authority of Local Governments to sanction, irrespective of Budget Grants, temporary Establishments, including settlement charges subject to report, ruled that now that the Budget system has been introduced no expense which is not provided for in the Budget can be passed by Local Governments without the previous sanction of the Government of India, unless it can be met by reduction of other items under the head of service to which the expenditure may appertain.

Read again Financial Resolution No. 12262 of 18th September 1861, which declared the power of Local Governments to apply savings of salary in a Department to the contingencies of that Department, provided the saving be casual and the total grant for the Department be not exceeded.

Read again Extract from Proceedings in this Department, dated 8th September 1862, which, in reference to the power of Local Governments and their controlling Officers to transfer the Budget provision for contingencies from one Section to another Section of the same Department, ruled "that it is a mistake to regard items of de-"tail of grants as grants. The details are needed "for purposes of review and check, but it never "was intended that the Government should be "brought into action every time an alteration "becomes necessary in the distribution of contin "gent charges which are all subject to separate "rules and check. As every class of contingent "expenditure is subject to separate audit under "special Rules in addition to, and independent of, "the Budget sanction, the question of petty trans-"fers may best be disposed of by instructing Civil "Pay-Masters and Deputy Auditors and Account-"ants-General that, so far as the Budget is "concerned, they may, on the authority of such "controlling Officers as the Local Government may "indicate, admit all transfers in detail of con-"tingent charges of the same class if the items "be susceptible of audit under the general Rules "in force. Thus any contingent charge of the "nature of those estimated in the Budget for the "Establishment or Department concerned, and "auditable under the general Rules, may be pass-"ed if not in excess of the total grant for con-"tingencies (for that Department) whether in "exact accordance with the detailed distribution "in the Budget or not."

Read Memorandum from Civil Pay-Master, Bombay, No. 8, dated 28th June 1862, enquiring, with reference to the Orders of 17th September 1861, whether he is to understand that charges even when specially sanctioned by the Local Government are not to be passed unless they are included in the Budget.

Resolution.—The Governor General in Council observes that the Budget system rightly applied should diminish the sanctions by the Supreme Government of petty details. At the same time the knowledge of details should still remain with this Government, though its direct and immediate control of them be relaxed. This was kept in view in the Resolution of 17th November 1860, and in the principles enunciated in the letter to the Madras Government, dated 21st June 1862, which have been extended to the other Local Governments. Under those orders Local Governments as distinguished from Minor Administrations are empowered to re-distribute, and Civil Pay-Masters are now authorized on that re-distribution to pass charges for all fixed Establishments, provided the revision does not affect the salary of any gazetted appointment, does not cause any expense beyond the sanctioned scale and beyond the provision in the Budget, and is confined to one Department. For example, the Local Government of the North-Western Provinces may re-cast the fixed Establishments other than gazetted appointments in a Collectorate, provided the cost be within the amount allowed in the Budget for all sanctioned Establishments other than gazetted appointments in the same Collectorate or in the Revenue Department, North-Western Provinces. The Monthly Reports of the Local Government and of the Civil Pay-Master and the Deputy Auditor and Accountant-General, prescribed in paragraph 43 of the letter to the Madras Government, dated 21st June 1862, are all that this Government requires. The Reports from Civil Pay-Masters and Deputy Auditors-General will be forwarded direct to this Department, but those by the Local Governments will be submitted, in the first instance, to the Home or Foreign Department of the Supreme Government, as the case may be.

2. For temporary Establishments a certain sum is estimated in the Budget for each Department, and within the sanctioned Estimate the authority of the Local Government for their entertainment will suffice for the Civil Pay-Master. But he will continue to submit half-yearly the classified Return of expenditure on temporary Establishments which was prescribed in Resolution of this Department, dated 26th October 1860.

3. On the Budget provision for temporary Establishments being exhausted lapsed salary of other than a gazetted appointment in the particular Office or Establishment concerned may be appropriated in the same way as forfeited pay, namely, in entertaining extra men (but in no case in paying extra allowances) to prevent or clear off arrears.

4. The Orders of 8th September 1862 will continue in force as a general rule, and in reference to Resolution dated 18th September 1861 it is further explained that ordinary casual savings are construed to intend savings from absence on leave or otherwise among non-gazetted Officers and Establishments, and from absolute vacancies for a period not exceeding one month.

5. Orders regarding Establishments in the Department of Public Works, and regarding the extent to which the powers herein conferred on Local Governments may be vested also in the Minor Administrations, will be issued hereafter.

6. Adverting to the inquiry of the Civil Pay-Master, Bombay, the Governor General in Council observes that, with the latitude now given to Local Governments for dealing with Establishments and Contingencies that are provided for in the Budget, it can rarely happen that a contingent charge not so provided for, but considered necessary by the Local Government, will require to be disbursed without its being met by reduction by the Local Government of other items in the Budget, or without the sanction of the Supreme Government to the charge being previously obtained. In any such emergency, however, the Civil Pay-Master will consider it his duty to use a proper discretion in acting on the special authority of the Local Government, bearing in mind that Budget Rules and general financial checks may be judiciously subordinated to any real and pressing exigencies of the Service.

No. 2068A.—Allahabad, the 21st November 1862.—The following letter from the Secretary to the Government of India, in the Financial Department, No. 704G., dated 7th October, to the address of the Civil Pay-Master, Fort William, is published for general information :—

ABKAREE REVENUE LAW AMENDMENT.

The Hon'ble MR. HARINGTON moved for leave to bring in a Bill to amend Act XXI of 1856 (to consolidate and amend the Law relating to the Abkaree Revenue of Fort William in Bengal), and Act XXIII of 1860 (to amend the said Act XXI of 1856). He said that the object of this Bill was to place Spirits manufactured in this country, and not adapted to human consumption, on the same footing as similar Spirits under the Customs Duties Bill lately introduced. The Duty would be 10 per cent. ad valorem, instead of the high rate per gallon which was now charged. The Bill also provided against frauds on the Revenue.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

WORKS OF PUBLIC UTILITY BY PRIVATE PERSONS OR COMPANIES.

The Hon'ble MR. HARINGTON introduced the Bill to provide for taking land for Works of Public Utility to be constructed by private Persons or Companies, and for regulating the construction and use of Works on land so taken, and moved that it be referred to a Select Committee. He stated that, in order to meet a difficulty which had been suggested by the Hon'ble Mr. Erskine, when leave was moved for to bring in this Bill, provision would be made for the Local Governments making bye-laws, not inconsistent with the general provisions of the Bill, for giving effect to it according to the peculiar circumstances of their Territories.

The Hon'ble MR. ERSKINE said that, since he had made his former remarks on this Bill, he had taken an opportunity of reading it, and he willingly conceded that the Bill bore no marks of a desire to fetter local Officers by details, or to limit their powers. It was not his intention to oppose the Bill, for he felt, as all the Council must, sympathy with its object. There were reasons in favor of regulating the encouragement of public enterprizes by a general Bill, providing a simple Code of Procedure, giving to the Works of Public Companies the character and rights of Public Works, and securing their dedication to public purposes. But there might be objections elsewhere, as in the Bengal Government, which had a Bill before the Committee of its Council, and in Bombay, where the Committee of the Council had already reported, and he should be glad, therefore, if the Local Governments had an opportunity to be heard. There were some Clauses of the Bill which were very important, and to which he might direct attention. In the first part of the Bill there were several Sections hardly fit for an enactment. They neither enlarged nor curtailed powers that already existed. It might be desirable, for the benefit of persons at a distance, to make the Bill as complete as possible, but, if so, it would be desirable to add other provisions to it. Opinions might differ as to the extent to which the Bill should go. If lines of communication were sanctioned, it was necessary to provide for private interests, between the intervening points, giving way to the main object. But in the case of Jetties, Quays, and Gas Works, where it was not certain that the works might not as well be made in one place as another, there should be full inquiry, not only as between the Company and the public, but also as between the Company and individuals whose interests were affected. Section V provided that a preliminary Survey might be authorized on a preliminary statement only, and this would authorize persons to enter on lands with the privileges of public servants, whom, under the Penal Code, it was unlawful to resist, while the persons so authorized were not amenable to Government discipline. This was a very large power to be exercised by Local Governments (the Commissioners of Provinces for instance) in such cases as Surveys of Mines. Then Section IX authorized the Government, after three months, to declare a work provisionally registered. In other countries formidable processes had to be gone through to arrive at such a stage. He had no wish to embarrass promoters of public undertakings by technicalities, but here was no provision for inquiry into the rights of third parties, nor any provision for taking evidence. Yet the preliminary registration might be made final if the Companies chose. The Bill also authorized the Government to give land of its own, or land which it had purchased for the purpose; and the Companies were not to be liable for the value of such land unless made so under the Conditions imposed on them by Government.

Were all the heads of Local Governments to have this authority? He would not enter into the question how far this Council would feel at liberty thus to authorize grants of public property, but would ask if every Commissioner was to have the power contemplated. Section XXXIV raised the question whether Government were to determine what rights of way and other easements existed; but probably it was only intended that, where such rights existed, Government should have power to order in what manner they should be secured. The power of making bye-laws under Section XLI was larger than the powers granted under the Railway Act. But as the penalty only extended to 50 Rupees, it was doubtful if the sanction of the Governor-General in Council should be made necessary. That sanction, as provided in Section XLIV, however, appeared to be justly required. With reference to Section XLV, prohibiting alienations of the property of Companies, he doubted if it might not unnecessarily tie up their hands and interfere with their power of obtaining loans. These were some of the points which he thought required mature consideration:

The Hon'ble Rajah DINKAR RAO said that in his opinion if the land were a grant or hereditarily cultivated, the Government, in case the holder of it did not prefer to take the price in money, should give him, in exchange, besides the price of his building, if there were any, another piece of land of the value of that taken. To the owner of a house a site, if required, might be given in addition to the price of the building. Wells and buildings for the convenience of travellers should be added to the works mentioned in Section II of this Bill. The Panch should be either three or five, as the case might be. A provision should also be made that the Officers of the Government should give their attention fully to the religious buildings.

The Hon'ble the LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR said that a Bill for enabling Government to give its assistance to projects for making lines of communication had been introduced into the Bengal Council, and when its principle was considered, it was suggested that the measure might be extended to other undertakings. The Select Committee, however, to whom the Bill was referred, had found so much difficulty in the matter, that they were prepared, as he (the Lieutenant-Governor) understood, to [illegible] against the extension of the measure. There were, therefore, those who would doubt the expediency of so wide a measure as the present Bill. As, however, the subject had been taken up in this Council, the Bengal Council would not proceed with it. He agreed with what the Hon'ble Mr. Harington had stated in moving for leave to bring in this Bill, that it was not intended by Parliament that the Supreme Legislature here should, except under special circumstances, legislate on subjects within the competency of Local Legislatures. With reference to this Bill it was open to the objection that it vested, in all the Local Executive Governments, all the powers that in England could be exercised by Parliament alone. Without saying that Parliamentary control, and Select Committees of Parliament, provided the best arrangement possible, it was doubtful if we should go to the other extreme when the power we conferred was to be exercised by a single person without responsible advisers. It was well known that, even in Parliament, plausible projects were sanctioned, which unjustly invaded private rights, and some check should be provided against the same kind of thing here. It might be necessary that the head of the Local Government should be bound to submit the projects presented to him to some kind of Board or Committee of responsible advisers. For the rest he concurred generally in what had fallen from the Hon'ble Mr. Erskine.

The Hon'ble MR. MAINE said that, although this Bill had been drawn by persons very conversant with the subject, some details might have to be re-considered, and it might be necessary to curtail, in some measure, Section II. As to the principle on which the Supreme Council should legislate, it had been correctly stated by the Hon'ble Mr. Harington that no subject should be taken up if it were within the competency of Local Legislatures, unless there were some strong and special reasons, and in this case all the Council appeared to be agreed that such reasons existed. The Works that were contemplated by the Bill would be executed chiefly by English Capital, and the knowledge in England of the Indian Administration was not great. If this matter were left to Local Legislatures doubts might arise at home of their power to legislate to the full extent required. Some of the greatest losses English Capitalists had sustained had arisen from their trusting to subordinate authorities, which proved not to have the power to give the privileges they had attempted to confer. Many of the powers in this Bill certainly might be given by a Local Legislature; but it was desirable to have a consolidated system of Rules, and Capitalists accustomed to meet with difficulties elsewhere would here find sufficient to guide them in the whole course of their undertakings.

The Hon'ble MR. HARINGTON said that he was gratified to find that the Lieutenant-Governor concurred in his opinion of the expediency of the Supreme Council legislating in this matter. The Council were indebted to the Hon'ble Mr. Erskine for the care and attention he had devoted to the Bill, and for the suggestions he had made. He (Mr. Harington) would not now follow him through them all, but would assure him that the whole of them should be carefully considered in Committee. And as the Bill would be published for the usual period, it could be considered by the Local Governments, whose suggestions or objections would be submitted to the Council. With respect to the scope of the Bill it was doubtful if Section II did not go too far. But it was thought better not to draw the Bill, in the first instance, in too limited a form. It was only permissive in its character, and the Local Governments would select such projects only as were of public importance and benefit. As to the sanction of the Governor-General to the bye-laws, it might suffice to provide for the sanction of the Local Governments if such were the wish of those Governments. There might be difficulty in giving effect to the suggestion of Rajah Dinkar Rao, but it was worthy of serious consideration.

The Hon'ble SIR R. NAPIER said that he thought the suggestions of the Hon'ble Mr. Erskine deserved much consideration, especially in reference to the protection of private rights. And, considering the devoted attachment of the Natives to their hereditary landed rights, he thought that every effort should be made, as far as possible, to give effect to the suggestion of Rajah Dinkar Rao.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

STRAITS SETTLEMENT POLICE BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. HARINGTON introduced the Bill to amend the Law for regulating the Police of the several Stations of the Settlement of Prince of Wales' Island, Singapore, and Malacca, and moved that it be referred to a Select Committee, with instructions to report in six weeks.

The Hon'ble the LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR said that he had no doubt of the propriety of giving the Magistrates in the Straits the powers that were exercised in the Presidency Towns over Punch-houses and the like, but he doubted as to the Sections, which provided that the members of the Police Force should be enrolled for definite periods, and should be liable to heavy penalties if they left the Force earlier. The only reason stated for this enactment seemed to be that the pay of the Police was not such as to induce men to continue in it; but the objection to the provision was that enforced service was bad service, and he did not see why a provision of this kind, which had not been adopted in other parts of India, should be made for the Straits. In effect, it added to the Penal Code a provision as to abandonment of service. If this were the object, it were better to extend it to the whole body of Police throughout India.

The Hon'ble MR. HARINGTON said that the penalties were taken from the existing Police Act, in which they are provided for resigning without notice. There did not appear to be any more objection to requiring a man to enlist in the Police for a definite period, than there was to requiring Soldiers so to enlist. With respect to the pay it might not be desirable nor possible to increase it, but the Section could be considered in Committee.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

EMIGRATION (SEYCHELLES.)

The Hon'ble MR. HARINGTON moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill relating to Emigration to the British Colonial Dependency of Seychelles be taken into consideration.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. HARINGTON proposed that the Bill as settled by the Select Committee be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

CONSOLIDATED CUSTOMS BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. ERSKINE moved that the amended Bill to consolidate and amend the Laws relating to the administration of the Department of Sea Customs in India be referred back to a Select Committee, with instructions to report in three weeks, after considering the suggestions made by a several Local Governments and the Chambers of Commerce since the former Report of the Select Committee, and the Bill as amended, were passed. He said that the Bill, as amended by the Select Committee, had been published and circulated, and the opinions and suggestions of the Local Governments had since been received. He hoped to have been able to propose a series of amendments in accordance with the views thus submitted to the Council; but it was found that they would be so numerous that it would be better to have the Bill referred back to a Committee, and re-printed by them in a form shewing the alterations. He hoped that this would not occasion any delay.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The following Select Committees were named:—

On the Bill to provide for taking land for Works of Public Utility to be constructed by private Persons or Companies, and for regulating the construction and use of Works on land so taken—The Hon'ble Messrs. Erskine, Ellis, Roberts, and the Mover.

On the Bill to amend the Law for regulating the Police of the several Stations of the Settlement of Prince of Wales' Island, Singapore, and Malacca—The Hon'ble Messrs. Erskine, Fitzwilliam, Cowie, Ellis, and the Mover.

On the consolidated Customs Bill—The Hon'ble Messrs. Harington, Fitzwilliam, Cowie, Ellis, and the Mover.

The Council adjourned.

Preamble.

Whereas by certain Regulations prepared and adopted by certain members of the Subordinate Medical Department, a Society was established at Ferozepore, in 1852, for raising a Fund called "The Subordinate Medical Officers' Widows' and Orphans' Fund," the interest, dividends, and proceeds of which Fund were directed to be applied in making provision, at certain specified rates, for the widows and children of the subscribers; and it was directed that such provision should be made solely out of the interest and dividends of the said Fund; and whereas a petition has been presented to His Excellency the Governor-General in Council by certain subscribers and members of the said Society, stating that no subscriptions have been contributed to the said Fund since the year 1857, and that, in consequence thereof and of the deaths of several of the subscribers to the said Fund, no steps have been or can be taken to make the provision intended by the Regulations of the said Fund, and that no pensions whatever have, since the year 1857, been paid to any of the persons entitled to the benefits of the said Fund, and that, the expectations of the Founders of the Fund have been disappointed and the objects for which Fund was established have failed; and that an Act may be passed to wind-up the affairs of the said Fund; and whereas no provision is made in the Regulations of such Fund for the dissolution thereof or the distribution of the funds belonging thereto, and it is expedient to make provision for the same by law; It is enacted as follows :—

On petition, the High Court may order the winding-up of the Fund.

I. On the petition to the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal of a majority of the subscribers of the said Subordinate Medical Officers' Widows' and Orphans' Fund, or of any ten subscribers of the Society and pensionaries on the said Fund, praying for the dissolution of the said Society, and the winding-up of the affairs of the said Fund, it shall be lawful for the said Court to make order for the same on the said petition, as fully as if the Regulations of the said Fund provided for the winding-up of the said Fund; and it shall be lawful for the said Court to make order for ascertaining and declaring the rights which attach on the said Fund, and for taking the accounts of the said Fund, and for the apportionment, division, and distribution of the said Fund; and for the ascertainment of the nature and numbers of the different claims on the said Fund, and of the persons having or entitled to make the said claims; and for the payment of the proper costs of the subscribers of the said Society, and of all parties conducting or otherwise concerned in the matter of the said petition and subsequent proceedings for winding-up the said Fund.

Accountant or Actuary may be employed.

II. It shall be lawful for the said Court, in such way as they may think fit, to obtain the assistance of an Accountant or Actuary the better to enable the Court to determine any matter relating to the division and distribution of the Fund, and to act upon the certificate of such person.

Pensions may be commuted.

III. In the cases of pensioners, or persons entitled to become pensioners, who shall consent to commute their pensions, it shall be lawful for the said Court to order that the amounts to be paid in commutation shall be settled, invested, or paid in such manner as will give the several persons therein interested the full benefit thereof.

IV. In the cases of pensioners or persons entitled to become pensioners, who shall refuse to commute their pensions, it shall be lawful for the said Court to order a sufficient sum to be set apart out of the said Fund to provide for the due payment of such pensions. The said Court may also sanction and give effect to any arrangement which it may deem just and sufficient for the future payment of any commuted sum or uncommuted pensions by any Life Insurance Company willing to undertake the payment of such pensions.

Money may be invested or other arrangement made to pay pensions.

V. Guardians of minors pensioners, and of minors, if any, entitled to become pensioners on the said Fund, shall have full power and authority to consent on their behalf to commute the pensions of the minors for a fixed sum; and the said Court shall have full power and authority to give effect to such consent, and to make such order as the said Court may deem just for the application of the said commuted sum for the future benefit of the infant; and if there be no guardian, the mother, during her widowhood, may act as guardian, unless the said Court shall otherwise order; and if necessary, the said Court may appoint a guardian for any minor.

Case of minors entitled to pensions.

VI. In dividing and distributing the said Fund every part thereof which shall not be awarded by the said Court to members or representatives of deceased members, may, if the said Court shall think fit, be applied for the benefit of pensioners or persons entitled to become pensioners, whether they shall consent to commute their interests or not.

Every part of the Fund may be applied.

VII. With a view to expedite the distribution of the surplus of the said Fund over and above what may probably be necessary to provide for the pensions, the said Court shall have full power and authority at any time to order payment of a dividend of the said probable surplus to the persons entitled to the same, although the exact surplus and the exact amount of charges may not then be ascertained.

Dividend may be made in anticipation.

VIII. For the purpose of winding-up the said Fund, and finally closing the accounts thereof, the like proceedings shall be had for the bringing in of claimants on the said Fund, as in ordinary administration suits for bringing in creditors and other persons; and claimants being pensioners or entitled to be pensioners, who may neglect to come in, in a due course, or within the time limited for that purpose, shall be deemed to have consented to commute their pensions, and a final distribution may be made of the said Fund.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

In the early part of the year the late Mr. Ritchie obtained leave to bring in a Bill to provide for the construction by Companies and private persons of Branch Railways, Iron Tram-roads, common Roads, or Canals, as feeders to public Railways, High-roads, navigable Rivers or Canals. It was Mr. Ritchie's intention to bring in a Bill substantially the same, in so far as the details were concerned, as the Bill introduced, with a similar object, into the late Legislative Council, though with a somewhat wider scope. The Bill introduced into the late Legislative Council was not proceeded with in consequence of the abolition of that Council.

The Bill, framed as intended by Mr. Ritchie, having been considered by the Government in the Public Works Department, it was thought that the scope of the proposed legislation might, with great public benefit, be extended even beyond what was advised by Mr. Ritchie, and that any Bill introduced, instead of being confined in its application to Branch Railways, Iron Tram-roads, common Roads, or Canals, as feeders to other works, might properly embrace many other works of public utility. Section II of the Bill defines the works of public utility to which it is intended that the provisions of the Bill should apply, to be Bridges, Roads, Rail-roads, Tram-roads, Canals for irrigation or navigation, Tanks, Works for the improvement of Rivers or Harbours, Docks, Quays, Jetties, Water-works, Gas-works, Mines, Iron or Copper-works, Drainage-works, or Electric Telegraphs, and also all works subsidiary to such works. The same Section of the Bill further gives power to the Governor-General in Council from time to time by a declaration to be made to that effect, and published in the Official Gazette, to order that any class of works other than those named shall be included among works of public utility within the Act.

It was also considered that the details of the Bill, as proposed by Mr. Ritchie, might be greatly improved, and that they should be made to assimilate more nearly to the laws of the same nature which are in force at home. These considerations have led to an entire remodelling of the Bill.

In framing the Bill it had to be considered whether the Bill should be of general application, that is, whether its provisions should apply to all India, or whether the application of the Bill should be confined to those parts of India for which the Council of the Governor-General alone can legislate. As a general rule, there can be no doubt that the Government of India should not legislate for the local Governments which have Legislative Councils of their own, on any matters in respect of which those Governments are competent to legislate for themselves. The part of the Indian Councils Act of last year, which relates to legislation, was evidently framed on this principle. But when a law is required for the Empire at large, and whether the law is to be the work of a single Legislature or of several distinct Legislatures, the general principles observed in framing it, and the more essential details, must be the same. I venture to think that there must be a great public convenience in having a single law for all India passed by the Government of India which alone is competent to pass a general law, instead of two or more laws passed by different Legislatures acting independently of one another.

The fact that there are, at the present time, two Branch Railway and other Public Works Bills pending, one before the Council of the Governor of Bombay and the other before the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, the provisions of which differ little, if at all, from the Bill proposed by Mr. Ritchie, and that Mr. Ritchie considered that a Bill such as was proposed by him, was all that was required for the entire country, would seem clearly to show that the legislation needed at this time is of the general character above described, and that consequently there can be no necessity for separate Acts for the different Presidencies, or for different parts of the same Presidency.

In addition to what I have already mentioned in favor of a general Bill, I may repeat what was stated by Mr. Ritchie in the remarks with which he prefaced his motion for leave to introduce the Bill proposed by him, namely, that as a Railroad for which feeders are to be provided (and the same observation applies to Canals, High-roads, and other public works) may pass through several Districts or different Presidencies, two different Acts might be objectionable.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THIS Bill is introduced in consequence of a representation from the Governor of the Straits Settlement, who has brought to notice the great inconvenience experienced in that Settlement, owing to there being no law authorizing enlistment in the Police Force for a stated period of service, and from the omission of the Straits Settlement from so much of the Police Act of 1860 for regulating the Police in the Presidency Towns of Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay, and the Straits Settlement, as relates to the control over Ale Houses, Coffee Houses, Boarding Houses, Lodging Houses, and the like. The parts of Act XLVIII of 1860 referred to are Sections XI, XII, and XIII. These Sections, as they were originally drawn, were intended to apply to the Straits Settlement. Why the Straits Settlement was afterwards excluded from their operation, I have not been able to discover. There seems no ground for their exclusion, and the Governor of the Straits Settlement appears to have shewn good and sufficient reason for the extension of the Sections, for which the Bill makes provision, to the Stations under his government.

With regard to the other point noticed in the representation from the Governor of the Straits Settlement it may be observed that no such law, as that asked for, exists in the Presidency Towns, or, I believe, at home. But the Governor of the Straits Settlement points out that the circumstances of that Settlement and of the Presidency Towns are very different. In the Presidency Towns the rate of pay offered is found sufficient to induce the natives enlisting in the Force to remain in it, and when any member of the Force takes his discharge, his place is easily supplied. In the Straits Settlement, on the contrary, the greatest difficulty is experienced in maintaining the Police Force at its prescribed strength, and the Commissioners complain very much of the constant changes that are taking place, and which render nugatory their exertions to keep the Police Force in an efficient state. The Governor notices that in the Colony of Hong-Kong it has been found necessary, in framing a law to regulate the Police, to require that every Inspector, subordinate Officer, and Peon, shall enlist for five years, previously to the expiration of which period no one entering the Force is at liberty to resign his office, or to withdraw himself from the duties thereof, except with the permission of the Governor, granted on a certificate of ill-health from the Colonial Surgeon, or on a special representation from the Captain Superintendent. It is considered that great advantage would result from the extension of similar provisions to the Straits Settlement, and the first two Sections of the Bill have been framed with a view to a modification of the existing law, in so far as it extends to the Straits Settlement, in the direction recommended by the Governor.

(Signed) H. B. HARINGTON.

The 12th November 1862.

From the Governor of the Straits Settlement, to the Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department, No. 115, dated Singapore, the 21st August 1862.

SIR,—I have the honor to enclose, for submission to His Excellency the Governor-General in Council, copy of a representation, No. 58, dated the 30th ultimo, from the Commissioner of Police at Singapore, on the subject of his want of control over Ale Houses, Coffee Houses, Boarding and Lodging Houses, &c., as exercised by the Commissioners of Police at the Presidency Towns in India

2. There can be no doubt that this control is urgently needed in the Straits, more especially at Singapore. The necessity for its being granted was brought prominently to the notice of the Legislative Council in paragraph 3 of my letter, No. 204 of the 13th October 1860, and I certainly have been at a loss to discover the grounds upon which a power it has been considered advisable to vest in the Commissioner of Police at Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay, has been withheld from the same authority at Singapore, a large sea port, generally crowded with shipping of all nations, and consequently containing a large seafaring population, for whose benefit it is so essential that proper supervision should be exercised over all houses and places of public resort and entertainment.

3. Another question alluded to in my communication above mentioned was, the expediency of modifying the rules under which men are entertained for service in the Police, and authorizing their being enlisted for a term of years. This may not be deemed a matter of any great importance in the Presidency Towns, where the pay offered is a sufficient inducement for a Native to remain in the Force, and should he take his discharge, his place can be immediately supplied, but it is far different in the Straits Settlement, where there is considerable difficulty in maintaining the Force at its prescribed strength, and Commissioners complain sadly of the constant changes that are taking place, rendering all their exertions to keep the Police in an efficient state perfectly nugatory; at the sister Colony of Hong-Kong it has been found requisite, in framing the Law for the regulation of the Police, to require every Inspector, subordinate Officer, and Peon, on entering the Force, to bind himself to serve for the period of five years, previous to the expiration of which he is precluded from resigning his office, or withdrawing himself from the duties thereof, except under the permission of His Excellency the Governor, accorded on a certificate of ill health from the Colonial Surgeon, or on a special representation from the Captain Superintendent. In the event of any further amendment of the Police Act, the introduction of a Clause to the above effect as regards the Police in the Straits would be a great boon to the Settlement.

I have, &c.,

From the Commissioner of Police, Singapore, to the Secretary to Government, Straits Settlement, Singapore, No. 58, dated Singapore, the 30th July 1862.

SIR,—I HAVE the honor to bring to your notice a nuisance which has existed for years, but which has been represented even so long ago as Governor Butterworth's time; it is Beer Shops, and the great increase of them, over which the Police Authorities have no control, as any person who wishes to open such a shop can do so without a license or permission of any kind. These places are mostly kept by Sailors who have left their ships and served as barmen in some public house, and men who are reported to me as convicts, ticket of leave men from the Australian Colonies.

From the Preamble of Act XLVIII of 1860 it appears evident, that the Legislative Council of India intended that the Police Commissioners of the Straits should be vested with the like power as those of Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay, but unfortunately the important words "and the several Stations of the Settlement of Prince of Wales' Island, Singapore, and Malacca" have been omitted in the 11th and 12th Sections of the Act—This being remedied, the evil complained of could be dealt with, and only properly conducted houses would be licensed. May I request you to be good enough to bring this to the consideration of His Honor the Governor, and I feel sure you will support my suggestion.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

THE following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill for regulating Public Conveyances in the Town and Suburbs of Calcutta, with the Bill as revised by the Select Committee, is, by order of the President, published for general information :—

WE, the majority of the Select Committee on the Bill for regulating Public Conveyances in the Town and Suburbs of Calcutta, have the honor to submit our Report, annexing a copy of the Bill as revised by us. The Bill, as it now stands, is very different from the Bill as read in Council, for we have found it necessary to make many alterations and additions, and have in many respects assimilated the Bill to the Act for the Regulation of Hackney Carriages in London, most of the provisions of which, with a little modification, appear to be very suitable to the requirements of Calcutta.

In the Bill as read in Council there was a marked distinction between Carriages that were only to be "registered," and those which were required to be both "registered and licensed." The owners of Carriages which were only registered were to be permitted to fix their own rates of fare, a table of which they were required by the Bill to stick up in their premises. Only those Carriages which were both registered and licensed could be compelled to take a fare according to a scale fixed by Government, and no Carriages needed to be licensed as well as registered except those which stood for hire in streets on the public stands. It appears to us that the owners of the great majority of the Carriages let for hire in this Town would in such case keep their Carriages in their own Stables in order that they might be privileged to charge their own rates of fare, and if they did so the law would be practically perfectly useless. We have deemed it right to do away with the distinction between Carriages registered and licensed, and Carriages registered only, and to make, with certain exceptions which we shall proceed to notice, all Hackney Carriages at all reasonable times accept a fare when required so to do, and charge a uniform rate which we have laid down absolutely in the Bill.

We have divided Hackney Carriages into three classes, and each Carriage will be registered as belonging to one or other of these classes. Carriages of the First Class will be such only as belong to Coach Builders, Hotel-keepers, and Livery Stable-keepers. For Carriages of this class we have thought it undesirable to assign any fixed rate of fare. We think that in their case the matter may well be left to arrangement between the parties. The special reasons which make it necessary to fix the fare for Carriages of an inferior description do not apply with the like force to Carriages of the First Class, which will be very much fewer in number, will be much less frequently used, and will belong to owners whom there can never be any difficulty in finding out.

Carriages of the Second and Third Classes will in fact correspond more nearly with the English Hackney Cabs: and we have accordingly dealt with them as such so far as circumstances seem to admit. When these Carriages ply as Hackney Carriages, strictly so called, they will be allowed to charge only the fares prescribed in the Bill. But the Carriages, of an inferior kind, such as will for the most part compose the Third Class, very frequently ply less as Hackney Carriages than as Stage Carriages or Omnibuses. For a Stage Carriage or Omnibus, plying generally and on no fixed line, it is of course almost an impossibility to fix any equitable rate of fares: we have therefore left the charge to be made in such cases to be fixed by agreement between the employer and employed. While these exceptions are made as to the different classes of Carriage and the fares to be paid for the use of them, the three classes are in almost all other respects subject alike to the general provisions of the Bill.

As to the table of fares which we have prepared, we need only call attention to the fact that it provides rates for time as well as for distance. It will be at the option of the hirer, when he hires the Carriage, to say whether he will pay by time or by distance: but if nothing be said about it when the hiring takes place, the fare will be payable according to time. We think that the rates which we have prescribed are quite high enough to guard the Carriage proprietor from loss by the introduction of fixed rates.

We have made it compulsory on every driver of a Hackney Carriage to take out a license. The license will be a general license to drive Hackney Carriages, and will not be confined to any particular Carriage. But no Hackney Carriage, to whatever class it may belong, may, under any circumstances (except in cases which cannot be possibly avoided), be driven by one who is not a licensed driver. Every driver will have to wear a badge, and will be subject to punishment for misconduct of any kind. All offences and disputes under or arising out of the provisions of the Bill are to be heard and disposed of by the nearest Magistrate. And as questions as to distance may often be raised, we have provided that in case of disputes as to the fare calculated according to the distance, a book of distances signed by the Registering Officer shall be conclusive evidence of all distances therein stated.

We leave it open to the Government to say who shall be the Registering Officer. The Commissioner of Police is perhaps in a better position than any other Officer for fulfilling all the duties of the post.

Provision is made for the delivering up of expired registry plates and tickets as well as of plates and tickets when they are defaced or obliterated: also for the case of their being stolen, and for the use by unlicensed persons of counterfeit plates or tickets intended to resemble true ones. And we have collected together in one Section all the offences for which drivers are liable to a penalty under the Act, assigning a uniform penalty for such offences.

We have somewhat enlarged the provisions regarding Palankeens, assimilating them generally to the rules as to Hackney Carriages, and laying down fixed rates of fares.

Such is the general nature of the alterations we have made: but we think it unnecessary to enter more minutely into their details, as we annex the Bill as amended by us.

No. 1063 of 1862.—Under instructions from the Right Honb'le the Secretary of State for India, and with reference to Government General Order No. 272 of the 11th March 1862, it is notified that the present existing vacancies* in the Grade of Cornet and Ensign in the new Line Regiments of Cavalry and Infantry will be filled, as far as practicable, from Volunteers from among the Cornets and Ensigns on the General Lists of the three Presidencies.

Every Cornet or Ensign therefore, on these Lists, who wishes to volunteer, should state, without delay, whether he is desirous of joining one of the new Regiments of Cavalry or of Infantry as Cornet or Ensign, as the case may be, with the understanding that whether he select the Cavalry or the Infantry, the Regiment and his place in the Regiment will be determined by his relative seniority among the Officers now volunteering, whether they be Cavalry or Infantry Officers.

Each Officer is at liberty to volunteer conditionally on being appointed to a particular Regiment and in a particular place, but he will readily understand that such conditions can only be acceded to in the event of their not involving any interference with the claims of his seniors.

Under these circumstances, should a compliance with the conditions mentioned by the Officer so volunteering prove to be impracticable, he will be considered as not having volunteered at all.

14. In the event of any dispute or difference touching or concerning any matter or question arising out of the sale of the Opium included in this Notification, or adjustment of the account thereof, the same shall and may be tried and decided in the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

15. The following papers, together with samples of the Opium for sale, will be exhibited for inspection on the day of Sale, or may be seen previously to that date by application at the Office of the Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue:—

No. 1.—Certificate of the Opium advertized for sale.

No. 2.—Report of the examination of such Opium.

16. The Public are hereby informed that, in providing the investment of the Behar and Benares Opium for the year 1861-62, the same precautions have been taken as those which have been observed during past years, to have the drug procured and set down in a pure state, to have only the prescribed quantity of leaves used in forming the cakes, and to have the due proportion of Opium put into each cake. An account of the weight of the drug when packed at Behar and Benares, and a Statement of the average weight of the chests indiscriminately taken for the purpose of comparison from the despatches on arrival at Calcutta, may be seen, on application, at the Office of the Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue, four chests of Behar and Benares Opium, viz., two of the season's provision under sale, and two of the provision's season will be also shewn to the purchasers in the Sale Rooms on the day of Sale, to enable them to judge of the state of preservation of the drug in the chests offered for sale.

17. Any further information respecting weight or quality of the Opium advertized for sale that may be desired by parties connected with the trade will, as heretofore, be furnished to them on application at the Office of the Board of Revenue. But in accordance with established usage, under no circumstances will the Board entertain or recognize any claim to compensation for loss from any alleged deficiency of weight, abstraction of Opium, or adulteration of the drug, which may be preferred on reference to chests after the sale and delivery of the Opium for shipment.

18. It is hereby further notified, that, under the 6th Article of the Convention between Great Britain and France, dated the 7th March 1815, quoted below, the Agents in India of the French Government, or persons duly appointed by them, are entitled to demand, that out of the quantities of Behar and Benares Opium declared as above for sale at the twelve sales of the year 1863, there shall be delivered to them, at the average of the particular Sale or Sales to which the Opium so applied for may belong, a quantity not exceeding in the aggregate 300 chests, and the Agents of the French Government must make requisitions specifying the quantity of Opium required by them at any particular sale within thirty days from the advertizement of such intended sale; provided, however, that the Agents of the French Government may make such requisition for the whole quantity within thirty days from the publication of this Notification. If the Agents of the French Government shall not make the requisitions for Opium within the time abovementioned, the entire quantity of about 39,617 Chests of Behar and Benares as above estimated will be brought to sale in the usual manner; and if they shall make application for a quantity of Opium to be delivered to them out of the quantity advertised for sale at each or any of the twelve Sales abovementioned, but shall not pay for it within the prescribed period of payment, the Government of Bengal reserves to itself the right of disposing of the Opium which the French Authorities may so fail to pay for, either by increasing the quantity reserved at the Sale next ensuing the date of payment, or by selling it at a Sale to be held expressly for the purpose.

Article of the Convention above referred to—

Article 6th.—"With regard to the trade in Opium, it is agreed between the High Contracting Parties that at each of the periodical Sales of that article, there shall be reserved for the French Government and delivered upon requisition duly made by the Agents of His Most Christian Majesty, or by the persons duly appointed by them, the number of chests so applied for, provided that such supply shall not exceed three hundred chests in each year, and the price for the same shall be determined by the average rate at which Opium shall have been sold at every such periodical Sale, it being understood that, if the quantity of Opium applied for at any one time shall not be taken on account of the French Government by the Agents of His Most Christian Majesty within the usual period of delivery, the quantity so applied for shall nevertheless be considered as so much in reduction of the three hundred chests hereinbefore-mentioned. The requisitions for Opium as aforesaid are to be addressed to the Governor General at Calcutta within thirty days after notice of the intended Sales shall have been published in the Government Gazette."

XLIV. In the case of a Railway under this Act being of the guage of five feet and six inches, it is further provided that the Bye-laws and Regulations shall, unless the Governor-General in Council shall otherwise permit, conform in every respect to the Regulations for Railway Companies under the said Act XVIII of 1854.

AS TO THE LIEN OF THE GOVERNMENT ON ANY WORK.

Lien of Government on lands and works.

XLV. No lands taken or supplied by the Government for any work under this Act; no tree, building, or structure standing on such lands; no machinery nor permanent way fixed to the soil on such lands; nor any thing whatsoever on which the Government shall be entitled to re-enter, or of which it shall be entitled to take possession without payment on the determination from any cause of the agreement between the Government and the Company under the conditions aforesaid, shall be liable to be seized or applied in satisfaction of any debts or liabilities of any sort of the Company, nor shall the Company alienate the same or any part thereof in any way not provided for or consonant with such agreement or conditions.

Right of Government to terminate contracts with bankrupt or insolvent Companies, &c.

XLVI. If the owners of a work under this Act shall voluntarily determine to wind up their affairs, or shall be so directed by an order of Court, or shall abandon, or determine to abandon such work, or shall commit an act of Bankruptcy or Insolvency, it shall be lawful for the Government thereupon to terminate all contracts then existing between it and the Company in respect of such work, and to re-enter upon and take possession of all things whatsoever to which the Government shall be so entitled under the conditions of such contracts; also of all lands taken at the public expense or supplied to the said Company free of cost, together with all trees, buildings and structures standing on such lands, as well as all machinery and permanent way fixed to the soil on such lands, provided that nothing shall be so taken which shall be expressly excluded from such liability under the conditions aforesaid. But the Government shall be bound to surrender to a lawful claimant all moveable property of which it shall at any time obtain possession from the Company otherwise than by purchase, which shall not have been fully paid for by the Company, or in lieu of such surrender, if the Government shall so determine, to satisfy all just outstanding claims on account of such property; provided that no such surrender shall be obligatory and no such claim shall be entertained in respect of any thing that shall have been delivered to the said Company more than twelve months before the date of such surrender being required of or such claim being made known to the Government.

Government to surrender to lawful claimant moveable property acquired from the Company otherwise than by purchase in certain cases.

AS TO MINES NEAR ANY WORK.

Saving of right to mines in land taken.

XLVII. Whenever land shall be taken under this Act for the construction of any work, the taking thereof shall not be held to convey or include the right to any mine of coal or other minerals lying under such land, except only such part thereof as shall be necessary to be dug or carried away or used in the construction of the works, unless compensation for the same shall have been expressly allowed in the award made in favor of the persons interested in the land.

Working of mines included in the land taken.

XLVIII. If the owner, lessee, or occupier of any mine of coal or of any other mineral lying immediately under any work under this Act, or within forty yards therefrom, shall work the same, it shall be competent to the Government, on the application of the Company, to require such person to abandon such working, or so to work the same as not to endamage the said work, and to construct the works necessary to make it safe. Provided that compensation shall be awarded to such owner, lessee, or occupier in the manner provided for in the said Act VI of 1857, for any loss sustained by him from being compelled to abandon, or alter his mode of working the mine, and also for any necessary works constructed by him (when so required as aforesaid) in order to prevent damage to the said work, but all damage or loss to the Company arising from any improper working of such mines shall be at the risk of the owners, lessees, or occupiers of the said mines, and shall be made good by them.

AS TO OFFENCES AND THE RECOVERY OF PENALTIES.

Punishment for certain offences.

XLIX. Whoever shall obstruct or commit any contempt of the lawful authority of any public servant in the discharge of any function or in the performance of any thing undertaken under this Act, or shall commit mischief by destroying, defacing, or removing any land-mark fixed by the authority of any such public servant shall be punishable under the provisions of the Indian Penal Code.

Recovery of penalties for offences under Bye-laws

L. All penalties for offences under the Bye-laws and Regulations aforesaid shall be recoverable in the manner provided for offences punishable by fine only in the said Act XVIII of 1854.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

IN the early part of the year the late Mr. Ritchie obtained leave to bring in a Bill to provide for the construction by Companies and private persons of Branch Railways, Iron Tram-roads, common Roads, or Canals, as feeders to public Railways, High-roads, navigable Rivers or Canals. It was Mr. Ritchie's intention to bring in a Bill substantially the same, in so far as the details were concerned, as the Bill introduced, with a similar object, into the late Legislative Council, though with a somewhat wider scope. The Bill introduced into the late Legislative Council was not proceeded with in consequence of the abolition of that Council.

The Bill, framed as intended by Mr. Ritchie, having been considered by the Government in the Public Works Department, it was thought that the scope of the proposed legislation might, with great public benefit, be extended even beyond what was advised by Mr. Ritchie, and that any Bill introduced, instead of being confined in its application to Branch Railways, Iron Tram-roads, common Roads, or Canals, as feeders to other works, might properly embrace many other works of public utility. Section II of the Bill defines the works of public utility to which it is intended that the provisions of the Bill should apply, to be Bridges, Roads, Railroads, Tram-roads, Canals for irrigation or navigation, Tanks, Works for the improvement of Rivers or Harbours, Docks, Quays, Jetties, Water-works, Gas-works, Mines, Iron or Copper-works, Drainage-works, or Electric Telegraphs, and also all works subsidiary to such works. The same Section of the Bill further gives power to the Governor-General in Council from time to time by a declaration to be made to that effect, and published in the Official Gazette, to order that any class of works other than those named shall be included among works of public utility within the Act.

It was also considered that the details of the Bill, as proposed by Mr. Ritchie, might be greatly improved, and that they should be made to assimilate more nearly to the laws of the same nature which are in force at home. These considerations have led to an entire remodelling of the Bill.

In framing the Bill it had to be considered whether the Bill should be of general application, that is, whether its provisions should apply to all India, or whether the application of the Bill should be confined to those parts of India for which the Council of the Governor-General alone can legislate. As a general rule, there can be no doubt that the Government of India should not legislate for the local Governments which have Legislative Councils of their own, on any matters in respect of which those Governments are competent to legislate for themselves. The part of the Indian Councils Act of last year, which relates to legislation, was evidently framed on this principle. But when a law is required for the Empire at large, and whether the law is to be the work of a single Legislature or of several distinct Legislatures, the general principles observed in framing it, and the more essential details, must be the same, I venture to think that there must be a great public convenience in having a single law for all India passed by the Government of India which alone is competent to pass a general law, instead of two or more laws passed by different Legislatures acting independently of one another.

The fact that there are, at the present time, two Branch Railway and other Public Works Bills pending, one before the Council of the Governor of Bombay and the other before the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, the provisions of which differ little, if at all, from the Bill proposed by Mr. Ritchie, and that Mr. Ritchie considered that a Bill such as was proposed by him, was all that was required for the entire country, would seem clearly to shew that the legislation needed at this time is of the general character above described, and that consequently there can be no necessity for separate Acts for the different Presidencies, or for different parts of the same Presidency.

In addition to what I have already mentioned in favor of a general Bill, I may repeat what was stated by Mr. Ritchie in the remarks with which he prefaced his motion for leave to introduce the Bill proposed by him, namely, that as a Railroad for which feeders are to be provided (and the same observation applies to Canals, High-roads, and other public works) may pass through several Districts or different Presidencies, two different Acts might be objectionable.

The 5th November 1862.

M. WYLIE,
Depy. Secy. to the Govt. of India,
Home Department.

THE following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 26th November 1862, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in six weeks:—

No. 58 OF 1862.

A Bill to amend the Law for regulating the Police of the several Stations of the Settlement of Prince of Wales' Island, Singapore, and Malacca.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law for regulating the Police of the several Stations of the Settlement of Prince of Wales' Island, Singapore, and Malacca; It is enacted as follows:—

II. No person shall be enrolled a member of the Police Force in any of the said Stations, who shall not sign a declaration, in the form provided in the Schedule to this Act, that he will serve as a member of such Force for such period, not exceeding five years, as shall be fixed by the Governor of the said Settlement, and no person who shall have signed such declaration shall be at liberty to resign his Office, or to withdraw himself from the duties thereof, except with the permission of the Governor of the said Settlement, to be granted on a Certificate of ill health from a Medical Officer of Government, or on a special recommendation of the Commissioner of Police. Provided that nothing in this Section shall interfere with the power of the Commissioner of Police, under Section X of the said Act XIII of 1856, to suspend or dismiss any member of the Police Force whom he shall think remiss or negligent in the discharge of his duty, or otherwise unfit for the same.

Penalty for deserting or withdrawing from service.

Licenses by Commissioner of Police for keeping Taverns and places of public entertainment.

V. The Commissioner of Police in each of the said Stations shall, from time to time, grant licenses to the keepers of such houses or places of public resort and entertainment as aforesaid in the said Stations respectively, and upon such conditions, to be inserted in every such license, as he, with the sanction of the local Government, from time to time, shall order, for securing the good behaviour of the keepers of the said houses or places of public resort and entertainment, and the prevention of drunkenness and disorder among the persons frequenting or using the same, and the said licenses may be granted by the said Commissioner for any term not exceeding one year; provided always, that it shall not be lawful for the said Commissioner to grant a license to open, or establish, or keep open, any house of public entertainment in which any provisions, liquors, or refreshments of any kind, or in which any Ganja, Chundoo, or other preparation of Opium, Hemp, or other intoxicating drug, plant, or substance, may be sold or consumed, to any person who has not taken out a license for the retail sale of such articles, if a license be necessary, under the Abkaree or Excise Laws for the time being in force; and any such license granted by the Commissioner shall become void whenever the license necessary under the Abkaree or Excise Laws shall terminate or be recalled. And every holder of such license may be required by the Commissioner to fix, in a conspicuous part of the house or place specified in the license, a board, on which shall be legibly painted, in the English and Vernacular languages, the name of the holder, and the articles he is licensed to deal in. Statement of Objects and Reasons.

This Bill is introduced in consequence of a representation from the Governor of the Straits Settlement, who has brought to notice the great inconvenience experienced in that Settlement, owing to there being no law authorizing enlistment in the Police Force for a stated period of service, and from the omission of the Straits Settlement from so much of the Police Act of 1860 for regulating the Police in the Presidency Towns of Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay, and the Straits Settlement, as relates to the control over Ale Houses, Coffee Houses, Boarding Houses, Lodging Houses, and the like. The parts of Act XLVIII of 1860 referred to are Sections XI, XII, and XIII. These Sections, as they were originally drawn, were intended to apply to the Straits Settlement. Why the Straits Settlement was afterwards excluded from their operation, I have not been able to discover. There seems no ground for their exclusion, and the Governor of the Straits Settlement appears to have shewn good and sufficient reason for the extension of the Sections, for which the Bill makes provision, to the Stations under his government.

With regard to the other point noticed in the representation from the Governor of the Straits Settlement it may be observed that no such law, as that asked for, exists in the Presidency Towns, or, I believe, at home. But the Governor of the Straits Settlement points out that the circumstances of that Settlement and of the Presidency Towns are very different. In the Presidency Towns the rate of pay offered is found sufficient to induce the natives enlisting in the Force to remain in it, and when any member of the Force takes his discharge, his place is easily supplied. In the Straits Settlement, on the contrary, the greatest difficulty is experienced in maintaining the Police Force at its prescribed strength, and the Commissioners complain very much of the constant changes that are taking place, and which render nugatory their exertions to keep the Police Force in an efficient state. The Governor notices that in the Colony of Hong-Kong it has been found necessary, in framing a law to regulate the Police, to require that every Inspector, subordinate Officer, and Peon, shall enlist for five years, previously to the expiration of which period no one entering the Force is at liberty to resign his office, or to withdraw himself from the duties thereof, except with the permission of the Governor, granted on a certificate of ill-health from the Colonial Surgeon, or on a special representation from the Captain Superintendent. It is considered that great advantage would result from the extension of similar provisions to the Straits Settlement, and the first two Sections of the Bill have been framed with a view to a modification of the existing law, in so far as it extends to the Straits Settlement, in the direction recommended by the Governor.

(Signed) H. B. HARINGTON.

The 12th November 1862.

From the Governor of the Straits Settlement, to the Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department, No. 115, dated Singapore, the 21st August 1862.

SIR,—I have the honor to enclose, for submission to His Excellency the Governor-General in Council, copy of a representation, No. 58, dated the 30th ultimo, from the Commissioner of Police at Singapore, on the subject of his want of control over Ale Houses, Coffee Houses, Boarding and Lodging Houses, &c., as exercised by the Commissioners of Police at the Presidency Towns in India

2. There can be no doubt that this control is urgently needed in the Straits, more especially at Singapore. The necessity for its being granted was brought prominently to the notice of the Legislative Council in paragraph 3 of my letter, No. 204 of the 13th October 1860, and I certainly have been at a loss to discover the grounds upon which a power it has been considered advisable to vest in the Commissioner of Police at Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay, has been withheld from the same authority at Singapore, a large sea port, generally crowded with shipping of all nations, and consequently containing a large seafaring population, for whose benefit it is so essential that proper supervision should be exercised over all houses and places of public resort and entertainment.

3. Another question alluded to in my communication above mentioned was, the expediency of modifying the rules under which men are entertained for service in the Police, and authorizing their being enlisted for a term of years. This may not be deemed a matter of any great importance in the Presidency Towns, where the pay offered is a sufficient inducement for a Native to remain in the Force, and should he take his discharge, his place can be immediately supplied, but it is far different in the Straits Settlement, where there is considerable difficulty in maintaining the Force at its prescribed strength, and Commissioners complain sadly of the constant changes that are taking place, rendering all their exertions to keep the Police in an efficient state perfectly nugatory; at the sister Colony of Hong-Kong it has been found requisite, in framing the Law for the regulation of the Police, to require every Inspector, subordinate Officer, and Peon, on entering the Force, to bind himself to serve for the period of five years, previous to the expiration of which he is precluded from resigning his office, or withdrawing himself from the duties thereof, except under the permission of His Excellency the Governor, accorded on a certificate of ill health from the Colonial Surgeon, or on a special representation from the Captain Superintendent. In the event of any further amendment of the Police Act, the introduction of a Clause to the above effect as regards the Police in the Straits would be a great boon to the Settlement.

I have, &c.,

(Sd.) ORFEUR CAVENAGH, Colonel,
Governor.

From the Commissioner of Police, Singapore, to the Secretary to Government, Straits Settlement, Singapore, No. 58, dated Singapore, the 30th July 1862.

SIR,—I HAVE the honor to bring to your notice a nuisance which has existed for years, but which has been represented even so long ago as Governor Butterworth's time; it is Beer Shops, and the great increase of them, over which the Police Authorities have no control, as any person who wishes to open such a shop can do so without a license or permission of any kind. These places are mostly kept by Sailors who have left their ships and served as barmen in some public house, and men who are reported to me as convicts, ticket of leave men from the Australian Colonies.

From the Preamble of Act XLVIII of 1860 it appears evident, that the Legislative Council of India intended that the Police Commissioners of the Straits should be vested with the like power as those of Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay, but unfortunately the important words "and the several Stations of the Settlement of Prince of Wales' Island, Singapore, and Malacca" have been omitted in the 11th and 12th Sections of the Act—This being remedied, the evil complained of could be dealt with, and only properly conducted houses would be licensed. May I request you to be good enough to bring this to the consideration of His Honor the Governor, and I feel sure you will support my suggestion.

I have, &c.,

Government of Bengal.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

THE following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill for regulating Public Conveyances in the Town and Suburbs of Calcutta, with the Bill as revised by the Select Committee, is, by order of the President, published for general information:—

WE, the majority of the Select Committee on the Bill for regulating Public Conveyances in the Town and Suburbs of Calcutta, have the honor to submit our Report, annexing a copy of the Bill as revised by us. The Bill, as it now stands, is very different from the Bill as read in Council, for we have found it necessary to make many alterations and additions, and have in many respects assimilated the Bill to the Act for the Regulation of Hackney Carriages in London, most of the provisions of which, with a little modification, appear to be very suitable to the requirements of Calcutta.

In the Bill as read in Council there was a marked distinction between Carriages that were only to be "registered," and those which were required to be both "registered and licensed." The owners of Carriages which were only registered were to be permitted to fix their own rates of fare, a table of which they were required by the Bill to stick up in their premises. Only those Carriages which were both registered and licensed could be compelled to take a fare according to a scale fixed by Government, and no Carriages needed to be licensed as well as registered except those which stood for hire in streets on the public stands. It appears to us that the owners of the great majority of the Carriages let for hire in this Town would in such case keep their Carriages in their own Stables in order that they might be privileged to charge their own rates of fare, and if they did so the law would be practically perfectly useless. We have deemed it right to do away with the distinction between Carriages registered and licensed, and Carriages registered only, and to make, with certain exceptions which we shall proceed to notice, all Hackney Carriages at all reasonable times accept a fare when required so to do, and charge a uniform rate which we have laid down absolutely in the Bill.

We have divided Hackney Carriages into three classes, and each Carriage will be registered as belonging to one or other of these classes. Carriages of the First Class will be such only as belong to Coach Builders, Hotel-keepers, and Livery Stable-keepers. For Carriages of this class we have thought it undesirable to assign any fixed rate of fare. We think that in their case the matter may well be left to arrangement between the parties. The special reasons which make it necessary to fix the fare for Carriages of an inferior description do not apply with the like force to Carriages of the First Class, which will be very much fewer in number, will be much less frequently used, and will belong to owners whom there can never be any difficulty in finding out.

Carriages of the Second and Third Classes will in fact correspond more nearly with the English Hackney Cabs: and we have accordingly dealt with them as such so far as circumstances seem to admit. When these Carriages ply as Hackney Carriages, strictly so called, they will be allowed to charge only the fares prescribed in the Bill. But the Carriages, of an inferior kind, such as will for the most part compose the Third Class, very frequently ply less as Hackney Carriages than as Stage Carriages or Omnibuses. For a Stage Carriage or Omnibus, plying generally and on no fixed line, it is of course almost an impossibility to fix any equitable rate of fares: we have therefore left the charge to be made in such cases to be fixed by agreement between the employer and employed. While these exceptions are made as to the different classes of Carriage and the fares to be paid for the use of them, the three classes are in almost all other respects subject alike to the general provisions of the Bill.

As to the table of fares which we have prepared, we need only call attention to the fact that it provides rates for time as well as for distance. It will be at the option of the hirer, when he hires the Carriage, to say whether he will pay by time or by distance: but if nothing be said about it when the hiring takes place, the fare will be payable according to time. We think that the rates which we have prescribed are quite high enough to guard the Carriage proprietor from loss by the introduction of fixed rates.

We have made it compulsory on every driver of a Hackney Carriage to take out a license. The license will be a general license to drive Hackney Carriages, and will not be confined to any particular Carriage. But no Hackney Carriage, to whatever class it may belong, may, under any circumstances (except in cases which cannot be possibly avoided), be driven by one who is not a licensed driver. Every driver will have to wear a badge, and will be subject to punishment for misconduct of any kind. All offences and disputes under or arising out of the provisions of the Bill are to be heard and disposed of by the nearest Magistrate. And as questions as to distance may often be raised, we have provided that in case of disputes as to the fare calculated according to the distance, a book of distances signed by the Registering Officer shall be conclusive evidence of all distances therein stated.

We leave it open to the Government to say who shall be the Registering Officer. The Commissioner of Police is perhaps in a better position than any other Officer for fulfilling all the duties of the post.

Provision is made for the delivering up of expired registry plates and tickets as well as of plates and tickets when they are defaced or obliterated: also for the case of their being stolen, and for the use by unlicensed persons of counterfeit plates or tickets intended to resemble true ones. And we have collected together in one Section all the offences for which drivers are liable to a penalty under the Act, assigning a uniform penalty for such offences.

We have somewhat enlarged the provisions regarding Palankeens, assimilating them generally to the rules as to Hackney Carriages, and laying down fixed rates of fares.

Such is the general nature of the alterations we have made: but we think it unnecessary to enter more minutely into their details, as we annex the Bill as amended by us.

No. 396.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE RIGHT HON'BLE THE GOVERNOR GENERAL OF INDIA IN COUNCIL.

MY LORD,—I FORWARD herewith copy of a Royal Warrant dated 21st June last, in the Regulations attached to which it is provided that promotions shall be made in Regiments of the Line in all cases of a Regimental Major being appointed to the Staff.

2. Having communicated with His Royal Highness the General Commanding-in-Chief, and the Secretary of State for War on the subject of the application of the Warrant to Line Regiments serving in India, with reference to the arrangement which was made known to you in my Despatch No. 439 of the 15th November 1861, paragraph 2, I have been informed that His Royal Highness the General Commanding-in-Chief has caused a communication to be addressed to the Commander-in-Chief in India to the effect that no Field Officer of a Regiment serving in India need be seconded on appointment to a staff situation from a Regiment which has more than three Field Officers on its Establishment.

3. I have the satisfaction of informing you that the 2nd paragraph of the Warrant now forwarded which provides for the promotion to the Brevet rank of Lieutenant-Colonel of substantive Majors after the completion of their service on the Staff, will apply to Officers of Her Majesty's Indian Forces other than those of the Staff Corps.

WHEREAS it has been represented to Us that it is expedient to improve the position of Regimental Majors holding Staff Appointments in Our Army, and of Captains and Subalterns of the Cavalry and Infantry employed at the Royal Military College, Sandhurst: It is Our will and pleasure that, from the date of this Our Royal Warrant, Officers of the Regimental Rank of Major serving on Full Pay, who may be appointed to the Staff of Our Army as Assistant Adjutant-Generals or Assistant Quarter-Master-Generals, and Captains and Subalterns of the Cavalry and Infantry serving on Full Pay, who may obtain employment as Professors and Masters, or as Captains of Companies of Gentlemen Cadets, or on the Staff at the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, shall, under the Regulations hereunto annexed, be continued on the strength of their Regiments as Supernumerary Officers, and retain their position and claim to promotion therein, the Majors on the Staff receiving as Regimental pay an amount equal to the half-pay of their rank, in addition to Staff pay, and the Officers employed at the Royal Military College a fixed rate of College pay in lieu of Regimental pay.

It is also Our will and pleasure that Officers of the substantive rank of Major, who have completed their term of service in the Staff Appointments of Assistant Adjutant-General, Assistant Quarter-Master General, Military Secretary, and Assistant Military Secretary, and have performed the duties thereof to the satisfaction of the General Commanding-in-Chief of Our Army and of Our Secretary of State for War, shall, on removal from the Staff, be promoted by Brevet to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel.

It having also been represented to Us that it is expedient to revise the system under which Artillery and Engineer Officers are at present employed in Appointments on the Staff corresponding with these hereinbefore mentioned, as well as in those of Deputy Adjutant-General, Deputy Quarter-Master General and Colonel on the Staff: It is Our further will and pleasure that Regimental Colonels and Lieutenant-Colonels of Artillery and Engineers, who may hereafter be nominated to such appointments, shall be placed on the same footing in respect to pay as Officers of Cavalry and Infantry, and that such Officers, as well as Colonels of Artillery commanding certain Districts or Divisions with the rank of Colonel on the Staff, and Captains and Subalterns of the Royal Artillery and Royal Engineers employed at the Royal Military College and Royal Military Academy, shall be governed by the Regulations hereunto annexed.

Given at Our Court at St. James's, this Twenty-first day of June One thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, in the Twenty-sixth year of Our reign.

By Her Majesty's Command,
G. C. LEWIS.

REGULATIONS REFERRED TO IN THE PRECEDING WARRANT.

1. ON the appointment of a Regimental Major to the Staff, under the provisions of the annexed Royal Warrant, the step will go in the Regiment without purchase; the Cornetcy or Ensigncy vacated by this promotion being filled by purchase, for the benefit of the Reserve Fund.

2. On removal of the Major from the Staff on completion of the regulated period of Staff service, viz., five years, or on the resignation of his appointment on grounds satisfactory to the General Commanding-in-Chief and Secretary of State for War, he will continue as a Supernumerary Officer, to receive as Regimental pay an amount equal to the half-pay of his rank (even though he may then be the senior Major of the Regiment), till a vacancy shall occur into which he can fall.

3. If, however, a vacancy shall happen by the sale of the Lieutenant-Colonelcy, and the Supernumerary Major shall purchase, the existence of the Supernumerary majority will be put an end to by payment from the Reserve Fund of the difference between the amount to be paid by the Major so promoted, and the value of the Lieutenant-Colonelcy.

4. If the Major on the Staff shall die while so employed, no promotion will take place, as the Regiment will already have had the benefit of promotion in the vacancy occasioned by his appointment to the Staff, but any other death vacancy occurring among the Field Officers will be filled, as usual, by promotion without purchase, unless there be a Supernumerary Major whose period of service on the Staff has expired.

5. If the Major, while employed on the Staff, shall succeed to the Lieutenant-Colonelcy of the Regiment, whether by purchase or otherwise, he will be required to relinquish his Staff appointment, and join his Regiment.

6. If the Major, while employed on the Staff, shall hold the rank of Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel, he shall, on attaining the rank of Regimental Lieutenant-Colonel, reckon his Staff service as qualifying service for the rank of Colonel under the five years' rule, as provided in Clause 9 of the Warrant of the 14th October 1858 for Majors and Brevet Lieutenant-Colonels falling into the temporary command of Regiments.

7. If the Major shall resign his Staff appointment on grounds not satisfactory to the General Commanding-in-Chief and Secretary of State for War, or be displaced for misconduct or incapacity, he will cease to be entitled to the benefit of this Regulation, and be placed upon the Half-pay List.

8. Vacancies occasioned by the appointment of Captains and Lieutenants to the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, (comprising the Staff College and Cadet's College), under the provisions of the Warrant, will be filled up in the Regiment, without purchase; the Cornetcy or Ensigncy vacated by promotion, or by appointment to the Royal Military College, being filled by purchase, for the benefit of the Reserve Fund.

9. If a Captain should be promoted to the rank of Major, or a Lieutenant to the rank of Captain, or a Cornet or Ensign to the rank of Lieutenant, by purchase, while at the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, the difference between the sum paid by him, and the full value of the superior Commission will be made up from the Reserve Fund, thereby putting an end to the Supernumerary Commission vacated by him; but a Captain, on attaining the rank of Major, whether by purchase or otherwise, will be required to join his Regiment.

10. On promotion to higher Regimental rank of a Supernumerary Cornet, Ensign, or Lieutenant, whether by purchase or otherwise, he will become a Supernumerary in his new grade, and will carry up with him the Officer next for promotion.

11. The principle in Clauses 2, 4, and 7 of these Regulations, applicable to Majors on the Staff, shall govern the appointments at the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, whatever may be the Regimental rank of the Officer.

12. Regimental Colonels and Lieutenant-Colonels of Artillery and Engineers, employed as Colonels on the Staff, and in other situations on the General Staff referred to in the Warrant, will remain on the Establishment of their Brigades or Corps, but will, in accordance with the practice in other branches of the Service, only be allowed a sum equal to the half-pay of their Regimental rank in addition to Staff pay.

13. Regimental Colonels of Artillery commanding certain Districts or Divisions, with the rank of Colonel on the Staff, will remain on the Establishment of their Brigades receiving such a reduced rate of Staff pay, as, with Regimental full pay, will be equal in the aggregate to the established rate of Regimental half-pay and the full rate of Staff pay.

14. Lieutenant-Colonels of Artillery and Engineers holding the appointment of Deputy Adjutant-General or Deputy Quarter-Master General, may retain their Staff appointments when promoted to the Regimental rank of Colonel, should such promotion happen during the period prescribed for holding their Staff appointments.

15. Lieutenant-Colonels of Artillery and Engineers filling the appointments of Assistant Adjutant-General or Assistant Quarter-Master General, will be required to relinquish their Staff appointment on promotion to the rank of Regimental Colonel, should such promotion take place during their term of Staff service.

16. Captains and Subalterns of the Royal Artillery and Royal Engineers employed as Professors and Masters at the Royal Military College, Sandhurst (comprising the Staff College and Cadet's College), and Royal Military Academy, Woolwich, and as Assistant Inspector of Studies at the latter Institution, will be continued as at present on the strength of their Regiment or Corps, as Supernumeraries to the Establishment, and receive their pay and allowances under the Regulations specially applicable to Supernumerary Captains and Subalterns.

17. Captains of the Royal Artillery and Royal Engineers, if promoted to the rank of Regimental Field Officer during the term of their employment as Professors and Masters, will be required to relinquish their appointments and join their Brigades or Corps.

18. Although the Clauses from 12 to 17 have been framed with special reference to Officers of Artillery and Engineers, it is to be understood that the general provisions of these Regulations are also to be adopted in every way in which they can be made applicable to those two services.

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT.—No. 2099A.—Allahabad, the 27th November 1862.—The following Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India, containing a Resolution by the Governor General in Council regarding the Uncovenanted Service Pension Rules, is published for general information :—

No. 874G.—Read again the Uncovenanted Service Pension Rules, dated 4th January 1831.

RESOLUTION.—The Governor General in Council observes that, under the Uncovenanted Service Pension Rules of 1831, the Head of an Office, when applying for a pension for any of his Subordinates, was required to detail the name, age, &c., of the individual, and the various situations he had held, and the total period of his service, and that in a note to Clause 4 of Rule VIII. it was added - "If the Officer making the "application shall be unable, from his personal or "official knowledge, to supply the whole of the "specific information above required, he shall call "upon the individual in whose favor the applica-"tion may be made to furnish a written statement "(to be verified by his oath or solemn declaration, "if required) on such of the points above noticed "as may be necessary"

On receipt of such applications for pension in the Financial Department, it has been the practice, in accordance with the orders contained in the Hon'ble Court's Despatch. No. 4, dated 26th January 1848, to call on the Civil Pay-Master (formerly Civil Auditor) concerned for a report on the applicant's services.

When the Civil Pay-Master's books bear out the applicant's statement, pension is granted under the rules in proportion to the length of service. But if as often happens, the applicant claims to have rendered long service, than the Civil Pay-Master's books can prove, the practice has been to ask applicant (through his official superior) to explain the discrepancy. Applicant is often able to give a plausible and sufficiently satisfactory explanation of the discrepancy, and in such cases his explanation is accepted and pension granted. Or, frequently, applicant submits certificates signed by his official superiors to prove periods of service about which there is a doubt, and these certificates, if they appear genuine, are accepted as proof of applicant's service at the period to which they refer. But it sometimes happens that the applicant merely re-iterates his former statement, or gives some unsatisfactory explanation of the discrepancy between the Civil Pay-Master's books and his statement. In such cases, it has been usual to call on the applicant, to file an affidavit to the correctness of his statement, and this affidavit has been taken as proof of the correctness of his statement, under the spirit of the rule quoted above.

It is very reasonable, His Excellency in Council observes, that, when the Civil Pay-Master's Office records have been destroyed by fire (as in the Mutiny) the applicant's affidavit, failing other more reliable testimony, should be taken as proof of his statement. If the applicant's statement be correct, it should be susceptible of proof from extant and accessible records; but if such records do not affirm the statement, there is reasonable ground for presuming the statement to be untrue or incorrect. Moreover, there are certain kinds of service (temporary) which do not qualify for pension, so that a man's honest statement of service may be accepted as proof that he is qualified for pension, and yet, had all the facts been known, the service would have been seen to have been temporary and no qualification for pension.

His Excellency in Council therefore considers that the general application of the rule for calling for affidavits is open to abuse, and that the practice relative thereto needs to be revised. His Excellency in Council resolves accordingly that the practice in all such cases shall be as follows :—

An applicant shall be required to state clearly the situations he has filled and the periods during which he filled them.

The Civil Pay-Master shall be required to report whether his Office records bear out applicant's statements. If there be any discrepancy in the statement, the Civil Pay-Master shall detail the apparent causes of that discrepancy, for instance, that the post applicant states he filled during a certain period is shewn by the Civil Pay-Master's Registers to have been filled by another man.

If the Civil Pay-Master's records cannot afford the desired information, reference should be made to the records of the Head of the Office in which applicant states he served during the period in doubt. Or, the applicant shall be required to furnish certificates, such as those given by an Officer to a Subordinate on his leaving an Office, which certificates may, in default of other evidence, be accepted as proof of the service to which they refer, provided, of course, the certificates bear internal evidence of being genuine.

But if the records of the Office in which applicant states that he served during the period in doubt do not afford the desired information, or if the applicant cannot produce certificates, such as those given by an Officer to a Subordinate on his leaving the Office, every such case shall be decided on its own merits, those cases only being treated specially in which an affidavit would be required and accepted quantum valeat.

By Order of the Hon'ble the Lieutenant-Governor, North-Western Provinces,

GEORGE COUPER,
Secy. to Govt., N. W. P.

RULES FOR THE CONDUCT OF BUSINESS.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT presented the Report of the Select Committee appointed to consider all proposals to alter and amend the Rules for the conduct of Business. His Excellency said the Report was founded on the Correspondence with the Secretary of State, which had been laid before the Council. The alterations made by the Committee in the Rules were not very material. Their object was to bring the Rules into closer conformity to the Indian Council's Act under which it was not the intention of Parliament that there should be a Legislative Council separate and distinct from the Ordinary Council of the Governor-General. It was hardly consistent with the design of Parliament that the Rules should provide for definite Sessions or Sittings of the Council for passing Rules and Regulations, and imply that that there would be definite periods when it would be in a state of activity, and definite periods in which it would be in abeyance. It was no doubt convenient that there should be power vested in the Governor-General to summon the Council when special occasion should arise, and the Rule in that respect would not be altered. A short time ago there had been an instance of the necessity of this power. When the High Court was established, it was found that some Legislative action was necessary to enable the Court to exercise its functions. He (the Governor-General), in adjourning the Council in April, had carefully guarded himself against the use of any expressions that implied a prorogation, and thereof there had been no technical difficulty in the way of his summoning the Council for the purpose in view. In the amended Rules the term Session would be omitted altogether, but he (the Governor-General) thought it right to mention that there was no intention of departing from the existing practice of calling the Council together only at times when it would be most convenient for the additional Members to attend. It would be arranged that in the intermediate periods the Legislative measures required by the Government should be prepared for the consideration of the Council. Another alteration in the Rules had reference to the publication of Bills when the Council was not assembled. It was important that some provision of this kind should be made, for as Bills had to be published for three months after their introduction, there would be great inconvenience if no Bill could be published till leave had been given to bring it in, and it had been introduced. But, as the Rule stood, it appeared to give an advantage to Ordinary Members of Council over the other Members.

The authority to authorize the publication of the Bill, without a motion being made for leave to bring it in, would therefore be reserved to the Governor-General alone, but the Council might rest assured that the publication of no Bill would be so authorized if it was of such a character that the Council would be likely to refuse leave to bring it in. With these observations he laid the Report on the Table.

CUSTOMS DUTIES BILL.

The Hon'ble MR MAINE, in the absence of the Hon'ble Mr. Harington, presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend Act XI of 1862 (to alter the Duties of Customs on Goods imported or exported by Sea).

CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE.

The Hon'ble MR. MAINE, in the absence of the Hon'ble Mr. Harington, requested leave to postpone the introduction of the Bill to amend the Code of Civil Procedure.

The Council adjourned.

2. The Opium will be ordinarily offered for sale at an upset price of Rupees 400 per chest, and sold to the highest bidder above that price, except under the circumstances for which provision is made by Clause 12 of the Conditions of Sale.

3. The Sale shall commence at the hour of 11 A. M. of the day fixed by previous Notification, and shall not be continued after the hour of 5 P. M., but if at that hour any of the lots advertized for sale shall remain unsold, the Sale may, at the discretion of the Board of Revenue, be resumed on the next day following (not being Sunday or a Public Holiday) at the hour of 11 A. M., and so on, until the whole of the remaining lots are disposed of, or, if the whole quantity advertised shall not be sold on the day appointed, the Board may dispose of the lots which remain on hand at a future sale.

4. Each lot shall contain five Chests.

5. A Promissory Note, for a sum calculated according to the scale noted in the margin, shall be taken as a deposit on each lot from the purchaser in the Sale Room, and before the lot is registered in the Sale Book, and all such Promissory Notes shall be redeemed on the part of the purchasers at this Office by Bank of Bengal Receipts, or by substitution of other Public Securities of the Bengal Government, on or before 4 o'clock in the afternoon of the fifth day after the sale, or, on the other hand, failing such redemption by the time aforesaid, then the lot or lots for which no Bank of Bengal Receipts or deposit of other Public Securities as aforesaid shall have been delivered in shall be re-sold at such time or times and under such conditions of re-sale as the Board of Revenue shall see fit, and all losses and expenses whatsoever attending such re-sale shall be borne and paid by the defaulters, whilst any profit accruing from such re-sale shall be forfeited to Government.

And so on, „ 100 being added to the Deposit for every additional Rs. 400 bid.

6. The Promissory Notes, taken on the day of Sale under the last mentioned condition, if remaining unredeemed at 4 o'clock of the fifth day following the day of Sale, will be placed in the hands of the Solicitor to the Government for realization on such manner as to him shall seem fit.

7. No tender of Money, Bank of Bengal Receipts, or Public Securities on account of Opium, upon which the prescribed Deposit may not have been made before 4 o'clock of the fifth day following the day of Sale, will be afterwards accepted.

8. The Opium now advertised for sale shall be paid for within fifteen clear days from the the day of Sale, and in case any lots of such Opium shall not be so paid for and adjusted, then the Cash Deposit made under the fifth Condition, or any Public Securities that may have been deposited on account of such lots or chests, shall be forfeited, and the Opium shall be disposed of on account of Government at such time and in such manner as the Board of Revenue shall think fit, and the first purchaser shall futher be required to make good any loss or difference of price between that obtained at the re-sale and the amount at which the Opium was first purchased, forfeiting all advantages that may arise from such re-sale.

9. Purchasers taking out Certificates or Orders for the delivery of Opium, after making full payment as above prescribed, shall have the option of naming the number of lots of their purchase which they may desire to be included in each Certificate or Order; and it is to be clearly understood that the Certificates or Orders so taken out shall be considered final, and not afterwards changeable for other Certificates or orders authorizing the delivery of single lots, or of a different number of lots or chests, whether more or less than the number of lots or chests originally required to be included in each Certificate or Order.

10. No deposit of Public Securities under the fifth of the present Conditions will be received in this Office, except from the party recorded as the purchaser in the Sale Book, or his authorized Agent. The receipt for deposit of Public Securities will be granted only in the name of such purchaser, and the Securities so deposited will be returned when payment in full has been made by the said purchaser or his order.

11. The Officer Superintending the Sale on the part of the Board of Revenue is empowered to reject, at his discretion, the bid of any individual, unless such individual shall, on demand, tender at the time a deposit either in Government of India Notes, Bank of Bengal Receipts, or Government Securities, a sum equal to the amount, for which a Promissory Note would otherwise be taken under the fifth of these Conditions.

12. With a view to prevent fictitious biddings designed to obstruct the Sale, it is hereby notified that the Officer of Government superintending the Sale shall be competent at any time during the Sale to withdraw any unsold lot, and immediately to put it up again for sale at a maximum upset price, diminishing the same gradually until a bid is obtained, and the first bonâ fide bidder for a lot, after it has been offered for sale in the mode here described, shall be held and declared to be the purchaser of the said lot, and the Officer of Government superintending the Sale shall also be competent to dispose in the same manner of as many of the subsequent lots as he may think proper; provided always, that no lot shall be sold below the minimum price of 400 Rupees specified in the second of these Conditions.

13. The purchaser of any lot shall have the option of naming and purchasing in immediate succession at the same price and under the same conditions any number of lots of the same Agency Opium not exceeding altogether twenty-five lots; provided always, that there remain a sufficient number of lots of the Opium to complete the said twenty-five.

14. In the event of any dispute or difference touching or concerning any matter or question arising out of the sale of the Opium included in this Notification, or adjustment of the account thereof, the same shall and may be tried and decided in the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

15. The following papers, together with samples of the Opium for sale, will be exhibited for inspection on the day of Sale, or may be seen previously to that date by application at the Office of the Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue:—

No. 1.—Certificate of the Opium advertized for sale.

No. 2.—Report of the examination of such Opium.

16. The Public are hereby informed that, in providing the investment of the Behar and Benares Opium for the year 1861-62, the same precautions have been taken as those which have been observed during past years, to have the drug procured and set down in a pure state, to have only the prescribed quantity of leaves used in forming the cakes, and to have the due proportion of Opium put into each cake. An account of the weight of the drug when packed at Behar and Benares, and a Statement of the average weight of the chests indiscriminately taken for the purpose of comparison from the despatches on arrival at Calcutta, may be seen, on application, at the Office of the Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue, four chests of Behar and Benares Opium, viz., two of the season's provision under sale, and two of the provision's season will be also shown to the purchasers in the Sale Rooms on the day of Sale, to enable them to judge of the state of preservation of the drug in the chests offered for sale.

17. Any further information respecting weight or quality of the Opium advertized for sale that may be desired by parties connected with the trade will, as heretofore, be furnished to them on application at the Office of the Board of Revenue, but in accordance with established usage, under no circumstances will the Board entertain or recognize any claim to compensation for loss from any alleged deficiency of weight, abstraction of Opium, or adulteration of the drug, which may be preferred on reference to chests after the sale and delivery of the Opium for shipment.

18. It is hereby further notified, that, under the 6th Article of the Convention between Great Britain and France, dated the 7th March 1815, quoted below, the Agents in India of the French Government, or persons duly appointed by them, are entitled to demand, that out of the quantities of Behar and Benares Opium declared as above for sale at the twelve sales of the year 1863, there shall be delivered to them, at the average of the particular Sale or Sales to which the Opium so applied for may belong, a quantity not exceeding in the aggregate 300 chests, and the Agents of the French Government must make requisitions specifying the quantity of Opium required by them at any particular sale within thirty days from the advertizement of such intended sale; provided, however, that the Agents of the French Government may make such requisition for the whole quantity within thirty days from the publication of this Notification. If the Agents of the French Government shall not make the requisitions for Opium within the time abovementioned, the entire quantity of about 39,617 Chests of Behar and Benares as above estimated will be brought to sale in the usual manner; and if they shall make application for a quantity of Opium to be delivered to them out of the quantity advertised for sale at each or any of the twelve Sales abovementioned, but shall not pay for it within the prescribed period of payment, the Government of Bengal reserves to itself the right of disposing of the Opium which the French Authorities may so fail to pay for, either by increasing the quantity reserved at the Sale next ensuing the date of payment, or by selling it at a Sale to be held expressly for the purpose.

Article of the Convention above referred to—

Article 6th.—"With regard to the trade in Opium, it is agreed between the High Contracting Parties that at each of the periodical Sales of that article, there shall be reserved for the French Government and delivered upon requisition duly made by the Agents of His Most Christian Majesty, or by the persons duly appointed by them, the number of chests so applied for, provided that such supply shall not exceed three hundred chests in each year, and the price for the same shall be determined by the average rate at which Opium shall have been sold at every such periodical Sale, it being understood that, if the quantity of Opium applied for at any one time shall not be taken on account of the French Government by the Agents of His Most Christian Majesty within the usual period of delivery, the quantity so applied for shall nevertheless be considered as so much in reduction of the three hundred chests hereinbefore-mentioned. The requisitions for Opium as aforesaid are to be addressed to the Governor General at Calcutta within thirty days after notice of the intended Sales shall have been published in the Government Gazette."

Government of India, Public Works Department.

Improvement of the River Hooghly.

Note by LIEUTENANT-COLONEL R. STRACHEY, R. E., Secretary to Government of India, Public Works Department, on the subject of the improvement of the Hooghly, dated 5th May 1862.

I HAVE lately been in communication with Captain Reddie on this subject. He informs me that the River this year is unusually bad, and is disposed to consider that some gradual deterioration is going on. He has asked me to consider whether it might not be possible to force more water into the River from above during the rains, and thus to increase the force of the currents and to scour out the sands in the lower parts of the River's course. I have also spoken to Mr. Leonard, the Superintending Engineer in charge of the Bengal Navigable Canals and Rivers, a Civil Engineer of much ability, and now conversant with our streams for many years. I concur with Mr. Leonard in thinking that it is a very difficult matter to settle whether there is in truth any secular tendency in the Hooghly to deteriorate; but that it is very easy to arrive at the conclusion that it is now very bad, and that it is high time to do something to try to improve it. I consequently venture to bring the question before the Government in the hope of seeing some actual steps taken towards a practical attempt to make improvements in the River, on which such a vast trade is dependent.

2. I think that Captain Reddie's suggestion of reinforcing the River from the Ganges must be set aside altogether. As Mr. Leonard has very justly remarked to me, we cannot tell what effect it might have in improving the River in its upper parts, but we may be quite certain that it would soon seriously injure the mouth of the River. It is indeed to the action of the tides that we must look for whatever is to be done in the way of actual improvement, and not to the action of the fresh water stream. Those estuaries in the Delta of the Ganges which have no river flowing into them, like the Mutlah, have fine deep water-ways. The silt brought down by the fresh water Rivers is the real enemy to be dealt with, and in proportion as it is small in quantity, the tides keep open a clear and unobstructed channel. Where there is a great mass of silt, the tide in its various stages, in various seasons of the year, distributes the sands and mud in varying positions along the River bottom, causing the dangers and difficulties that are met with by the vessels going up and down.

3. Now an examination of the Map of the Hooghly shews that the general position and character of these dangers has sensibly remained the same for the last eight or ten years at least. There have been considerable changes in the open channels in use by the Ships in the lower part of the River, but even these changes have not been such as to interfere with the justice of the conclusion above stated. Some of the bad places have become absolutely closed for Shipping, and other channels that were worse before have improved. But I feel generally satisfied that the deep channels on the whole have remained tolerably constant in position, and the bad places have equally maintained a certain fixity of character. And this is important, for it gives us ground for a reasonable hope that we may, by artificial means, deepen the shallow parts of the channel, either by an effort made at the beginning once for all, or by what is more likely to be necessary, continued operations to keep down the constant efforts that nature will continue to make to bring things back to their original state. If the deep channels and shallow places were very fluctuating, we should have no confidence in making any attempt to grapple with the difficulties which would be spread over an indefinite length, and when overcome, might suddenly be brought into existence in some other part of the River.

4. Another encouraging feature in the difficulties is that they usually occur in the form of a short shallow between two long and deep reaches. If we had to deal with a shifting bed, bad for great lengths together, the task would be far more formidable; but fortunately this too is not the case. Without saying that it is the universal character of the difficulties of the Hooghly, I am safe in stating to be a common one, that they occur at a bend of the stream, where the deep water channel is thrown over from one bank to the other. One such difficulty is at Moyapoor, 8 or 10 miles below Calcutta.

5. Now, considering the strong run of the tides in the Hooghly, I think that a system which Captain Reddie recommends might usefully be tried, with some modifications, to cut through such a shoal as that above noticed. He suggests the use of a large Rake, dragged along the River bottom by a Steamer, to stir up the silt, the force of the current carrying it off when once lifted. It might probably be better to have some sort of roller with teeth to throw the silt upwards into the current; but the principle would be identical.

6. What I would now suggest is, that Captain Reddie should be authorized to take up this idea in a definite way, with a view to bringing forward a project for fitting up a Steamer in the manner suggested, to test the practicability of dealing with these shallows. I would begin with that nearest to Calcutta at Moyapoor. It is not a serious danger, but it is well within reach. The work could be thoroughly watched, and any modifications found necessary in working the Apparatus—and doubtless many would be found desirable—could at once be attended to. If as may be hoped, the operation was found to be practicable, and if a sensible improvement in the depth of the water was found to be attainable, the operation might be attempted at some of the more serious barriers. Meantime, attention would gradually be directed to the subject generally, and the best mode of dealing with other parts of the River might be considered, for it is not to be understood that success could be ensured by this means alone.

7. Mr. Leonard agrees with me in recommending this course, and Captain Reddie also. It is, I think, important to make some actual attempt; to deal with some definite portion of the matter in hand thus in an experimental and tentative way; and to avoid running on into discussions as to the probable or possible condition of the River now, compared to what it was half a century ago, or attempting to bring into harmony the thousand discordant opinions that will be given as to the causes of what we have as facts, or as to the best and most comprehensive way of dealing with the subject as a whole. Here we have a distinct proposal, to attempt to remove a certain definite obstacle, in a precise manner. The trial may, I should trust, be made in a few months, and without any serious expense, and what is more important, without of necessity involving the Government in any further outlay if it should unfortunately prove a failure.

8. The object is one of so much importance that I feel satisfied that the Government will not be disposed to withhold the necessary funds if assured that the means proposed are likely to produce a useful result; and personally I feel no hesitation in accepting the responsibility of recommending the experiment to be made as early as practicable.

Resolution by the Government of India, Public Works Department, dated 10th May 1862.

Improvement of the Hooghly.

Read a Note by Secretary in the Public Works Department, dated 5th May 1862.

Resolution.—The Secretary in this Department has submitted a proposal that an experiment should be made, on a small and definite scale, to test the practicability of deepening the shallows of the River Hooghly by artificial means.

2. His Excellency in Council, though satisfied of the great importance of the object in view, yet has some doubts of the ultimate success of such operations, except at great and continued cost. His Excellency therefore, though disposed to permit an experiment, as suggested, if it can be carried out at a moderate expense, desires that it should be made with great caution, on a small scale, and on a definite Plan and Estimate. On the receipt of this preliminary information, which should be obtained in communication with the Marine Department, the Governor General in Council will be in a position to pass final orders on the subject.

3. It is therefore ordered that a copy of this Resolution and of the Secretary's Note be sent to the Marine Department, with a request that a Project and Estimate be prepared, in communication with Mr. Leonard, Superintending Engineer, South-Eastern Circle, for carrying out the contemplated experiment on the Hooghly. The project should include a Design for the Dredging or Racking Apparatus, and the mode of its application to any suitable vessel that may be available. Also a proposal to operate on some one specific bank in the Hooghly, selected for its convenience, and its fitness for testing the action of the Apparatus. The Estimate should include not only the cost of fitting up the Apparatus, but also the expense of working it for some definite period, calculated to be sufficient to give a practical test of the success or failure of the experiment. It must be distinctly understood that the cost of the whole must be kept within very moderate bounds.

4. The Project and Estimate may most conveniently be first considered in the Marine Department, and then transferred for final orders in the Public Works Department by which the funds will be provided.

5. Ordered also, that a copy of the papers be sent to the Bengal Government for information, and with a request that Mr. Leonard, Superintending Engineer, South-Eastern Circle, may put himself in communication with the Marine Department to assist in carrying out the intentions of the Government of India in the manner indicated.

From Lieutenant-Colonel J. P. Beadle, Officiating Secretary to Government of Bengal, in the Public Works Department, to Secretary to Government of India, Public Works Department, dated 10th June 1862.

With advertence to Resolution on the subject of the "improvement of the Hooghly," communicated in the Proceedings of the Right Hon'ble the Governor General in Council, No. 1761, dated the 10th ultimo, I am instructed by the Lieutenant-Governor to state that the papers, together with a Memorandum by the Chief Engineer, of which a copy is herewith enclosed, were duly communicated to Mr. Leonard for his information and guidance, in respect to the 5th paragraph of the Resolution. The Lieutenant-Governor takes much interest in the success of the contemplated experiment, and is anxious to promote it to the utmost of his power, but His Honor does not clearly understand whether it is the wish of the Governor General in Council that the Project and Estimate for carrying it out, including the Design and application of the Apparatus, and the selection of a specific bank in the River to be operated on, are to be submitted to the Government of Bengal in the first instance, or whether it is desired that the operations should be carried on under the direct supervision of the Government of India, and that the Local Government should not interfere in the matter.

P. S.—A communication in manuscript from the Superintending Engineer, South-Eastern Circle, No. 266 of the 6th June, with enclosures just received, is forwarded for information, and it is requested that it may be returned when done with.

Office Memorandum by Lieutenant-Colonel J. P. Beadle, Officiating Chief Engineer, Bengal, dated 17th May 1862.

In passing on to the Superintending Engineer the accompanying papers on the subject of improving the Hooghly, the undersigned would recommend that the Appendix to Ellet on the Mississipi, pages 348 to 352, which describes his plan of deepening the bar, by stirring up the mud, should be considered. Although there may not be the same opposing under-current in the Hooghly that there is over the bar at the mouth of the Mississipi, still there are extraodinary under-currents, and to do much good, the deposit removed should be brought as near as possible to the surface, and Ellet's plan of attaching to a Steam Tug tubes of iron open at both ends, fixed in an inclined position towards the bow of the boat, so that the lower and forward end should be sunk deep enough to cut into the soft bottom of a shoal, whilst the silt is forced out of the upper end, would answer very well for the purpose of deepening a channel over a shoal in the Hooghly.

2. The undersigned believes that the present bad state of the Hooghly is casual, and not produced by any gradual deterioration of the River; he would feel obliged by the Superintending Engineer making a careful enquiry into the force of the tides during the present monsoon, as compared with the usual conditions of the monsoon.

3. We have in the Hooghly a tidal basin filled during the rains by many fresh water rivers, having their sources in the hills, and bearing down much gravel and sand with a light fertilising mud.

Extraordinary flood seasons bring down extraordinary deposits. The accumulated sands and mud of consecutive seasons of light flood choke the beds of the rivers and advance towards the tidal basin with a slow progress; an extraordinary flood season expels these accumulations, and sweeps them down to the basin where the deposits must remain till dispersed by the action of the tides, or more correctly, by the strong sweeping out action of the ebb, and when a season of extraordinary floods is followed by an unusually broken and mild monsoon; when the tidal wave, owing to the absence of the usual steady heading up winds, comes feebly and with less than usual force to act upon and to disperse unusually large amounts of fresh water deposits, then the phenomenon of a River with unusually clogged channels may be expected to present itself. The undersigned will feel much obliged if the Superintending Engineer, associated with Captain Reddie, will acquire correct information as to the circumstances of the tidal action this year, for if the tidal action should be less than usual, there would be nothing in the present state of the River to cause alarm for the future, although there may be much present inconvenience.

4. There is no doubt that to a certain extent the Hooghly must have deteriorated, because the spread of the spring tides has been prevented over great areas of land, by embanking and also by damming up khals, and in direct proportions the entrance of the tide is restricted, the reflux is weakened, and it is the sweep of the ebb tides which scours the channels.

By embanking the fresh water River, the deposits, which would have spread over the lands liable to be inundated, are restricted to the River beds, and have to be forced down the beds into the Hooghly, so that the operations of the Embankment Department have had a two-fold effect for the deterioration of the Hooghly River, by increasing the deposits brought into it, and by decreasing the volume of the tide which has to sweep them out into the sea. These causes however and the effect are comparatively small, and not very noticeable in ordinary seasons. It requires extraordinary seasons like the late floods, and the present monsoon, to invest the state of the River with the gloomy appearance of having become much worse.

5. The undersigned would also urge that a careful Chart should be made of the Roopnarain, which is a great tidal basin connected with the Hooghly by a neck, set down in Rennall's Map, as "falsely called the old Ganges." The neck to the undersigned's knowledge has been very much shortened, and the channel of the Hooghly has been enlarged below Hooghly Point. The cuttings into the bank above, and below the Roopnarain, and the extent to which the neck has been shortened, and the channel into the Roopnarain altered, should be examined and compared with the facts recorded in Lloyd's Chart of the Hooghly. A cursory glance at the Map will shew how greatly the Roopnarain basin differs from the tidal mouths of the other Rivers falling into the Hooghly, and that the breaking through of the neck must derange the regimen of the Hooghly.

6. These observations are merely made with a view to promote enquiry.

From H. Leonard, Esq., c. e., Superintending Engineer, South-Eastern Circle, to Officiating Chief Engineer and Secretary to Government of Bengal, in the Public Works Department, dated 6th June 1862.

I submit copy of a Note and Sketch, which I sent Captain Reddie this day, with reference to the instructions received with Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bengal's No. 2340 of 20th ultimo.

2. I may remark that I did not write this Note before, because the Marine Department took up the matter very promptly, and I have had several interviews with their Engineer about it, but I think the scale on which the experiment is going to be made is so poor and so unlikely to result in any perceptible benefit, that I venture to put my opinion before you, so that I may not be considered satisfied with, though agreeing to, what is being done.

Note by H. Leonard, Esq., c. e, Superintending Engineer, South-Eastern Circle, on the subject of the Hooghly Improvements, dated 6th June 1862.

Mr. Sandeman called on me and shewed me a Machine designed by him; it consisted of a kind of twin boat, with an opening in the centre of about 6 feet, having on board a 30-horse power engine; his plan was to drop a ladder through this opening, the end of the ladder carried a roller, or barrel, with a series of projecting teeth. The barrel was to be made to revolve by two tumblers and an endless chain, as in ordinary Steam Dredger. The upper tumbler was to be driven by the engine at half the speed of the engine crank.

2. The barrel was, I think, 6 feet diameter, 6 feet wide, and to make about six revolutions per minute, and the ladder was long enough to work in 12 feet of water.

3. The boat was to be moved on by winding up to an anchor cast out ahead, or by slacking out from an anchor as the tide suited.

4. I at first objected to agree to this arrangement—

1*st*.—Because it was too slow, and on too small a scale, to make any perceptible impression on shoals, such as are to be dealt with in the Hooghly.

2*nd*.—Because the depth to which the ladder could work would not admit of a trial being made on an actual impediment in the river, but on some bank out of the line of the channel.

5. I considered that the power, or want of power, of the stream to carry away, and keep away, the sand stirred up in such a position, would be no fair test of the power of the stream in the actual line of channel; there seems good ground for believing that the stream in the main channel would be much more effective than it would be on any bank away from it, so the trial would not be a fair one.

6. Understanding, however, from Colonel Strachey, during an accidental conversation I had with him, that he thought the arrangement might answer, and that there was no hope of getting a more powerful Steamer, which was at first talked of for doing the work, and on learning also that the desire was to do something, even though on a poor scale, I agreed with Mr. Sandeman to join in approval that a trial should be made with the Machine prepared by him, provided that the ladder be so lengthened that the trial may be made in the actual channel on the nearest shallow, so I presume the work is being proceeded with.

7. But though I agree so far, for the sake of meeting the wishes of others, that something should be done, I do not at all agree that the arrangement is the best to be tried, or that it is on a scale at all worthy of the importance of the experiment.

8. Suppose the Machine to do all Mr. Sandeman hopes for it, his calculation is 360 feet forward per hour; working say eight hours a day, (it could not work at all at high water,) the result would be a surface of sand of 2,840 feet long by 6 feet wide, say=17,000 superficial feet per day stirred up. This is a high calculation, now the smallest shoal on the river is that near Moyapoor. It is as well as I can make it out from the Map, about 3,000 feet long, the channel above and below about 1,500 feet wide. It would, I suppose, be necessary to deepen the shoal, if it can be done to about the same width as the deep channel above and below, that is 1,500 feet, the area of the shoal is then 4,500,000 superficial feet, so it would take the Machine nearly nine months to go once over the shoal.

9. This seems to me toying with the question.

10. The arrangement of barrel with projecting teeth revolving on its axis, and moving on as it revolves, seems the best arrangement that can be adopted for stirring up sand; it does it with the least expenditure of labor, and if the teeth be well arranged, it stirs it up completely over the whole surface.

11. I do not think it is of much advantage to stir up the sand to any great depth; better loosen up the top, say 4 inches to 6 inches deep, do it frequently, and so keep it loose and in motion, that the rubbing of the under-current may roll it away. I think very much more is done by rolling the sand along the bottom than by carrying it away in suspension. Indeed, I have seen it very distinctly in a clear stream, stir up the sand, it will rise in the water for a very short time, then settle down and roll along the bottom as long as the stream is strong enough to move it.

12. The arrangement of Machine, I think, best suited for the Hooghly work, is a set of skeleton barrels of about five feet diameter, with flat iron teeth projecting six inches, and six inches apart every way. I would have the barrel skeleton and of wrought-iron, so as to present as little resistance to the movement of the vessel or the stream as possible.

13. I do not think it would require great power to draw two barrels aft of the vessel of about the width of her beam, and two forward of the paddles of about ten feet wide each. The arrangement of four I think good, as the vessel, when going against the stream, could not pull at all as much as when going with the stream; when going against the stream, the two abreast or the two aft, as was found most convenient, could be wound up to relieve the vessel.

14. I annex a Sketch of the Machine I have in view, which will explain all the main features of it; it cannot be very expensive.

15. No doubt there will be more difficulty in steering a vessel drawing the Machine than if free of it, but it is impossible to put any such arrangement to a vessel without encumbering her to some extent.

16. If the Sitang be fitted up as sketched, she would, I hope, run three miles an hour against tide, with two of the barrels down, and seven miles with tide, with all four down, that is an average of five miles an hour, or say, including turning and unexpected difficulty, five times per hour over the Moyapoor shoals; working ten hours per day, (she could work in any depth of water, high tide or low tide,) she could run fifty times a day over the shoal. Taking an average width of barrels of 30 feet, she would do $30 \times 3{,}000 \times 50 = 45{,}00{,}000$ superficial feet each day, or once over the whole surface of the shoal, instead of spending eight or nine months at it, by this means we might hope to make some progress.

17. Of course, it is known exactly how many barrels the Steamer will tow, or how fast she will tow them, and many unforeseen difficulties will arise in carrying out the work, but these are the points for an Engineer to overcome, which I hope may be overcome.

18. I may mention that a Steamer was fitted up for the Bhaugiruttee last year with harrows, hung and towed in the same way as the Sketch shows for the aft barrels, and as far as the arrangement of towing and winding up, it acted very well, but the cutting through the sand with the harrow teeth anchored the Steamer against stream; hence I have adopted the barrels.

19. It was found a barrel covering the same surface as a harrow only took a quarter inch the power to draw it, and the barrels threw up the sand better than the harrow. It is the plan on which some ground digging machines were made at home.

Actg. Supdt., Dock Yard.

From LIEUTENANT-COLONEL R. STRACHEY, R. E., Secretary to Government of India, Public Works Department, to Officiating Secretary to Government of Bengal, in the Public Works Department, dated 17th November 1862.

WITH reference to your letter No. 2620, dated 10th June last, I am directed to forward copy of a letter* from the Controller of Marine Affairs, and its enclosed Estimates, amounting, respectively, to Rupees 9,512-5, for fitting up the Steamer Sitang as a Dredger, and Rupees 4,912-10-8, the probable monthly expense of Establishments for working that vessel during its employment on the work of improving the River Hooghly.

* No. 5212, dated 3rd October 1862.

Nine thousand five hundred and twelve Rupees and five annas.

Four thousand nine hundred and twelve Rupees, ten annas, and eight pie.

2. The Governor General in Council sanctions the Estimate for fitting up the Sitang, and will provide the necessary funds from the reserve at the disposal of this Department; but it is remarked that the charges for stores appear to be very high, and that no more than the fair market value of the materials should be charged to the Public Works Department. Further, these charges will probably only be in account, and will not affect the Budget disbursement.

3. As to the Establishment proposed for working the vessel, it will probably be sufficient to allow the experiment to be made for one or two months, closely watching its progress, and reducing the charge as much as is practicable.

4. On a report of the sum required for transfer to the credit of the Bengal Government on these accounts, the necessary further orders will be issued in this Department.

5. In conclusion, I am to explain that the preliminary steps in this matter have been taken by the Government of India only with a view to expediting the commencement of an experiment in the direction contemplated, and that it has throughout been the intention of His Excellency in Council to leave its further management in the hands of the Lieutenant-Governor, who will doubtless be impressed with the great importance of seeing that a fair trial is given to these operations, which, if successful, will be of the greatest importance to the commercial interests of Calcutta. At the same time it is necessary to remind the Lieutenant-Governor that great caution will be requisite to prevent the Government from being committed to any outlay by permitting what is now intended merely as an experiment to run on into more serious operations until the practical question is satisfactorily solved, and a clear financial view taken of the whole matter.

6. The original papers received with your letter No. 2620, dated 10th June last, are herewith returned.

THE following Report of a Select Committee was presented to the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 10th December 1862 :—

HOME DEPARTMENT.

LEGISLATIVE.

WE, the undersigned, the Members of the Select Committee of the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations, to whom the Bill relating to Breaches of Contract committed in bad faith was referred, have the honor to report that we have considered this measure in connection with the Despatch addressed on the 9th of June 1862 by the Secretary of State for India to the Government of India.

2. The Committee have not attempted to determine the exact effect of that Despatch on their deliberations or on those of the Council, for they consider that the opinion expressed on a former occasion by the Honorable the present Chief Justice of Bengal, in reference to a similar communication, may be adopted in the present instance, and that, under the circumstances, it could be neither for the public interest, nor for the dignity of the Council, that a project of Law should be proceeded with which, if passed, would certainly be annulled in a few months.

3. The Secretary of State, in the last paragraph of his Despatch, has expressed a doubt whether any legislative interference in commercial transactions, with the view of coercing one of the parties to a contract, can be productive of good. The Committee, have however, been of opinion that this doubt ought not to prevent them from considering whether the Bill is susceptible of such modifications as would be likely to remove or diminish the probability of its ultimate disallowance.

4. After attentive examination of the Bill and of the Despatch, the Select Committee have come to the conclusion that no modification of the Bill, short of its complete transformation into a measure of a different kind, would neutralize the objections of the Secretary of State for India. Not to mention passages of his Despatch in which the Secretary of State takes exception to the sole machinery by which the Law could be carried into effect, the Committee have especially directed their attention to the language of the 9th paragraph, in which he appears to object to any inquiry into the motives and intentions of the defendant in a suit for Breach of Contract, and into "the reasonableness or otherwise of the numberless excuses which may be urged for failing to fulfil the engagement." Such an inquiry, as it seems to the Committee, is imperatively required by the principle of the Bill before them.

5. The Select Committee beg therefore to recommend the withdrawal of the Bill.

6. They have not thought fit to advert to the question whether any further legislation on the subject is necessary or possible since they are of opinion that such legislation, if attempted, must take a form distinct from that assumed by the measure which has been referred to them.

The 8th December 1862.

THE following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 10th December 1862, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in eight weeks :—

No. 57 OF 1862.

A Bill to amend the Code of Civil Procedure.

Preamble.

WHEREAS the Code of Civil Procedure requires that Appeals from decisions or orders to the Sudder Court shall ordinarily be heard and determined by two or more Judges of the said Court; and whereas in the Territories, not subject to the general Regulations, the Highest Civil Courts of Appeal, which are declared by Section 386 of Act VIII of 1859, to be included in the expression "Sudder Court" in any part of the said Territories to which the said Code may be extended, generally consist of only a single Judge, and it is expedient to make provision for the powers to be exercised by such single Judge in hearing Appeals from decisions and orders, or in proceedings relating to any other matter which may be brought before him; It is enacted as follows :—

In Non-Regulation Provinces the Highest Civil Court of Appeal to have the powers of the Sudder Court.

I. When in any part of the British Territories in India to which the Code of Civil Procedure has been or shall be extended under the provisions of Section 385 of the said Code, or of Section 39 of Act XXIII of 1861 (amending the said Code), the Highest Civil Court of Appeal consists of a single Judge, such Judge shall have all the powers vested by such Code in two or more Judges of the Sudder Court.

No order or proceeding of such Court to be void because passed or held by a single Judge.

II. No order passed by or proceeding held before the single Judge of any such Highest Civil Court of Appeal, subsequent to the extension of the Code of Civil Procedure to such part of the British Territories in India, shall be deemed invalid, or be liable to be questioned on the ground that such order or proceeding was passed by or held before a single Judge.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

SECTION 23, Act XXIII of 1861 provides that Appeals to the Sudder Court shall be heard and determined by two or more Judges of the said Court, and in Section 386, Act VIII of 1859, it is declared, that in any part of the British Territories in India, to which the said Act may be extended, the expression "Sudder Court" shall be deemed to include the Highest Civil Court of Appeal in such part of the said Territories, but neither of these two enactments contains any provision in respect to the powers to be exercised by the Judges of the Highest Civil Courts in Provinces not subject to the general Regulations of Bengal, Madras, and Bombay, when such Courts consist, as is invariably the case, of single Judges, and in the absence of any such provision a doubt has arisen whether, with reference to the requirement to be found in the more recent Statute as to the number of Judges necessary to hear and determine Appeals from decisions or orders to the Sudder Court, the construction given to the words "Sudder Court" in the Code of Civil Procedure can be held to empower the Judges of the Highest Civil Courts of Appeal in the Non-Regulation Provinces, to which that construction applies, singly to hear and determine the Appeals which come before their Courts from the decisions and orders of the Courts subordinate to them. The object of the first Section of the Bill is to remove the doubt which is entertained upon the point. A similar Section is contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure.

The second Section has been added to the Bill to prevent the legality of the decisions and orders already passed by the Judges of the Highest Civil Courts of Appeal in the Provinces, not subject to the general Regulations as above, from being questioned on the ground of their having been passed by single Judges without express authority of law, and to give validity to all such decisions and orders.

THE following Report of a Select Committee was presented to the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 10th December 1862 :—

HOME DEPARTMENT.

LEGISLATIVE.

WE, the undersigned, the Members of the Select Committee of the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purposes of making Laws and Regulations, to whom the Bill relating to Breaches of Contract committed in bad faith was referred, have the honor to report that we have considered this measure in connection with the Despatch addressed on the 9th of June 1862 by the Secretary of State for India to the Government of India.

2. The Committee have not attempted to determine the exact effect of that Despatch on their deliberations or on those of the Council, for they consider that the opinion expressed on a former occasion by the Honorable the present Chief Justice of Bengal, in reference to a similar communication, may be adopted in the present instance, and that, under the circumstances, it could be neither for the public interest, nor for the dignity of the Council, that a project of Law should be proceeded with which, if passed, would certainly be annulled in a few months.

3. The Secretary of State, in the last paragraph of his Despatch, has expressed a doubt whether any legislative interference in commercial transactions, with the view of coercing one of the parties to a contract, can be productive of good The Committee, have however, been of opinion that this doubt ought not to prevent them from considering whether the Bill is susceptible of such modifications as would be likely to remove or diminish the probability of its ultimate disallowance.

4. After attentive examination of the Bill and of the Despatch, the Select Committee have come to the conclusion that no modification of the Bill, short of its complete transformation into a measure of a different kind, would neutralize the objections of the Secretary of State for India. Not to mention passages of his Despatch in which the Secretary of State takes exception to the sole machinery by which the Law could be carried into effect, the Committee have especially directed their attention to the language of the 9th paragraph, in which he appears to object to any inquiry into the motives and intentions of the defendant in a suit for Breach of Contract, and into "the reasonableness or otherwise of the numberless excuses which may be urged for failing to fulfil the engagement." Such an inquiry, as it seems to the Committee, is imperatively required by the principle of the Bill before them.

5. The Select Committee beg therefore to recommend the withdrawal of the Bill.

6. They have not thought fit to advert to the question whether any further legislation on the subject is necessary or possible since they are of opinion that such legislation, if attempted, must take a form distinct from that assumed by the measure which has been referred to them.

The 8th December 1862.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 10th December 1862, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in eight weeks :—

No. 57 of 1862.

A Bill to amend the Code of Civil Procedure.

Preamble.

Whereas the Code of Civil Procedure requires that Appeals from decisions or orders to the Sudder Court shall ordinarily be heard and determined by two or more Judges of the said Court; and whereas in the Territories, not subject to the general Regulations, the Highest Civil Courts of Appeal, which are declared by Section 336 of Act VIII of 1859, to be included in the expression "Sudder Court" in any part of the said Territories to which the said Code may be extended, generally consist of only a single Judge, and it is expedient to make provision for the powers to be exercised by such single Judge in hearing Appeals from decisions and orders, or in proceedings relating to any other matter which may be brought before him; It is enacted as follows :—

In Non-Regulation Provinces the Highest Civil Court of Appeal to have the powers of the Sudder Court.

I. When in any part of the British Territories in India to which the Code of Civil Procedure has been or shall be extended under the provisions of Section 385 of the said Code, or of Section 39 of Act XXIII of 1861 (amending the said Code), the Highest Civil Court of Appeal consists of a single Judge, such Judge shall have all the powers vested by such Code in two or more Judges of the Sudder Court.

No order or proceeding of such Court to be void because passed or held by a single Judge.

II. No order passed by or proceeding held before the single Judge of any such Highest Civil Court of Appeal, subsequent to the extension of the Code of Civil Procedure to such part of the British Territories in India, shall be deemed invalid, or be liable to be questioned on the ground that such order or proceeding was passed by or held before a single Judge.

Statement of Objects and Reasons.

Section 23, Act XXIII of 1861 provides that Appeals to the Sudder Court shall be heard and determined by two or more Judges of the said Court, and in Section 386, Act VIII of 1859, it is declared, that in any part of the British Territories in India, to which the said Act may be extended, the expression "Sudder Court" shall be deemed to include the Highest Civil Court of Appeal in such part of the said Territories, but neither of these two enactments contains any provision in respect to the powers to be exercised by the Judges of the Highest Civil Courts in Provinces not subject to the general Regulations of Bengal, Madras, and Bombay, when such Courts consist, as is invariably the case, of single Judges, and in the absence of any such provision a doubt has arisen whether, with reference to the requirement to be found in the more recent Statute as to the number of Judges necessary to hear and determine Appeals from decisions or orders to the Sudder Court, the construction given to the words "Sudder Court" in the Code of Civil Procedure can be held to empower the Judges of the Highest Civil Courts of Appeal in the Non-Regulation Provinces, to which that construction applies, singly to hear and determine the Appeals which come before their Courts from the decisions and orders of the Courts subordinate to them. The object of the first Section of the Bill is to remove the doubt which is entertained upon the point. A similar Section is contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure.

The second Section has been added to the Bill to prevent the legality of the decisions and orders already passed by the Judges of the Highest Civil Courts of Appeal in the Provinces, not subject to the general Regulations as above, from being questioned on the ground of their having been passed by single Judges without express authority of law, and to give validity to all such decisions and orders.

14.	Seonee	,, ...
15.	Saugor	,, ...
16.	Baitool	,, ...
17.	Dumoh	,, ...

If, for special reasons in particular localities, lower maximum areas should be determined upon, due notice will be given.

Rule III.—Every lot shall be compact and shall include no more than one tract of land in a ring fence. No lot will be sold unless previously surveyed and demarcated. The Survey need only be in sufficient detail to ensure the ready identification of the boundaries of the lot, and to ascertain its gross area. If, on completion of the Survey, it shall appear that the area of the lot applied for exceeds the prescribed maximum, the excess shall be excluded.

Rule IV.—Applications for the purchase of waste land shall be made to the Deputy Commissioner of the District, and every application shall contain the following particulars:—

1st.—The estimated area of the land applied for.

2nd.—The situation of the land and its boundaries, as accurately as can be ascertained.

RULE V.—If the Deputy Commissioner is able to satisfy himself that the land applied for is available for purchase under Rule I., and within the conditions prescribed in Rules II. and III., and if the land shall have been previously surveyed and demarcated, he shall advertise the lot for sale, on a given day, at an upset price as hereinafter specified. The advertisement shall be published in both the English language and the Vernacular of the District in the Deputy Commissioner's Office; in the Offices of the Tehseeldars of the District, and in the Police Station, within the limits of which the land may be situated.

RULE VI.—If the Deputy Commissioner be satisfied as above, and if the land have not been surveyed, he shall cause it to be surveyed and its boundaries demarcated, the estimated cost of such survey and demarcation being first deposited by the applicant. On the completion of the Survey, the advertisement of sale shall be published as above.

RULE VII.—The day of sale to be named in the advertisement shall not be less than thirty days from the date of publication of the advertisement of sale in the Office of the Deputy Commissioner. The sale shall be held at the Deputy Commissioner's Office. The sale may be postponed, if, in the Deputy Commissioner's judgment, it be necessary; due notice being always given of the date on which the sale will be held.

RULE VIII.—If before the day of sale no claim of proprietory, or occupative right in the land be preferred, the lot shall be sold by Auction to the highest bidder above the upset price, or to the applicant at the upset price, if there be no higher bid.

RULE IX.—The upset price of the lands to be sold will ordinarily be as follows; but in special cases the Deputy Commissioner, with the sanction of the Commissioner, may put a higher upset price on any lot, provided that in no case shall the upset price exceed four times the ordinary rates:—

(1.) In the Raepore, Belaspore, and Mundla Districts, 8 annas per acre.

(2.) In the Sumbulpore and Upper Godavery Districts, 1 Rupee per acre.

(3.) In the Hoshungabad, Nagpore, Chanda, Bhundara, Wurda, Jubbulpore, Nursingpore, Chindwarra, Seonee, Saugor, Baitool, and Dumoh Districts, Rupees 2-8 per acre.

The upset price will be calculated on the whole area of the lot, without any deduction on any account whatever.

RULE X.—On payment of one-tenth of the purchase money, and of all expenses of survey, demarcation, advertisement and sale, the purchaser shall receive a Deed (in a form which will hereafter be issued by the Chief Commissioner) signed by the Deputy Commissioner, conveying to him the lot, in full hereditary and transferable proprietary right, free for ever from all demand on account of Land Revenue; but subject, nevertheless, to all general taxes and local rates imposed by Law or by the Local Government, and to any other claim, whether of the Government or otherwise, that may have been, or may hereafter be established in any Court of competent jurisdiction.

RULE XI.—If, before the day of sale, a claim of proprietory or occupative right in any part of the land be preferred, the Deputy Commissioner shall investigate the claim; and if satisfied that it is groundless, shall reject it and proceed with the sale.

RULE XII.—If on investigation any such claim should appear to be well grounded, the Deputy Commissioner may either reject the application for purchase of the lands, or refer it for the orders of the Commissioner. In the former case, the applicant may appeal to the Commissioner.

RULE XIII.—The Commissioner may direct the Deputy Commissioner either to reject the application, or to proceed with the sale of the land, either unreservedly, or on the conditions prescribed in Rule X.; or, if any claim to right of proprietorship, occupancy, or use in any part of the lands be established to the satisfaction of the Commissioner, with a special reservation of such right, or exclusive of the area in which such right exists. If the application for purchase of the land be rejected, the amount deposited as cost of Survey, after deduction of any expenses which may have been incurred in survey, demarcation, advertisement, or any other way incident to the transaction will be forfeited or refunded as the Deputy Commissioner or Commissioner may direct according to the circumstances of the case.

RULE XIV.—On being put in possession of the lot, the purchaser shall be bound to erect as many substantial boundary marks of masonry as the Deputy Commissioner may think necessary, provided it be not made incumbent on the purchaser to erect more than at the rate of four marks per mile of boundary line.

RULE XV.—If the land be purchased by any person other than the applicant, the estimated cost of the survey deposited by the applicant, under Rule VI., shall be returned to him, and the actual cost of survey and demarcation shall be charged against the purchaser, in addition to the price of the land.

RULE XVI.—The purchaser may, if he choose, pay the whole of the purchase money when the lot is sold, or the Deed delivered to him. Or, if he choose, he may pay a portion, not being less than 10 per cent. at the time of sale, and the remainder in instalments at any future time, not being more than ten years from the date of sale. In the latter case, simple interest at the rate of 10 per cent. a year will be charged on the unpaid portion of the purchase money, and the whole lot will remain hypothecated as security for the full discharge of the amount, including principal and interest, and be liable to sale by order of the Deputy Commissioner, if the said amount of either principal or interest be not paid within the stipulated period. Should such sale take place the defaulter will have no claim for improvements against the Government or on any other account, except for the one-tenth of the purchase money paid; and for that only in the event of the amount realized at the second sale, at least equaling the amount of the original sale, plus any interest due to Government by the original purchaser on the unpaid portion of the purchase money.

RULE XVII.—If the purchaser fails to pay one tenth of the purchase money, and all other expenses within three months from the day of sale, the lot will be put up to sale again on the same conditions as before, and sold at the risk of the first purchaser, whose deposit will also be forfeited.

RULE XVIII.—No sale of waste lands once made by a Deputy Commissioner in conformity with these Rules will be disturbed by any higher executive authority; but all such sales shall be immediately reported to the Supreme Government.

RULE XIX.—Reserves of grazing and forest land, of land for the growth of firewood near Towns and Stations, of building sites, parks, recreation grounds, of tracts possessing mineral wealth, stone quarries, and the like, and of land required for other special purposes, are not to be sold under these Rules without the express sanction of the Chief Commissioner. A list of these lands is under preparation, and will be published hereafter in the Calcutta Gazette.

RULE XX.—Lands for the purchase of which application has been made under the Resolution of the 17th October 1861, will, if such application were duly registered, be dealt with in accordance with the terms of the said Resolution so far as the Law allows.

RULE XXI.—From and after the date of the promulgation of these Rules no fresh applications for grants of waste lands under any previous Rules will be entertained.

RULE XXII.—The Rules relating to the disposal of claims to land for the purchase of which application may be made will be subject to the provisions of any Law which may hereafter be passed for regulating the disposal of such claims.

RULE XXIII.—The above Rules will continue in force for two years from the 1st January 1863.

No 3228.

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT.

Fort William, the 14th August 1855.

Read an Endorsement from the Home Department, No. 916, dated the 28th ultimo, forwarding, for consideration and orders, a letter from the Government of Bengal, No. 1392, dated the 23rd idem, with an enclosure, regarding the allowance to Officers of the actual travelling charge incurred by them.

RESOLUTION.—With a view to afford every facility and encouragement to a District Officer to present himself at once upon the spot where the public interests may require his presence, the Hon'ble the President in Council is pleased to resolve, as a general rule, that any Covenanted Officer, entitled under the existing Rules to travelling allowance when absent from his Station on duty in the interior of his District, may draw travelling allowances at his option, either by the distance travelled at the rate of eight annas a mile, or by the number of days he is absent from the Sudder Station at the rate of five Rupees a day, the Bill for the charge so incurred being countersigned by the Commissioner of the Division.

ORDER.—Ordered, that a copy of the Resolution be forwarded to the Home Department for communication to the Government of Bengal, and that a copy of the letter from that Government be returned.

Ordered also, that a copy of the Resolution be forwarded to the Civil Auditor.

FROM THE CIVIL AUDITOR,

TO THE SECY. TO THE GOVT. OF INDIA,

Financial Department.

Dated Fort William, the 13th December 1858.

SIR,—I HAVE the honor to submit, for the consideration and orders of the Hon'ble the President of India in Council, a letter, in original, from Mr. H., the Officiating Magistrate of Moorshedabad, in which that Officer raises a question as to the correct rendering of the Financial Resolution, No. 3228, dated the 14th August 1855, regulating the Travelling Allowance which Officers, when on duty in the interior of their Districts, are entitled to draw.

2. The above Resolution allows an Officer an option of either drawing a mileage of eight annas, or an allowance of Rupees 5 a day when absent from the Sudder Station on duty; but it does not, it is submitted, allow an Officer the option of charging both methods of calculation in the same Bill. This principle of election has been hitherto observed by me in the adjustment of travelling allowance authorized under the Resolution. Mr. H., however, is of opinion that, when an Officer on Circuit is suddenly summoned from his Camp to hold an enquiry, he should have the option, just as he would have if at the Sudder Station, of surrendering his daily allowance during such absence for the more lucrative one of a mileage allowance. If it be ruled otherwise, Mr. H. contends that the object of the Resolution would be defeated, and all incentive to celerity of movement removed.

3. I am unable to concur with Mr. H. in the conclusion he draws, inasmuch as no comparison can be instituted between an Officer suddenly summoned from the Sudder Station to hold an enquiry, and one summoned, on a like errand, from an encampment in the Mofussil. In the former case the Magistrate so summoned was drawing the bare salary of his Office, and was not equipped in a way to ensure celerity of movement; and not only so, but his election, under the circumstances, would be naturally a mileage allowance. In the latter case a Magistrate was equipped, and having made his election, if summoned, as Mr. H. was, to a distance from his Camp, cannot, it is submitted, be allowed for this particular journey to forego his first election, merely because the mileage allowance would be more advantageous. Moreover, he had the benefit of Rupees 5 a day when encamped, it may be, for days, and must be content to share the advantages and disadvantages arising from his original selection.

4. The return of the original enclosure is requested with your reply.

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT.

Fort William, the 31st December 1858.

The Hon'ble the President in Council agrees with the Civil Auditor in the view taken by him in respect to the ruling contained in the Financial Resolution of the 14th August 1855, regulating the travelling allowance which Officers, when on duty in the interior of their Districts, are entitled to draw.

Copy forwarded to the Civil Auditor in reply to the above letter, and the original paper received therewith returned.

His Excellency in Council is pleased also to rule, that on the conditions laid down in the foregoing orders Uncovenanted Officers who are now entitled to Rupees 3 per diem when travelling in their Districts on duty may have a similar option of drawing travelling allowance either at that rate or at the rate of four annas a mile.

My Lord,—1. I have to inform you that in communication with the Secretary of State for War, I have consented, in calculating the Pensions of those Soldiers, who, in transferring their services from the Local Army of India to Her Majesty's British Service, elected the British rates of Pension, that the same increase of Good Conduct pay shall be reckoned as has been allowed for the latter service under Royal Warrants.

16. The Public are hereby informed that, in providing the investment of the Behar and Benares Opium for the year 1861-62, the same precautions have been taken as those which have been observed during past years, to have the drug procured and set down in a pure state, to have only the prescribed quantity of leaves used in forming the cakes, and to have the due proportion of Opium put into each cake. An account of the weight of the drug when packed at Behar and Benares, and a Statement of the average weight of the chests indiscriminately taken for the purpose of comparison from the despatches on arrival at Calcutta, may be seen, on application, at the Office of the Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue, four chests of Behar and Benares Opium, viz., two of the season's provision under sale, and two of the provision's season will be also shown to the purchasers in the Sale Rooms on the day of Sale, to enable them to judge of the state of preservation of the drug in the chests offered for sale.

17. Any further information respecting weight or quality of the Opium advertized for sale that may be desired by parties connected with the trade will, as heretofore, be furnished to them on application at the Office of the Board of Revenue, but in accordance with established usage, under no circumstances will the Board entertain or recognize any claim to compensation for loss from any alleged deficiency of weight, abstraction of Opium, or adulteration of the drug, which may be preferred on reference to chests after the sale and delivery of the Opium for shipment.

18. It is hereby further notified, that, under the 6th Article of the Convention between Great Britain and France, dated the 7th March 1815, quoted below, the Agents in India of the French Government, or persons duly appointed by them, are entitled to demand, that out of the quantities of Behar and Benares Opium declared as above for sale at the twelve sales of the year 1863, there shall be delivered to them, at the average of the particular Sale or Sales to which the Opium so applied for may belong, a quantity not exceeding in the aggregate 300 chests, and the Agents of the French Government must make requisitions specifying the quantity of Opium required by them at any particular sale within thirty days from the advertizement of such intended sale; provided, however, that the Agents of the French Government may make such requisition for the whole quantity within thirty days from the publication of this Notification. If the Agents of the French Government shall not make the requisitions for Opium within the time abovementioned, the entire quantity of about 39,617 Chests of Behar and Benares as above estimated will be brought to sale in the usual manner; and if they shall make application for a quantity of Opium to be delivered to them out of the quantity advertised for sale at each or any of the twelve Sales abovementioned, but shall not pay for it within the prescribed period of payment the Government of Bengal reserves to itself the right of disposing of the Opium which the French Authorities may so fail to pay for, either by increasing the quantity reserved at the Sale next ensuing the date of payment, or by selling it at a Sale to be held expressly for the purpose.

Article of the Convention above referred to—

Article 6th.—"With regard to the trade in Opium, it is agreed between the High Contracting Parties that at each of the periodical Sales of that article, there shall be reserved for the French Government and delivered upon requisition duly made by the Agents of His Most Christian Majesty, or by the persons duly appointed by them, the number of chests so applied for, provided that such supply shall not exceed three hundred chests in each year, and the price for the same shall be determined by the average rate at which Opium shall have been sold at every such periodical Sale, it being understood that, if the quantity of Opium applied for at any one time shall not be taken on account of the French Government by the Agents of His Most Christian Majesty within the usual period of delivery, the quantity so applied for shall nevertheless be considered as so much in reduction of the three hundred chests hereinbeforementioned. The requisitions for Opium as aforesaid are to be addressed to the Governor General at Calcutta within thirty days after notice of the intended Sales shall have been published in the Government Gazette."

Emigration from India to the British West India Colonies in 1861-62.

From S. WALCOTT, ESQ., to SIR FREDERIC ROGERS, Bart., &c., &c., &c.,—(dated Emigration Office, the 3rd October 1862.)

I HAVE the honor to enclose, for the Duke of Newcastle's information, a complete Return of the Immigration into the West Indies from India during the season which has recently closed.

2. It will be seen that thirty ships were despatched in the season—twenty-seven from Calcutta, and three from Madras; and that the entire number of persons landed in the West Indies was 10,880, of whom 9,855 were from Calcutta, and 1,025 from Madras.

3. With regard to the mortality on the passage, I am happy to state that there was a manifest improvement.

4. In the three Madras Ships, all of which went to British Guiana, the mortality was, as usual, small. Out of 1,040 persons embarked and born on the voyage only fifteen died, or at the rate of 1·44 per cent. In the preceding season of 1860-61 the percentage was 1·52.

5. In the Calcutta emigration out of 10,375 persons embarked and born on the voyage there were 520 deaths equal to 5·01 per cent. This is the smallest mortality in the Calcutta emigration since 1854-55. In the season of 1860-61 the percentage (including the Dartmouth, a St. Kitt's Ship, of which we have received no Return) was 8·54. The improvement is very satisfactory, and is probably due to several causes, a healthier season, improved selections, fewer children, better hold ventilation, better diet and clothing on the voyage, the use of Dr. Normandy's water distilling apparatus, and the employment of more experienced Surgeons.

YEAR.	Percentage of mortality.	Number embarked and born on the voyage.
1854-55	2·63	2,389
1855-56	5·73	1,622
1856-57	17·25	4,098
1857-58	13·7	3,420
1858-59	9·69	5,490
1859-60	12·06	8,082
1860-61	8·54	8,125
1861-62	5·01	10,375

6. The chief diseases in Cooly Ships are cholera, dysentery and diarrhœa, and the greatest mortality in former years has occurred, as might be expected, in vessels which sailed when cholera was rife in the Depôt and has broken out in the River before the Ships leaving the Sandheads. There was fortunately very little cholera last season; indeed with the exception of the Prince Consort in which there were six cases, the Ships were almost exempt from that fearful disorder, though dysentery and diarrhœa appear to have very generally prevailed.

7. The proportion of females, which in 1860-61 was equal to 48·9 per cent. of the immigrants embarked, was last year only 27·06 per cent. As female immigration, however desirable in other respects, necessarily entails the necessity of sending young children and a larger proportion of aged relatives, among which classes the mortality is of course the greatest, the reduction in the proportion of women may not have been without its influence in lessening the mortality of this season's emigration.

8. As this was the first season in which the use of Normandy's apparatus and the employment of our Australian Surgeons have been tried to any extent, we have been anxious to see if any of the improvement could be traced to them. It is difficult to judge of the effect of these measures from one year's experience, but the difference in the healthiness of the Ships in which they have been tried is so marked as to justify the conclusion that they have contributed in no small degree to the result.

9. In the Ships carrying neither our Surgeons nor the distilling apparatus, the death rate was 7·07 per cent. In four Ships not carrying our Surgeons, but carrying the distilling apparatus, it was 5·60. And in the thirteen remaining Ships which carried our Surgeons, but in three of which there was no distilling apparatus, the percentage was 3·36.

10. Having thus given a general outline of the last year's immigration, it may be convenient to examine it in more detail. The following Table will shew how the Calcutta emigration was distributed and the rate of mortality on the voyage to the different importing Colonies:—

Colony.	Ships.	Embarked	Births.	Deaths.	Percentage of deaths.
Jamaica ...	6	2,168	9	195	8 95
British Guiana ...	11	4,365	15	198	4·52
Trinidad ...	5	2,032	6	71	3·48
St. Lucia ...	1	336	1	17	5·04
Grenada ...	3	1,122	4	29	2 57
St. Vincent ...	1	367	1	10	3·15
Total ...	27	10,390	36	520	5 01

11. The Jamaica emigration contrasts, as regards mortality, very unfavorably with that of any of the other Colonies. This may in some degree be owing to the changes in the Agency, which must militate against the accumulation of experience. Mr. McGregor, after a short incumbency, was compelled to retire from ill health, and Mr. Carmichael re-placed him for one season until the Colonial Government could appoint a successor, which it did in Mr. Anderson, who proceeded from Jamaica and arrived in Calcutta in January last. It may also be observed that the Jamaica Government, in signifying its acceptance of the plan for employing our Australian Surgeons, expressed a wish that the least expensive Surgeons amongst those who were competent should be engaged, and the Executive Committee suggested that resort should be had to our Australian Surgeons when Medical men who had satisfactorily attended Coolies to the West Indies could not be procured. Instructions to this effect were accordingly sent to the selecting Agent in India. The result was that in one Ship only (the Hougomont) was an Australian Surgeon engaged, and in that vessel the mortality was only 2 51, whilst in all the other vessels it ranged from four (under Dr. Rivers, who had made eight previous voyages with Coolies) to upwards of 14 per cent. in the Scoresby. Without laying too much stress on it, this fact is still not without significance. The average death rate in the six Ships was, as shewn in the Table, 8·95, which was an improvement on the previous season when it was 11·71 per cent. The two Ships, the Hougomont and Sylvanham, in which the lowest mortality occured, had Dr. Normandy's apparatus on board.

12. The average mortality in the twelve vessels to British Guiana in the season of 1860-61 was 8·07 per cent. In the season just ended the average in the eleven Ships despatched did not exceed 4 52. It is deserving of remark that eight of these latter Ships carried our Australian Surgeons, and that the three vessels were all fortunate in their Surgeons. The entire emigration to this Colony during last season was therefore under the care of Officers of experience and good professional character. The three vessels not supplied with our Surgeons were the Gitana, Belvidera, and Utopia was 5·15. The Surgeon, Mr. Charles Terry, had had charge of the Cooly Ship Alnwick Castle last year, and his diary and journals, it is stated, were kept with accuracy and with a due regard to his instructions. The mortality in the Belvidera was only 3·16 per cent. The Surgeon, Dr. Stewart, had not had the charge of Coolies before, but he is described as a gentleman of much experience, being in the service of the Indian Army and going home on leave. The mortality in the Utopia was as much as 6·45 per cent. But the Colonial Authorities speak in high terms of the Surgeon Mr. Donald McDonald.

13. The average percentage of deaths in the five Trinidad vessels is less than in the six Jamaica Ships or the eleven British Guiana Ships. It was only 3·48. The year before it was 6·89 per cent. Three of the five Trinidad Ships were under Australian Medical superintendence, namely, the Alnwick Castle, the Clarence, and the Colgrain. The mortality in each of these vessels was unusually small, being respectively 1·03, 1·29, and 1·76 per cent. The number of deaths were in the Alnwick Castle five (of which one was from suicide), in the Clarence six, and in the Colgrain four.

14. In the Tyburnia, one of the two Ships which were not under the superintendence of our Surgeons, the mortality was as much as 9·22 per cent; in the other the Daniel Rankin it did not exceed 4·39. In neither case was any blame attached to the Surgeons who appear to have performed their duties satisfactorily. The sickness in the Tyburnia was not, as is frequently the case, at the beginning of the voyage, but increased as the voyage proceeded, shewing apparently that some continuous agency was at work. During the first seven weeks nine persons died, and twenty-six during the second seven weeks. The vessel was laden with rice, and it is conjectured that the sickness was caused by exhalations from the hold, which was insufficiently ventilated. Whether from this or the defective construction of the water closets, the between-decks, although stated to have been remarkably well ventilated, were observed to have a closed and musty smell, which did not exist in the same vessel on a previous voyage the year before.

15. In the Daniel Rankin, where, as has been already observed, the mortality was 4·39 per cent., there were only fourteen children, including three infants, and it may be deserving of remark that they all survived the voyage.

16. The smallness of the mortality among the children is indeed a peculiar feature in this year's emigration; but it must be borne in mind that fewer than usual were embarked, and that it is when a large number are on board that the mortality in this class is usually so very high. The percentage of deaths among children under 12 years of age in the last three seasons was as follows:—

Season.	Proportion of children embarked and born on the voyage.	Mortality. Between 1 and 12 years.	Mortality. Infants.
1859-60 ...	18·4	16 5	31·7
1860-61 ...	18·9	13·9	26·1
1861-62 ...	10·4	6·6	12·9

17. Of the remaining five vessels despatched to St. Lucia, Grenada, and St. Vincent, only one, the Ganges, was under the superintendence of an Australian Surgeon, and the death rate in that vessel was only 2·18 per cent. The mortality, as shewn in the preceding Table, was not large in any of these Ships, and there is nothing in respect of them which seems to require special remark.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THIS Bill was prepared by the late Mr. Ritchie, with exception to Part IV relating to the marriage of certain Native Christians.

Mr. Ritchie, in a paper left by him, thus explained the Objects and Reasons of the Bill. He said "the object of this Bill is to put an end to the state of uncertainty which now exists in regard to Marriages in India of persons, one or both of whom are of the Christian Religion, but which are not solemnized in any of the modes expressly recognized by the law as valid.

"These modes are three in number:—two of them being generally applicable to all persons of whatever denomination of the Christian Religion, and one being applicable only to a particular class.

"The first consists in the performance of the marriage ceremony by a Clergyman in Holy Orders, according to the sense in which the English law understands that term, that is, a Clergyman who has been episcopally ordained. No particular rite or religious ceremony is legally requisite to this form of marriage, but the presence of a Clergyman in Orders at the time of the mutual promise to become man and wife is essential. The Clergyman need not be of the same religious denomination as either of the parties. But the Clergyman of a denomination which does not recognise episcopacy, and who has not been ordained by a Bishop, confers no special privilege by his presence, and stands on the same footing in this respect as a layman.

"This was the only form of marriage recognised by the English common law as valid as was decided in 1844 in the House of Lords in the well known case of the Queen versus Millis.

"In 1818 it was provided by an Act of Parliament that marriages between persons, one or both of whom were of the Church of Scotland, solemnized by ordained Ministers of that Church as by law established, or by a Chaplain of the East India Company in India, should be of the same force and effect as if they were solemnized by ordained Clergymen of the Church of England, according to the rites and ceremonies of the Church of England.

"This privilege was recently extended by the Legislative Council to ordained Ministers of the Church of Scotland other than Government Chaplains (see Act XXIV of 1860.)

"Until the present reign no other positive law regarding the solemnization of marriages existed in India. But there was a general impression in consequence of Lord Stowell's famous decision in Dalrymple versus Dalrymple, that the presence of a Clergyman in Orders required by the English Marriage Act was not essential to the validity of a marriage in any part of the British Dominions beyond the operation of these Acts; and that a simple contract of marriage in words shewing that it was to take effect at once would suffice. The House of Lords in Millis' case decided upon the opinion of the English Judges, that the English common law of marriage as above stated obtained in Ireland, though the Marriage Act did not extend there, and that the presence of ordained Clergymen in Orders was thus essential. In consequence of the doubt thus thrown upon the validity of marriages in India in the absence of a Clergyman in Orders, the Statute 14 and 15 Vic. c. 40 commonly called the Indian Marriage Act was passed. This was followed by Act V of 1852, which gives effect to the provisions of the Statute.

"Under these Acts, marriages in the presence of a Marriage Registrar have been legalized. No religious ceremony is necessary, but it is optional to the parties to go through any religious ceremony they please. The Act of Parliament legalized all past marriages solemnized in India by persons not in Holy Orders, not being otherwise invalid by declaring them valid in law to all intents and purposes.

"But the doubt which existed as to the validity of such marriages at Common Law was not cleared up in regard to marriages contracted after the Statute. For it was provided that nothing in the Act shall invalidate any marriage which might be solemnized in India by any person in Holy Orders, or under the Statute of George the 3rd already cited, or any other marriage which under the law in force for the time being in India might have been there solemnized if the Act had not been passed. Provided that the Governor-General in Council might provide by Laws and Regulations, for the registration of such marriages."

In the case of Malcolm versus Cristall Perry's Oriental Cases.

The doubt thus left open as to marriages contracted since 1851 still exists. On the one hand Sir Erskine Perry, when Chief Justice of Bombay, and Doctor Lushington, as Dean of the Arches, have held that the principle laid down in the Queen versus Millis could not be applied to a country such as India or Australia in which, on the first introduction of English laws and institutions, there were no Clergyman in Holy Orders before whom marriage could be celebrated, and the House of Lords by passing a Divorce Bill founded on Sir Erskine Perry's decision, has to some extent, though by no means conclusively, sanctioned that view. On the other hand, the Court of Exchequer has held that the decision in question extended to invalidate a marriage performed between British subjects in Beyrout solemnized before a Baptist Clergyman not in Orders. And the Statute of 1818 and the Act of 1860 in favor of marriages performed by Ministers of the Scotch Church seem to shew that the Legislatures both in England and in India considered that the English common law applied to Indian marriages.

Catherwood versus Caston.

"It is almost impossible to determine which of these views is correct, though I am inclined to think that the former is right in principle. But the result of the doubts is, that there is a distressing degree of uncertainty as to the validity of many marriages solemnized since 1851, and that a great deal of fraud in regard to the performance of a sham marriage ceremony by persons having no special qualification but pretending to be qualified, has passed unpunished.

"In 1854, it was brought to the notice of the Government, that a person who had once been a school master, but had never been ordained to the ministry in any way professed to have authority to marry, and did perform the ceremony of marriage between several couples of Native Christians in the Backergunge District. Similar practices have been found to have prevailed in other districts, but as the person officiating did not profess to be a Marriage Registrar, but only to have authority to marry, and as according to my view of the law the marriages thus solemnized were legal, and the person referred to, therefore, as a witness did assist in rendering the marriages effectual it was found impossible to punish him for his imposition.

"It is felt to be time to put an end to the uncertainty which now surrounds the question, and which, on so important a subject, as the validity of marriages, ought not to be allowed to continue for a day longer than can be avoided.

"One ground upon which it is supposed that the Legislature in India left the question unsettled for the last few years, was that a law effectually dealing with the subject of Christian marriage must to some extent affect or interfere with the provisions of the English Statute of 1851, which it was beyond the power of the Legislative Council as then constituted to touch. The difficulty is now removed, as the India Councils Act contains no restriction upon the interference with the Act of Parliament passed in the year abovementioned, and the proposed change of the law is quite within the competency of the Council as now constituted.

"The only effectual mode of dealing with the question appears to be to pass a law declaring that for the future no marriages between persons, both or one of whom shall profess the Christian religion, shall be valid in law unless it be celebrated in one of the three modes already expressly recognized by law. There will be no hardship in thus declaring the law now. For the marriage Acts of 1851-52 have been ten years in operation. Their provisions are generally well known throughout India, and the facilities for contracting marriage under those Acts have been rendered as great by the appointment of Registrars at every place of any importance, both in our Dominions and in those Foreign States in alliance with Great Britain, (for which the Statue also provides) as can reasonably be desired.

"In regard to past marriages, it is proposed to declare that all marriages previously contracted in the presence of persons not in Holy Orders, if not otherwise invalid, shall be deemed good and valid. This is the course which had been adopted on occasions on which Parliament has prescribed a stricter rule for the future than that which had previously existed, or had been supposed to exist in regard to marriages.

See 6 & 7. Wm. 4. c. 85. 14 and 15 Vic., c. 10 7 and 8 Vic., c. 81.

"The Bill provides that for the future no marriage between persons, one or both of whom profess the Christian religion, shall be valid unless it be solemnized either (1) in the presence of a Clergyman in Holy Orders, or (2) in the presence of a Marriage Registrar according to the provisions of the Indian Marriage Acts, or (3) in the case of persons one or both of whom are of the Church of Scotland by law established, in the presence of a Minister of that Church.

"In regard to marriage by Clergymen in Holy Orders other than those of the Church of England or of Scotland provision is made for the registration of such marriages by the Clergyman, and for the transmission by him periodically of such Registers to the nearest Marriage Registrar.

"Punishment is provided for all persons who falsely pretend to have authority to perform a marriage ceremony, or to give validity by their presence to a marriage."

The object of Part IV which has been added to the Bill since it was framed by Mr. Ritchie, is to meet the cases of the numerous classes of Native Christians scattered over the British Territories in India. These classes number several thousand persons, the majority of whom are far away from Clergymen in Holy Orders or Ministers of the Church of Scotland, or Marriage Registrars, and their Pastors are frequently natives like themselves.

It is impossible to expect from these classes of Native Christians a general observance of the Rules contained in Act V of 1852 (for Marriages in India.) though there can be little doubt that the Act is applicable to them, and no one really supposes that the marriages of the Karen Native Christians for instance and others like them, are attended with all the prescribed formalities of Notices, Certificates, Registers, &c., &c.

It has been suggested that it would be better to leave Native Christians to what is called their own law of marriage, which is considered by some high authorities to have been preserved to them under Sections 21, 14 and 15, Vic. cap. 40, that is, the simple law of marriage per verba de præsenti, with the option of availing themselves of the provisions of the present Bill as drawn by Mr. Ritchie, should they think proper to do so. But there appears to be considerable difference of opinion as to whether marriages between Native Christians, solemnized in the manner abovementioned, are really valid. The point is one which ought not to be left in uncertainty, and in order effectually to clear up the doubts that now exist, legislation of some kind would seem to be required.

Moreover, assuming the legality of marriages between Native Christians, resting simply on the verbal declaration of the parties thereto, some provision of law would appear to be absolutely necessary for the registration of such marriages, and for affording easy means of establishing the same.

It is considered that the provisions contained in Part IV of the Bill, as it is now drawn, will do all that is really required in respect to the solemnization of the marriages of Native Converts to Christianity who may be prevented by distance or any other cause from availing themselves of the other provisions of the Bill, and that while the Part in question makes sufficient provision for the due regulation of such marriages, for preserving an official record of the same, and for preventing abuses, it will be found to afford to all classes of Native Christians a simple, convenient, and inexpensive mode of solemnizing their marriages, and of establishing the marriage when proof may be required either in respect to the succession to property or otherwise.

One of the conditions contained in Section XLII of Part IV of the Bill as essential to the granting of a Certificate of marriage under that Part is that the parties shall not stand to each other within the prohibited degrees of affinity or consanguinity.

It is to be observed that this is no new provision as respects Native Christians, though probably it is not always attended to. There seems to be no doubt that the legal impediments of kindred or affinity in respect of marriage which apply to European Christians apply equally to Native Christians, and so long as such impediments apply to European Christians, it is considered to be impossible, with any degree of propriety, to exempt Native Christians from them, or to make any distinction in this respect between the two classes.

M. WYLIE,

Depy. Secy. to the Govt. of India,
Home Department.

THE following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 17th December 1862, and was referred to a Select Committee who will make a report thereon after the 20th March 1863.

No. 59 OF 1862.

A Bill to amend Act XXI of 1856 (to consolidate and amend the Law relating to the Abkarree Revenue of Fort William in Bengal), and Act XXIII of 1860 (to amend the said Act XXI of 1856*)*

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend Act XXI of 1856, and Act XXIII of 1860, with respect to spirits which may be used exclusively in Arts and Manufactures, or in Chemistry; It is enacted as follows:—

Revenue Board may permit removal of spirits from Distillery on payment of duty.

I. It shall be lawful for the Board of Revenue, or other Chief Revenue Authority, to permit spirits to be removed from any licensed Distillery for the purposes aforesaid, on payment of duty calculated at 10 per cent on the value of the spirits, provided that no spirits shall be removed under this Act until they have been effectually and permanently rendered unfit for human consumption.

Revenue Board to prescribe rules for ascertaining and determining that spirits proposed to be removed have been rendered unfit for human consumption.

II. The Board of Revenue, or other Chief Revenue Authority, with the sanction of the local Government, shall, from time to time, prescribe rules for ascertaining and determining that spirits proposed to be removed for the purposes aforesaid have been effectually, and permanently, rendered unfit for human consumption, as required by Section I of this Act; for causing such spirits, to be so rendered, if necessary, by its own officers, at the expense of the person who wishes to remove them; and for regulating the maximum quantity to be passed out, and for fixing the value of the spirit on which the ad valorem duty shall be levied.

Penalty for breach of such rules.

III. Every person who shall wilfully contravene any rule prescribed by the Board of Revenue, or other Chief Revenue Authority, under the last preceding Section of this Act, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding 500 Rupees for every such offence.

Penalty for attempting to render fit for human consumption, spirits removed under this Act.

IV. Every person who shall attempt, or shall connive at an attempt, or render fit for human consumption spirits removed from a Distillery under the provisions of this Act, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand Rupees; and the possessor of such spirits on which such attempt has been made or which may have been rendered fit for human consumption, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred Rupees.

Further penalty.

V. In every case of conviction under the last preceding Section the liquor or spirits with the cask or vessel containing the same, and the cart, boat, and animal or animals employed in carrying such liquor or spirit shall be liable to confiscation.

Act to be read as part of Act XXI of 1856.

VI. This Act shall be read and taken as part of Act XXI of 1856.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

This Bill is supplemental to that part of the Bill lately introduced to amend the Law relating to the Duties of Customs on Goods imported and exported by Sea, which provides that Spirits so imported exclusively for the purposes of Arts and Manufactures or Chemistry shall be admitted at a less rate of Duty than Spirits similarly imported for human consumption as a beverage. In explaining the objects and reasons of the part of the Bill just referred to, I stated that Spirits distilled in the Country, and intended to be used exclusively for the purposes mentioned, would be dealt with separately. The present Bill proposes to place home-made Spirits intended to be used exclusively in Arts and Manufactures or in Chemistry, on the same footing, as respects Duty, as methylated Spirits exported by Sea for similar purposes and to render them liable to a Duty of 10 per cent ad valorem, instead of the comparatively high rate per gallon now charged. The Bill also contains what appear to be suitable provisions to prevent frauds upon the Revenue consequent upon the proposed relaxation of the existing law.

RULES FOR THE CONDUCT OF BUSINESS.

HIS Excellency the PRESIDENT moved that the Report of the Select Committee appointed to consider all proposals to alter or amend the Rules for the Conduct of Business be taken into consideration. His Excellency said that he wished to make a few observations in explanation of this Report and the amendments it proposed in the Rules for the Conduct of Business, as he understood that some misapprehension and mistakes existed as to the intent and effect of the amendments which the Council had recommended to be adopted. Those misapprehensions had not found expression in that Council; but occasions might arise in which it might be necessary to remove public misapprehensions which had not found an echo there, and the present, he considered, was one of those cases. For it was manifest that most serious prejudice to the interests of the country might arise if mistaken views of measures adopted by that Council, or as to the constitutional position of the Council to which Parliament had delegated the duty of legislating for India, were permitted to exist, more especially if misapprehension existed as to the motives and intentions of those to whom the duty of Government was entrusted. He considered that it was the more necessary for him to notice the mistakes that had been made, because they appeared to have arisen from the meagerness and insufficiency of the statement which he had made in laying the Report on the table. But in truth he (the Governor-General) was well aware of the trivial nature of the changes made in the Rules, and he knew also that the other Members of the Council were equally aware of the nature of those changes. It appeared however that he had not sufficiently considered that others were ignorant of the real state of the case, nor the temptation to speculate on the relations of the Council which that ignorance presented. The public had been told that this Report was proof of a design, or a foul conspiracy, on the part of the Secretary of State and the Governor-General to deprive the Council of some part of its privileges, and to curtail its authority. It was difficult to know how to deal with statements of this kind. If he dealt with them seriously he might be open to the imputation that he had been led into taking undue notice of a piece of harmless pleasantry. But if no notice were taken his silence might be construed into an assent to the truth of a statement involving charges not lightly to be treated.

He felt, therefore, on the whole, that the less objectionable course was to notice the charges. It would be admitted by all candid persons that when the Council, or a Committee of the Council, was engaged in framing or amending Rules for the Conduct of Business, that was not a time when the question as to the best constitution of the Council could be properly raised, or the question whether the constitution given by a Parliament was the best that could be framed. Whatever opinion might be formed on those points, the Rules must necessarily be framed in conformity to the constitution as it existed, and not to the constitution as it might be altered. He would enquire what proof there was of a conspiracy between himself as Governor-General and the Secretary of State. The first recommendation of the Committee was that the Governor-General should have authority to direct the publication of a Bill, though no vote had been previously taken from the Council on the motion for leave to bring it in. The charge of conspiracy, in respect of this recommendation, rested on the assumption that this power was an innovation, or a departure from the existing practice, and that this innovation or departure from existing practice had been adopted on the recommendation of the Secretary of State. The Council would observe what foundation there was for these assumptions. The question had arisen before the Committee, how Bills should be dealt with when the ordinary sitting of the Council was suspended. The same question had been considered when the Rules were first framed, and the original Rules accordingly provided that a "Bill "may be sent to the Secretary when the Council "is not in Session, and the Governor-General in "Council may order its publication, together with "the Statement of Objects and Reasons which "accompanies it. In that case it shall not be "necessary to move for leave to bring in the Bill, "and if the Bill be afterwards introduced, it shall "not be necessary to publish it again." Those Rules had been transmitted to the Secretary of State; and in order to prevent misapprehension, he (the Governor-General) would state that that was done in the ordinary course of business, and before he assumed Office. The Secretary of State observed that the Rule which he had read apparently infringed the privileges of the Non-Official Members, and placed them at a disadvantage in relation to the Official Members. The objection was felt to be perfectly sound, and the inference was that the Rule ought to be cancelled, but the Committee had to consider what the practical effect of having no Rule of the kind would be. One of the Rules provided that the progress of Bills introduced into the Council should ordinarily be suspended for three months, in order that they might be published. This Rule had been adopted in order that Bills might be circulated and published in all parts of India, and that all the various authorities and inhabitants might have opportunity to represent their objections to every proposed measure; and having regard to the great extent of the country, he (the Governor-General) did not think the period to be excessive, but considered that it ought to be strictly adhered to in all except special cases. But if it were adhered to, and no Bill could be published till leave had been moved for to bring it in, then it would be necessary either to call the Council together at great inconvenience, in order to deal with motions which, in nine cases out of ten, would meet with no objection, or else to adopt the principle that all Bills should be delayed till a Meeting of the Council for general legislation, the result of which would be a postponement of Bills introduced at one sitting till the following year. The Council had therefore thought that, in order to obviate inconvenience to Members, and to the public, the Rules for the publication of Bills should be adhered to, but that the publication might be permitted, as before, when the Council were not sitting. The only difference in the new Rule was the substitution of the Governor-General for the Governor-General in Council, and the reason for that was that it removed the existing anomaly of an advantage to the Official over the Non-Official Members. This Rule, it was supposed, would be less objectionable than the former one, but thanks to the entire accord which existed, and he hoped would always exist, between him and his advisers, the alteration would, in fact, amount to a distinction without a difference. Such was the ground on which the charge of conspiracy had been made in respect of this Rule. Another ground for that charge had been the elimination of the term "Session" from those parts of the Rules in which it occurred. He scarcely understood on what theory the independence of the Council was supposed to be compromised by this change. That theory must imply that the power to prorogue, which exists under some constitutions, is a power reserved in the interest of the body which is subjected to its exercise, so that a body which is always at hand, and may be called together at any time, is less independent than a body that is liable to prorogation! This was a novel doctrine, and it might be asked how it would act in the present Council. In laying the Rules on the table, he (the Governor-General) had adverted to the occasion when the High Court was instituted. If he had been debarred by the Rules of the Council, or by his own act, from calling the Council together, he must have exercised the power vested in him by Section 23 of the Councils Act, and passed an ordinance to meet the difficulty. That was a power, like every other power entrusted to him by Parliament, which he should exercise whenever he thought it necessary to do so. But he was desirous, as far as possible, of dealing with the legislation of the country only with the help of those Gentlemen whose assistance Parliament had given him, and whose criticisms and suggestions were always of the greatest possible use. Then, as to publicity being given to the proceedings of the Council, it never yet had been, and he hoped it never would be, his lot to preside over a Government which had not more to gain than to lose by publicity. He was sorry to have thus to trouble the Council with these observations; but it was important to remove the misapprehensions to which he had adverted. If confidence were shaken in that Council, or in the Government, the evil would be far greater than would arise from any measure that either might adopt.

The Hon'ble Mr. Cowie said that, irrespectively of the satisfactory explanation which His Excellency had given of the alterations in the Rules, he felt bound to repudiate the charge that he, as an additional Member of the Council, had forfeited his independence by continuing to hold his seat under them. He believed that, under those Rules, he had the right of introducing any measure into the Council, and he believed that it would receive courteous attention and impartial consideration from the President and the Members. Further, he had the right of expressing an opinion, and of voting on every measure which others might bring forward. That was the position which the late Lord Canning had explained, when he did him (Mr. Cowie) the honor of offering him the seat in the Council, and with that position he was content. He had considered that he was only a Member of the Council of the Governor-General for the purpose of making Laws, but he found, from the Despatch of the Secretary of State, that he was a Member of the Council of the Governor-General, and he must express his acknowledgments for the compliment.

The Hon'ble MR. FITZWILLIAM stated his concurrence with the sentiments expressed by the Hon'ble Mr. Cowie.

The Hon'ble MR. HARINGTON said that the Rajah Dinkar Rao had expressed to him his satisfaction with the alterations which it was proposed to make in the Rules, and which he thought would identify the ordinary and the additional Members, and place them on a more equal footing.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

HIS EXCELLENCY then moved that the amendments proposed by the Select Committee be adopted.

HIS EXCELLENCY said that, as there was an obscurity in the new Rule 29, he would move that it should stand as follows:—

"Any Member may move that a Bill which has "been amended by the Council be re-published, "and if the Council so decide, the President may "order the Bill to be re-published for such period "as he shall see fit."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

BREACHES OF CONTRACT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. MAINE moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill relating to Breaches of Contract committed in bad faith, be taken into consideration. In making this Motion he begged to offer a few words on the reasons which had led the Committee to the conclusions of the Report, or, rather, he should perhaps say, on the reasons which had led himself, for it was possible, and, indeed probable, that different Members had reached the same conclusions by different routes. It would be seen that, in the Despatch from the Secretary of State for India, which was printed with the papers accompanying the Bill, the Secretary of State expressed a hope that the Bill would be withdrawn, and then intimated a doubt whether any legislative interference in commercial transactions, with the view of coercing one of the parties to a contract, could be productive of good. The language of the Secretary of State was not directly imperative, and, on the whole, for various reasons, the Committee thought it their duty to consider the possibility of amending the Bill, and if he individually might avow any other motive besides the wish that a subject of such great importance should meet with full discussion, it would be the desire that no measure introduced by the late Mr. Ritchie should be lightly thrown aside. It would be better, first to consider the Bill apart from the objections of the Secretary of State. The Council would remember that Mr. Ritchie introduced it avowedly as a measure of compromise He inferred, from the language which Mr. Ritchie used in the debate on its introduction, that he would have preferred a Bill like that brought in by the present Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, a measure, that is to say, making breaches of contract criminally punishable, but more general than Mr. Beadon's Bill, which applied only to contracts for the delivery of agricultural produce. The Secretary of State, as was well known, announced his intention of disallowing the first Breach of Contract Bill, and hence Mr. Ritchie was compelled to confine himself to a Bill prescribing a proceeding of a Civil nature in point of form, but of a Criminal nature in respect of the penal consequences incurred by an unsuccessful defendant. He thought, however, it would always be found that, when you were dealing with a distinction so old and so universal as that which separated Criminal law from Civil, it was not possible to mix together the provinces of jurisprudence which lay on either side of the boundary, and that you would be obliged to take up a position on one side of the line or the other. It was his strong impression that, if the Committee had felt there was any use in amending the Bill, it would have emerged in a shape closely resembling that of the measure introduced by the Lieutenant-Governor, for, when they came to the examination of details, and attempted to put the machinery of Mr. Ritchie's Bill into working order, they would have found it defective in one respect, in the omission of provisions for sufficiently full notice to the defendant of the character of the charge brought against him. It would have been contrary to all principle, and, as it struck him, to one's most elementary instincts of justice, to inflict a penalty so severe as hard labour on a man who had not been amply warned, before the trial commenced, that he would be exposed to this consequence if he did not succeed in rebutting the accusation of fraud. No civilized nation, so far as he was aware, had ever relieved an accuser from the duty of giving this warning. A French Act of Accusation was a voluminous history, not only of the alleged offence, but almost of the whole life of the accused, and, in England, until comparatively recently, the law was so anxious that prisoners should come into Court with full preparation, that a large percentage of persons accused escaped scot-free for want of a precise description of the charge in the indictment. The Committee, therefore, if it had amended the Bill, had two courses open to it. Either it must have compelled the plaintiff, in such a proceeding as the Bill contemplated, to put into the pleadings a full account, with all particulars of mode and time, of the fraud with which he taxed the defendant or else it must, have been provided that, whenever in the course of a Civil Suit for breach of contract it became clear that the question of fraud would be raised, the proceedings should at once be interrupted, and the accused bidden to attend on a subsequent day, with his means of disproof, if he had any. In the first case, the inquiry would differ only in name from a Criminal trial; in the second, it would be a Criminal investigation added on to a Civil suit. He had attempted to shew that legislation on that subject would necessarily, in the long run, turn out to be Criminal legislation, because it explained the stress laid by the Committee on the passage in the Despatch, in which the Secretary of State objected to any inquiry into the motives of the defendant, and into the reasonableness or otherwise of his excuses for non-performance. It was scarcely necessary to point out to the Council that such an inquiry was, in fact, the great characteristic which distinguished the administration of Criminal Law from the administration of Civil Law. In the assessment of Civil penalties, no excuse could be listened to, if the suit were for breach of contract, the only question was, whether the contract had been performed: if it had not been performed, though even through the most unmerited misfortune, the full consequences of non-performance must follow without abatement. But, under Criminal Law, whether an act drew down a penalty at all, depended entirely on the motive with which it had been done; and he ventured to say that there was not one act of which Criminal Law took cognizance, which, if the motives of the actor shaped themselves in a particular way, or lent themselves to a particular excuse, might not become justifiable and even laudable. For those reasons the Council would not, he thought, fail to come to the conclusion that, when the Secretary of State objected to an enquiry into motives, he objected not only to Mr. Ritchie's Bill in its present shape, but in any shape it could possibly assume. Then came the question, how far beyond this did the objections of the Secretary of State extend. He understood the Secretary of State to object to all general Criminal legislation against breaches of contract. But comparing the language of this Despatch with that of former Despatches on the same subject, he did not understand him to object to particular legislation. He meant by particular legislation, legislation directed to the enforcement, by the authority of the Magistrate, of certain class of contracts, or of contracts between persons belonging to a particular class. There were, he believed, samples of such legislation in the jurisprudence of every country. In England there was the Statute, or rather the series of Statutes, regulating the relations between employers and laborers, and the Statute which applied to Merchant Seamen. In India they had the Calcutta Artificers' Act, and there had been many laws and regulations of that kind which had expired or had been repealed. In all this legislation there seemed to be little question of motive. Breaches of contract by persons falling under these Statutes did not appear to be criminally punished on account of their peculiar immorality, for it would be absurd to maintain that a breach of contract by a mariner is more immoral than by anybody else; but, as he supposed, the legislator took his stand on the interests of society, and declared that society could not afford to allow these particular contracts to be lightly broken. Of course, such legislation must always be sparingly resorted to, and only on the clearest grounds, both because it was exceptional, and because it rested on a ground, (the interest of society,) which had always furnished the greatest number of pretexts for tyranny. But still, in spite of all its disadvantages, he confessed that he infinitely preferred particular to general legislation on these subjects. Of course, general legislation had advantages of its own. If you wish to conceal your true object you can do it much more easily by general legislation than by particular legislation. If you wish to avail yourself of broad general propositions about the duty of punishing fraud, wherever it may be detected, propositions which it was extremely invidious to deny, and extremely dangerous to affirm, you can call them to your aid much more effectually when you are meditating general legislation. But in particular legislation you have this compensating advantage that you know where you are going to. You can measure the consequences of the steps you take, and you can retrace them if they disappoint you. If he felt himself called upon, which he did not, to raise objections to Mr. Ritchie's attempt at general legislation, he should rest his doubts less on the grounds urged by the Secretary of State than on grounds which it was not easy to describe in precise language. He should deprecate such legislation less on account of results he foresaw, than on account of results which he did not and could not foresee. Knowing, as they all did, that all the modern progress of society seemed to be intimately connected with the completest freedom of contract, and in some way almost mysteriously dependent on it, he should shrink from tampering with so powerful an instrument of civilisation; and if he were unfortunately compelled to propose a measure like Mr. Ritchie's, he should feel like a physician employing a remedy which might indeed cure the disease, but which might also revolutionise the constitution There were no such dangers as these attending particular legislation. In that, as you must always be aware that the measures you contemplate are irregular and exceptional, you are likely to assure yourself before you interfere that a case has been established for interference. When you do make up your mind to use your remedy you can exactly proportion it to the evil which has to be removed; and as the sphere of its operations would probably be limited, you can judge and observe of its working. It was not for him to say what legislation of the kind he had been describing was called for by the circumstances of particular localities in India, or by the practices and habits of particular classes, but if exceptional measures had to be resorted to, and they were of that nature, he should think that they could secure what, no doubt, was one of the most efficient means of moral education—the exact performance of contracts—without disturbing principles and distinctions which had been established for so many centuries, and which seemed to strike root the deeper as the world grew older.

The Hon'ble Mr. Erskine said, that the Report bore his signature with those of others, and it was not, of course, his wish to oppose its adoption. At the same time, as the recommendation of the Report was that the Bill to which it related should be withdrawn; and as he had concurred, not many months ago, with a majority of the Council in thinking that the Bill ought to be sent to a Select Committee, in order that it might be made the foundation of an enactment, it seemed right to take this opportunity of stating shortly the circumstances under which he now acquiesced in a different course, and the extent to which his own views remained unchanged. The discretion of the Committee, in dealing with this Bill, and the position of the Council in regard to it, had been affected since the last discussion of the measure, by the receipt of the Despatch, to which reference had already been made, from the Secretary of State. The tenor of that Despatch was such that it had not only materially affected the deliberations of the Committee, but had, of necessity, determined their proposals. Such being the case, it was impossible to make a statement on this subject without alluding to that communication. His allusions to it would be made with a proper respect for the authority from which it emanated. In considering this Despatch it appeared to him that one important point to be ascertained at the outset was, the extent to which it really dealt with the great problem which, in one form or another, had repeatedly, during the last two years, been discussed by them, and the extent to which it dealt only with one attempt to affect a partial solution of that problem, or, in other words, and in spite of the warning they had received against general propositions, how far the arguments of the Despatch were directed against the principle which underlay all the special measures and projects of law that had been before them, and how far those arguments were confined, so to speak, within the four corners of this particular Bill. Now the principle which lay at the root of the several recent projects for legislation might, as he understood it, be stated in some such words as these:—That acts of fraud, or if the technical definition of "fraud" were objected to, of bad faith done to the known wrongful injury of others,—that such acts, so committed in breach of a contract, may rightly be punished as Criminal offences, like acts of a similar kind committed in the making of a contract, or on other such occasions. This seemed to be the broad principle which lay at the root of the whole question, and only if it were assented to would the next consideration arise—whether it was desirable and prudent to make legislative provision for the punishment of such acts as offences. Only after both of these questions had been decided affirmatively would it be necessary to give attention to subsidiary points relating to the special form of Bill required for this purpose, and the various details of such Bills. Indeed, were it not contrary to recent experience to do so, one might have assumed the willingness to enter on the minor details implied acquiescence in the larger principles. In reading carefully through this Despatch, then, in order to determine what portions of it must be treated as objections to the general principle just stated, and what portions were merely objections to provisions peculiar to this Bill, it seemed to him that three portions only treated directly of the former—namely, the 5th paragraph, a portion of the 9th, and the concluding portion of the last; and even these did not seem to be very decided. The 5th paragraph, for instance, merely seemed to raise a doubt whether that which is described as the principle of the Bill could be universally applied in its full extension, and whether there was any precedent for such an application of it. But it was obvious to remark (without enquiring how far the supporters of the Bill would go in applying it) that there are many principles which are confessedly just and right, and which, nevertheless, cannot in practice be applied, everywhere and at all times, without exception. And further, with all respect for the observation which had fallen from his Hon'ble friend if no principle could be true unless it had been embodied in some existing Code, there would be an end of improvements in legislation. The next paragraph to which he had referred was paragraph 9. That seemed at its commencement to suggest merely the great difficulty of defining "fraud" or "bad faith" and of determining questions regarding it. There was no doubt as to the difficulty. Had the question not been one of the most difficult in Criminal jurisprudence, it would, no doubt, have been satisfactorily settled long ere this. But the Council, he believed, would not recognise the mere difficulty of any attempt as an adequate reason for not making it. A passage followed in the same paragraph which had been quoted by the Select Committee, but to which his Hon'ble friend, he thought, had given a construction wider than it should be made to bear. The words of the Committee are, that they thought the enquiry there referred to imperatively required by the principle of the Bill before them and rightly. But it did not appear that the Secretary of State, in objecting to enquiries into motives, was alluding to enquiries in Criminal cases, for which the Bill did not provide. The only other paragraph to which he had alluded was the latter portion of the last. In regard to this, he might observe that it was expressed in such guarded terms that he thought, if only a fair latitude of construction were allowed, hardly any Member of the Council would hesitate to adopt the words as his own. It could hardly be said, therefore, that the arguments in the Despatch, as affecting the broad question before them, were either direct or emphatic. They were numerous and decided, no doubt, as regarded this particular Bill and its details. Most of them are recapitulated in the first portion of this concluding paragraph. But he believed he might say, with truth, that all of them had been urged on the attention of the Council before they decided that the Bill should be referred to a Committee. If, however, the Committee had not in this way many new arguments to consider, they had at least the assurance that these arguments had been held to be fatal to this Bill or any modification of it, by an authority without whose concurrence it could not, even if passed, continue to be law. For this reason they concluded that it would be useless to proceed with the Bill; and for this reason—and this reason only—he had concurred in that recommendation, although his own views remained unaltered. In the course of this discussion they had been reminded that mere general assertions of principles were apt to be of little avail. There were occasions, however, on which it was most important that general principles should be openly re-asserted. This seemed to be such an occasion. During their former discussion it had been suggested that it was contrary to the spirit of modern legislation to increase the severity of the Criminal law. He had then ventured to dissent from that view. It was, indeed the tendency of recent legislation to mitigate the severity of punishment; but it did not seem to be equally the tendency to diminish the number of offences. On the contrary, as he formerly urged, when the standard of morals rises among a people, the number of acts is increased which the public conscience condemns, and which the public feeling will support the law in punishing. As commerce expands the danger is more clearly felt of offences against credit, against commercial morality, and against general trade; and that this is felt to be so practically in England may be inferred from recent Acts relating to frauds, to breaches of trust, and to reckless insolvents. His views on these matters were of little importance, but his allusion to them had elicited an expression of concurrence from their lamented Colleague, Mr. Ritchie, whose opinions had a value altogether their own; and another Member of the Council, now no longer present, Mr. Laing, had taken the strongest opportunity of expressing strongly his sense of the value of this question in its relation to the moral sense of the people. He had urged that it was unwise to import into India nice legal distinctions, which served rather to puzzle than to enlighten or satisfy the consciences of simple men. And he had quoted in illustration of this argument an instance to which His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor likewise had more than once referred, that the law ought not to lay down that it was right to punish fraud if you could prove that the intention to defraud originated five minutes before a man signed a contract, but wrong so to punish if he could prove or raise a presumption that the intention orginated five minutes later. Mr. Laing urged that subtle distinctions of this kind should not be encouraged, but that more weight should be given to the broad maxims of common sense and natural equity. This seemed to be just. It was important that the voice of the law on these points should be clear; that its provisions should be brought, as far as possible, and as fast as possible, to support the plain rules of honesty, and that it should be felt to restrain all men from immoral practices in connection with the Civil contracts, and to hold no man free to recede from his compact as the known wrongful injury of his neighbour, merely because he could not abide by it without some loss or inconvenience to himself. These were some of the considerations which made him, while acquiescing, under the circumstances, in the Report of the Select Committee, desirous to make it clear that his own views remained unchanged. He trusted that it was so also with others; for an indication that the convictions and desires of the Council still tended in the direction of an amendment of the general law, would be advantageous in more ways than one.

The Hon'ble Rajah DINKAR RAO said, that he had already objected to this Bill when it was introduced. The subject in the second paragraph of the Select Committee's Report (relative to the Despatch of the Secretary of State) was of great importance. There was no necessity for such a separate Act as the present, and it was desirable to withdraw this Bill as recommended by the Committee.

The Hon'ble Mr. COWIE said that the Report of the Select Committee on the Contract Bill was, with great propriety, drawn up in such a way that it could be conscientiously signed by all five Members, but as one of them he might be allowed to record his sincere regret at the very narrow ground to which the Secretary of State's Despatch had limited the Council in the matter, and he expressed a hope that the Executive Government would, by argument and reasoning, prevent that Despatch being treated as final. He avowed himself an advocate of a Contract Law which should treat a fraudulent contractor, whether he be the employer or the employé, with the same stern justice which modern legislation now awarded to the fraudulent bankrupt and the fraudulent trustee. An esteemed friend who knew much more of India than he ever should himself, had told him that such a Contract Law could not be worked in the Mofussil, because the Courts were not competent; in other words, that juvenile Magistrates and aged Sudder Ameens were not equal to the nice task of discriminating between intentional fraud and accidental or unintentional liability, or of defining where accident ended and Criminal fraud commenced. If that were so, which he, without Mofussil experience, was not competent to say, he thought the community of India, in calling for a Contract Law, were entitled, at the same time, to demand a great improvement in the Courts which would have to adminster that law: and he hoped the earnest attention of the Executive Government would be given to those two wants. Such measures would not only conduce to the material prosperity of the country, but would add to the ease and comfort with which it might be governed.

The Hon'ble Mr. ROBERTS agreed with the Select Committee that, in the face of the Despath of 9th June last from the Secretary of State for India, it would be neither for the Public interest, nor for the diginity of the Council, to proceed with a project of Law, which, if passed, would certainly be annulled in a few months, but he was of opinion that the Select Committee should have attempted to determine the exact effect of that Despatch on their own deliberations, and on the deliberations of the Council. There was no question of the power of Her Majesty to disallow Laws made by the Governor-General in Council, but it was extremely doubtful whether the Indian Councils Acts permitted of interference by the Secretary of State with the deliberations of the Council on questions ponding before them. In the present case leave had been obtained, under the Rules for the Conduct of Business, to introduce the Bill to which the Secretary of State had objected; the Bill had been referred to a Select Committee, and was coming under discussion when, almost in limine, the Secretary of State expressed his disapproval of the principle of the measure, and requested that it might be withdrawn. That which had been done in the present case might be repeated on any other occasion, and, practically, the power of legislating for India would be transferred from this country to England. This did not appear to have been the intention of Parliament;—the restoration of the power of legislation to the Minor Presidencies; the extension of the provisions of the Act for making Laws and Regulations to the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William; and the nomination of Non-Official Members, European and Native, to the Councils of the Subordinate Governments, and also to the Council of the Governor-General for purposes of general legislation, all seemed to indicate that it was the intention of Parliament to give full scope to legislation in India; to allow projects of law to originate out here; to permit free discussion and deliberation to those who, from local knowledge and experience, were the best judges of the fitness and applicability of the measures proposed; to leave it to them to decide whether such measures should be brought on the Statute Book or no, and simply to reserve to the Sovereign the privilege of disallowing any law if deemed necessary to do so. In his opinion there was nothing in the Indian Councils Act which permitted interference on the part of the Secretary of State with measures under discussion, and he (Mr. Roberts) thought that this point of privilege should be first determined, and that, in the mean time, the Bill for Breaches of Contract in bad faith should remain in abeyance. He proposed to move an amendment to that effect.

The Hon'ble Mr. Fitzwilliam said looking to the Report of the Select Committee, he agreed with them that, under the circumstances, it would be better, both for the public interest and the dignity of the Council, that the Bill should be withdrawn. He regretted, however, to find that the principle upon which the Bill was based was likely to be abandoned. Laws providing for the Criminal punishment of fraudulent breaches of contract occupied a prominent place in the judicial Wstem of every commercial country in the world. Why, then, he would ask, is India to be deprived of them? Trading transactions could not be carried on with safety without mutual confidence. Surely, then, it could be only just to all parties to a contract that they should be protected against fraud on either side. His own experience in commercial transactions in various parts of the world had convinced him of the advantages of such laws, and he did not hesitate to express the opinion that it was to the interest of both Natives and Europeans that such laws should be enacted. It was not a class question; it was one in which every resident in India was deeply interested. Without some protection of this kind he believed that the great industrial interests of this country could not expect the assistance of European capital for their extension or development. He had heard it objected that such a Contract Law as provided in the Bill before us, might be used as an instrument of oppression. That could not be the fault of the law. If such was the case, it must be the fault of the administration of the law. And if those who had the administration in their hands were not competent for their duties, then he agreed with his Hon'ble friend, Mr. Cowie, that it was the duty of the Government to appoint Officers who were so. The Hon'ble and learned Member, Mr. Maine, not only saw difficulties in the way of legislation upon this subject, but he thought that there were still greater unseen difficulties to be contended with. He thought we had better deal with those before us; they were perhaps formidable enough. And he again repeated his opinion that a Contract Law, or, at any rate, the provision of Criminal punishment for fraudulent breaches of contract, was absolutely necessary for the interests of those who embark capital or supply labour for the promotion or development of the industrial interests of India. Without it European and Native capital will, he believed, be found unavailing.

The Hon'ble Mr. Ellis said that he did not share in the regret expressed by the Hon'ble Members who had spoken at the withdrawal of this Bill, because he was opposed to the Bill itself, and should have voted against its becoming law. The objects which it had been supposed would have been secured by the Bill were an improvement in public morality in regard to the fulfilment of agreements and contracts, and the protection of European capital in India, and thereby the encouragement of European settlers in the interior of India. If he thought either or both of these objects likely to be secured by the Bill, he should share in the regret expressed at its withdrawal, but as he did not think the Bill likely to promote these important objects, he was satisfied that its withdrawal would not be an evil. He did not think that the large masses of the lower classes against which this measure was directed would be improved morally by it, because they would not be slow to discover that this Bill, under the disguise of a Civil law, contained in regard to themselves, Criminal punishments, and they would perceive that the measure afforded protection, not to those classes which recent enquiry had shown required protection, but to a class numerically small but really powerful and self-reliant, who had already the legitimate influence due to their wealth and intelligence. To that class which the Bill in question, and all recent legislation on the subject of breaches of contract, was intended to assist, he did not think that the Bill would have proved beneficial. He thought that there were other methods than legislation by which any unfortunate class differences might best be set at rest. And although it might be contended that the latitude of the provisions of the Bill would not have been made use of injuriously, he had not so good an opinion of human nature as to believe that men could be entrusted generally with great power without danger, and he did believe that this Bill, if passed into law, would have afforded unscrupulous men means of oppression. It was for that reason that he rejoiced as its withdrawal, and that he did not share in the expression of hope that legislation upon this subject would be speedily re-attempted. In making these remarks he begged that he might not be misunderstood. He valued as much as any one the introduction of European capital, and Europeans of education and energy, into the interior of all parts of India. He had seen districts, which were in a languid condition, gain new life by the arrival of independent European settlers. Waste lands were speedily brought under cultivation; distant parts of the district were brought into relation with the more civilized central towns and stations; faults in the administration were pointed out and corrected, and the prosperity of the ryots kept pace with the rapid fortune of the settlers. These independent Europeans were able greatly to assist the Government Officials, for they acquired information regarding the administration which were often concealed from the Officials themselves. But it was because he had seen this, and because the laws, as at present existing, had been found sufficient to meet all the reasonable wants of this important class, that he would deprecate legislation on this subject, and the introduction of a measure such as that under discussion, for general application to all India. If any particular portion of India required special legislation, and he did not pretend to pronounce upon that point, it could be no reason for general legislation, which, to be necessary, and in the form taken by the successive measures which had been attempted and failed, must be based on the supposition that, natives in their dealings under agreement, are generally dishonest, and required to be coerced into honesty by extraordinary laws. Another objection that he had to this Bill, and this had been, he believed, considered a recommendation of the measure, was, that it was drawn on the model of Act XIII of 1859 (The Artificers Act.) There had been much difference of opinion as to whether this Act had been of beneficial effect or not. He was disposed to think that it had not proved of much use in that part of India with which he was best acquainted. He held in his hand a return of the operations of that Act during one year, and from this, it would appear, that in the districts of the Madras Presidency, the number of cases disposed of under that law had not averaged more than forty in each district. But in two of these districts, where the decisions had been most numerous, namely, 297 in one district, and 115 in another, it had been ascertained that the provisions of the Act, and its interpretation had led to acts of serious oppression. The Inspector General of Police, who had had the best opportunity of becoming acquainted with the working and practical effects of this Act, had called the attention of the Government to the necessity of a more careful superintendence of the working of Act XIII of 1859. To him (Mr. Ellis), therefore, the fact that the Bill, which was about to be withdrawn, was framed on the model of Act XIII of 1859, was no recommendation. He must repeat, that the laws at present in force appeared to him to afford sufficient remedies for the evils of breaches of contract, and he did not think sufficient ground had been shown for additional legislation on this subject. It was a remarkable circumstance that, in the south of India, in the face of rapidly rising cotton prices, contracts for the supply of cotton during the past year had been honestly fulfilled in the midst of great temptation, and that there had been no call for special legislation in consequence of the general bad faith of the native producers, or their failure to fulfil contracts which left them only moderate profits, as compared to the large profits realized by purchasers. It was because he did not believe that this law was generally required, and certainly not in that part of India with which he was best acquainted, that he could regret the withdrawal of this Bill. In support of his opinion as regards the south of India he begged leave to read an extract from a letter he had received from a gentleman who, for many years, had entered into large contracts with natives for the supply of various kinds of agricultural produce:—"In Southern India, we have "no reason to complain of the provisions of the "law now existing for the fulfilment of contracts, "particularly those relating to the delivery of "produce. The practice here is to contract, not "at a price determined, years previous to the "time of delivery, but at the ruling rates at the "time when the produce is ready for delivery. "This prevents serious misunderstanding between "the parties, and is an effectual protection to the "interest of the parties to the contract—the pro-"ducer has no inducement to attempt to evade "his engagement, and the purchaser obtains the "produce for which he pays the ruling price of "the day, which must leave a reasonable profit "since others engaged in the same trade are ready "purchasers at such price. It would not be safe "to enact a law by which the needy ryot would "be exposed to be tempted to enter into engage-"ments which might, without any fault of his, "deprive him of his liberty, injure the best in-"terest of his family, and to some extent be a "social evil. Contractors in India must act "with the same caution and reserve in their deal-"ings as others similarly situated all over the "world; they must look to the solvency of the "party with whom they deal. If, for reasons best "known to themselves, they depart from this "wholesome practice, they do for their free ac-"cord run certain risks for the purpose of obtain-"ing certain objects, their chances are fully bal-"anced, and they must be prepared to stand the "consequences."

The LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR of Bengal desired, as one of the Select Committee, to make a few observations as to the part he had taken in the discussion which had terminated in this Report, a document which he had signed, and in which, so far as it went, he entirely concurred. The origin of the Bill which it was now proposed to withdraw might be traced to the recorded remarks of the late Governor-General, Lord Canning, on the Report of the Bengal Indigo Commission in 1860. While concurring with the late Lieutenant-Governor in deprecating exceptional legislation, that is, such legislation as would confer on the Indigo Planters greater advantages than are given to other classes in making contracts, or in punishment of the breach of them, His Lordship suggested that, as the fraudulent breach of contracts by artificers or labourers, and of contracts for public works was already cognizable by law, and punishable with fine and imprisonment, the same law might be extended to contracts for the delivery of agricultural produce, not Indigo alone, but all agricultural produce, when the breach of contract is fraudulent, and when an advance has been accepted. Early in 1861, on Lord Canning's return to the Presidency, the question was carefully and anxiously discussed, and it was then resolved that a project of law for the punishment of fraudulent breach of agricultural contracts should be brought before the Council in its legislative capacity. It fell to his (Mr. Beadon's) lot to frame and bring in the Bill, and though from the first he was inclined to agree in what he understood to be Mr. Erskine's view, that the case could best be met by the addition of a Clause to the Penal Code, defining the offence of fraudulent breach of contract, and making it punishable in the ordinary way, yet, on the whole, it was deemed expedient to shape the measure, as nearly as might be, on the model of the Act already in the Statute Book for the punishment of breach of contract by workmen, an Act, it might be added, which all were agreed could not by any force or ingenuity of construction be made to reach Indigo Contracts. In bringing this Bill before the Legislative Council, he distinctly stated that he was by no means partial to the particular form in which it was drawn, and he proposed that it should be referred to a Select Committee to be considered and reported on, before publication, so that the Council might determine, in the first instance, the form in which it was most expedient that the Bill should appear. All that he asked the Council to do was (to quote the very words he made use of) "to affirm the principle that persons in the condition of labourers who freely received a bonâ fide advance of money, and in consideration thereof voluntarily contracted to cultivate or deliver produce, if they wilfully and without reasonable excuse failed to perform their engagements, and either persisted in their refusal, or would not pay such damages as the Magistrate might think reasonable, should be liable to punishment." It was important to remark that the Bill, among other things, provided that the contracts, the breach of which it was proposed to make penal, must be in writing, duly witnessed and stamped; that a copy of them must be deposited in the Magistrate's Office within a month after execution; and that no breach of contract should be punishable if committed after the lapse of a year from the date of contract. The second of these conditions was admitted to be an imperfect substitute for registration, but it was hoped that, as a general measure, for the registration of deeds was then before the Council, this defect might be corrected before the Bill became law. The Council affirmed the principle of the Bill by a large majority, and the Bill was referred to a Select Committee, but before the Committee could present a Report, there came a Despatch from the Secretary of State condemning the measure, partly because it dealt with breaches of Civil contract in a Criminal way, and partly on account of its exceptional character. The Bill was accordingly abandoned. But Lord Canning's Government was so convinced of the necessity for providing, in some way or other, for the punishment of fraudulent breaches of contract, that, acting on a suggestion of the Chief Justice, it determined to make another attempt at legislation on the subject, an attempt such as would not be open to the objections brought against the former project, and would, it was hoped, meet with the approval of the Home Government. The result of this determination was Mr. Ritchie's Bill to which the present Report refers, a Bill which, as Mr. Maine had justly observed, was a compromise, and admitted to be such both by the author of the Bill and those who concurred with him in bringing it forward. The scope and object of Mr. Ritchie's Bill was to make punishable all breaches of contract committed in bad faith, provided a consideration of any kind had been received; and it empowered the Civil Courts, in an action for breach of contract, to commit the defendant to jail on a charge of fraud, there to maintain himself, or, if maintained by the Government, to be kept to hard labour. The Bill was, in fact, based to a certain extent on the bankruptcy law under which a dishonest debtor may be imprisoned without the intervention of the Criminal Courts. He (Mr Beadon) supported the introduction of that Bill, not because he entirely agreed in it, but because he approved of the general principle on which it was based, namely, that fraudulent breaches of contract should somehow or other be made punishable: but he pointed out at the time, as other Members of the Council also did, the objections that might be taken to the very wide scope of the Bill, and he urged that it should be confined to contracts made in consideration of an advance of cash. On the same occasion he again expressed a preference for some alteration of the Penal Code whereby fraud of this description might be made directly punishable by a Magistrate. He was now free to admit that the Bill was reasonably open to most of the objections made to it by the Secretary of State. He quite agreed that it would not be expedient to punish criminally the breach of such contracts as those referred to in the 4th paragraph of the Despatch. He admitted that it would be wrong and dangerous to empower all the Civil Courts, or any great number of them, to pass Criminal sentence on the defendant in a Civil action for breach of contract, especially without putting him on his trial. And he did not doubt that the definition of "bad faith," which the comprehensive character of Mr. Ritchie's Bill had rendered necessary, would give rise to extreme difficulty in dealing practically with such cases. Further, he could heartily concur, in a general way, in the doubts of the Secretary of State as to whether legislative interference in commercial transactions, with a view to coerce one of the parties to a contract, could be productive of good, but he was not the less firmly convinced that when once a contract had been freely made in consideration of a sum of money advanced for a specific purpose, and when it had been publicly acknowledged by both parties and registered at the time, the fraudulent breach of such a contract was as justly the subject of penal legislation as fraudulent breach of trust, or the crime defined in the Penal Code under the head of cheating. He was quite of opinion, however, that any attempt at further legislation in this country would be unwise, and he might say, undignified, until something could be done to remove the strongly expressed objections of the Home Government, and convince it that the true interests of India and its people absolutely demanded a law to punish fraud of this kind. As charged with the Executive Government of Bengal, it might become his duty to represent to the Governor-General in Council the necessity for such legislation, but as matters now stand, he did not consider that he was at liberty to take any other action in the matter. In offering these remarks he begged that they might be considered as applying only to the general question of criminally punishing fraudulent breaches of contract made in consideration of an advance, and not as in any way touching the special question of fraudulent breaches of contract by artificers and workmen. Contracts of this kind were provided for by a law which is already in force in the Presidency Towns, which has been extended partially to the Mofussil, and which may be further so extended at the discretion of the Executive Government.

The Hon'ble Mr. Harington said, upon the constitutional question which had been raised in the course of the debate he deemed it proper to make a few remarks. This seemed the more necessary in reference to what had fallen from his Honorable friend, Mr. Roberts, who considered that it was the duty of the Select Committee on Mr. Ritchies' Bill to have determined the effect of the Despatch lately received from the Secretary of State on the Bill. The right of this Council to pass any laws it pleased, except certain laws which were expressly excluded from its jurisdiction, admitted of no doubt. But it must be borne in mind that no law passed by this Council had any validity until it had received the assent of the Governor-General, who might reserve any law passed by the Council for the signification of Her Majesty's pleasure thereon, and that, moreover, any law passed by the Council, even though assented to by the Governor-General, would at once become null and void and of no effect in the event of Her Majesty disallowing it. It might be very true that the Indian Councils Act, to which his Honorable friend, Mr. Roberts, had alluded, did not expressly authorize the Secretary of State for India to make any objections, or to give any advice in respect to any Bill or project of law before the Council so long as the Bill or project of law was under the consideration of the Council, but he (Mr. Harington) thought that most Honorable Members would agree with him that the right to object or advise in respect to any pending Bill, was inherent in the Secretary of State for India from the nature of his Office. The Secretary of State had the same opportunities of knowing what Bills were brought before the Council which were enjoyed by the public at large, and if, as in the present instance, he entertained such serious objections to any Bill before the Council as should, in his opinion, prevent the Bill from passing into law, he (Mr. Harington) thought there could be no doubt as to his competency to state his objections to the Bill, and to advise that it should not be proceeded with. This was all that the Secretary of State had done on the present occasion. He had pointed out what appeared to him to be the objections to Mr. Ritchie's Bill and had expressed a hope that the Bill would be withdrawn. Assuming, then, that the course adopted by the Secretary of State was quite constitutional, on which point he, Mr. Harington, must repeat he thought there could be no doubt, it certainly did appear to him, and he believed most Honorable Members would be of the same opinion, that the Secretary of State had best consulted the public interest, and what was due to the Council, by communicating to the Council the objections which he entertained to Mr. Ritchie's Bill, and expressing the hope already mentioned, instead of waiting until the Bill had become law, and then advising Her Majesty to refuse her assent to it. Of course it was open to the Select Committee to have recommended that the Council should proceed with the Bill notwithstanding the objections taken to it by the Secretary of State, and there was nothing absolutely to prevent the Council from going on with the Bill if they pleased to do so, but he (Mr. Harington) did not think that this would be a wise or expedient course for them to pursue. He considered that the better course was that which the Select Committee had recommended, and he trusted that the Council would adopt the recommendation and allow the Bill to be withdrawn. It was not his intention on the present occasion to enter into the merits of Mr. Ritchie's Bill. When the Bill was introduced he had expressed himself as strongly opposed both to the principle of the Bill and to many of its details. He found most of the objections which he had taken to the Bill repeated in the Despatch from the Secretary of State. Other objections were taken to the Bill in that Despatch which, it must be admitted, were of considerable weight. He (Mr. Harington) would have divided the Council against the introduction of the Bill had there been any chance of his succeeding, but, finding that there was a majority against him, he had no alternative but to allow the Bill to go to a Select Committee. With regard to what had fallen from some Honorable Members in favor of the introduction of a Criminal breach of Contract Law he would observe that what they had now to consider was not whether any new law relating to breaches of contract, in the direction of the Bill introduced into the late Legislative Council by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, or of Mr. Ritchie's Bill, or in some other direction, should be brought in, but whether they should or should not go on with Mr. Ritchie's Bill. He might, however, remark that the Honorable Members, to whom he had just referred, appeared to have overlooked the fact that the Legislature of this country had very recently concluded a complete revision of the criminal law of India, and had introduced, as the result of that revision, a very carefully prepared Penal Code. This Code had been more than a quarter of a century under consideration before it became law, and some of the ablest and most eminent men in India had taken part in its preparation. It must not be supposed that the framers did not carefully consider the subject of breaches of contract, and how they should be dealt with. There was evidence indeed that the subject had been most fully considered by them. The framers of the Code had all the information regarding indigo and other contracts which was possessed by the Council, and the conclusion at which they arrived was expressed in one of their notes, in which they said that they agreed with the great body of Jurists in thinking that, in general, a mere breach of contract ought not to be an offence, but only to be the subject of a Civil action. They then went on to point out the cases in which an exception might, in their opinion, be properly allowed. This part of the Code might be regarded as falling within the category of particular legislation which his Honorable friend, Mr. Maine considered was, in certain circumstances, allowable; but the framers of the Indian Penal Code did not deem it right to include within their exceptions cases of the nature of those to which Mr. Ritchie's Bill was intended to apply. The Penal Code had not yet been twelve months in operation. No new circumstances had occurred, since its introduction, to shew that it required amendment in so far as it related to breaches of contract. It was not stated that there had been any failure of justice in consequence of the provisions relating to such breaches not being sufficiently large or stringent. The Code contained some very strict provisions against the fradulent alienation of property by persons against whom decrees might be passed, and others colluding with them in fraud of creditors. These were calculated to be very useful in suits brought to recover damages for breaches of contract, and he thought that the penal provisions of the Code went in this respect quite far enough. Then they had lately given to the country a simple Code of Civil Procedure, which put aside all new technicalities, and aimed only at affording to parties in Civil suits speedy and substantial justice. He believed that this Code was giving very general satisfaction, and was working exceedingly well. He heard, not long ago, of a suit having been instituted in the High Court to recover damages for a breach of contract. The sum sought to be recovered was large. The suit was brought, heard, and decided, and execution of the decree obtained in full in less than a fortnight. He was told that, under the former system, this suit would have occupied several months. This would shew how great had been the reform effected by the introduction of the new Code of Civil Procedure. Then a large number of Small Cause Courts had been established, where suits for breaches of contract were most prevalent, and there could be no doubt that these Courts would materially contribute to the speedy and satisfactory determination of such cases. It seemed to him, therefore that, instead of proposing fresh legislation, and that too of a novel and exceptional character, they should give the laws which they now possessed a fair trial. He contended that the Penal Code and the new Code of Civil Procedure had not yet had a fair trial. It was too soon to judge of their effects. If, after a sufficient time had elapsed to admit of an opinion being formed on the subject—really practical, not merely theoretical—objections were found to exist in respect to any part of either Code, and an amendment appeared to be needed, by all means let the amendment be made. Some Honorable Members had alluded, in the course of the debate, to the laws which had been recently passed in England for the punishment of Trustees and Bankrupts who might be guilty of fraud. His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal appeared to think that those laws gave power to the Bankruptcy Courts to punish persons proved before them to have been guilty of any fraudulent conduct, but he (Mr. Harington) apprehended that this was not the case; all that the Court could do was to commit the offender for trial before the Court of Session by which the trial was held with the aid of a jury. He had pointed this out to his Honorable friend, Mr. Cowie, in some correspondence which he had had with him regarding Mr. Ritchie's Bill. It was in that correspondence that the remark relating to juvenile Magistrates occurred to which Mr. Cowie had referred. If he (Mr. Harington) recollected rightly what he said was, not that some young Magistrates were not competent to the duties which they were now required to discharge, but that it would not be proper to devolve upon these comparatively young and inexperienced officers duties which at home were performed by old and experienced and trained Judges with the aid of a jury. He believed that he had added that a Sessions trial in every case of alleged breach of contract in this country would be most vexatious and harrassing to all concerned, and would be almost an impossibility. He could not conclude without expressing the pleasure with which he had listened to the letter which had been read to them by his Honorable friend, Mr. Ellis. His own experience entirely confirmed what had been stated by the writer of letter.

The Hon'ble RAJAH DEO NARIAN SINGH said that he had not received a copy of the Report, and could not therefore express any opinion on it. But he had already expressed his opinion on the Bill when it was introduced.

The Hon'ble Sir R. NAPIER said, that there was but little left for him to say on this question, but as a Member of the Government, which introduced the Contract Bill, he was unwilling to let the present Motion pass without remark. The admission which had fallen from his Honorable friend, Mr. Harington, regarding the state of the Civil Courts in the Mofussil within a recent period, afforded the best explanation of the grounds on which Mr. Beadon's Contract Bill was framed. The intention of that Bill was to provide for a class of contracts not within reach of the ordinary Civil Courts. We were informed of individuals being subject to breaches of contract by several thousand persons for amounts separately so small that even a successful prosecution in a Civil Court could only result in additional loss and expense, but no sufficient number of Civil Courts could possibly be provided to deal with such cases promptly. The immunity from the Civil Courts afforded by the great number of these cases, and the small amount involved in them, gave such temptation to, and facility for, breaches of contract, that it appeared necessary to deter persons from committing them by a penal law. It was objected to such a law that it would lead to great oppression through the inefficiency of the Magistrates, but we had seen the exercise of summary laws in the Non-Regulation Provinces without such results. Of course, Magistrates entrusted with summary powers should be subject to the strictest supervision, and gross neglect, or deficiency of judgment, should be very severely dealt with. Summary laws and prompt administration of justice were much more suited to the character of the people of India than the protracted litigation of Civil Courts. It was notorious in the Upper Provinces how much more the people regard those administrators who give them prompt decisions, even though they may not be invariably faultless than those who give them the most perfect but long delayed and tardy justice. The object of Mr. Beadon's Bill was to meet the class of breaches of contract for which the ordinary Civil law could not afford a remedy, and in that view he (Sir R. Napier) cordially supported it. But the Bill was not permitted to become law, and, as stated by Mr. Beadon, the Bill now before the Council was framed by our lamented colleague, the late Mr. Ritchie, as a compromise. He (Sir R. Napier) could not say wether he should eventually have assented to that Bill or not. Although there were several points in the Bill to which he entertained objections he had consented to its being sent to a Select Committee because the Contract Bill was wanted, and he hoped that this one might undergo such alterations as would enable him to support it. Regarding the constitutional question which had been raised he might observe that it had pleased Her Majesty to invest the Secretary of State with authority over the Government of India, and it was surely better that he should intimate his objection to a measure sure, the principle of which he was entirely opposed to, rather than that he should watch in silence the progressive steps of a Bill, and allow it to be matured, with the determination to reverse it as soon as the Government of India should be fully committed to it. Under the present circumstances the decision of the Select Committee appeared to him the best that they could have arrived at.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT said, that he had listened with the greatest interest to the instructive discussion which had taken place, and especially to the important statements made by the Hon'ble Mr. Cowie and the Hon'ble Mr. Fitzwilliam. In his position it would be the height of indiscretion to state any opinion until he saw his way clear to some course of action that would be effective and useful. On the whole, he agreed with the Hon'ble Mr. Maine in his statement of general principles, but he could not entirely concur with Mr. Harington as to the hopelessness of discovering a remedy for the state of things which had been depicted that day. At the same time, when it was proposed to depart from that broad line of demarcation which separated Civil from Criminal enactments, they should have strong proof, not merely of the necessity of such a course, but also that they would be supported by public opinion in England. It might be better to deal with particular cases by special enactments, so that they might guard against deviating from the ordinary principles of jurisprudence beyond that which the actual necessity of the case demanded. In this coarse, however, they must guard against any legislation which might degenerate into class legislation. Whatever mistakes the Council might commit, he believed that they would never forget the broad general principle that every class of Her Majesty's subjects in India had equal claims to their sympathy and consideration. He trusted that the Council would appreciate his motives in refraining from any decided expression of opinion. The Lieutenant-Governor had alluded to Act XIII of 1859, the Artificers Act, and he (the Governor-General) must say that it was a proper subject for consideration whether the operation of that Act might not be extended beyond its present limits. If other special legislation were attempted it should be tentatively and cautiously, and they should first see if the evils complained of could not be overcome by other means. He had such confidence in the good sense of his countrymen, that he was persuaded the European Community would agree that it was better, if existing laws could possibly achieve the object in view, first to try their operation; but if beyond those laws, other special legislation was necessary to meet any proved evils, it would be the duty of the Government to endeavour to discover what remedy could be applied. He could not pledge himself that a remedy should be discovered; but he could assuredly say that the Government would not fail from want of a sincere attempt to discover it.

The Hon'ble Mr. Maine, in reference to what had fallen from Mr. Roberts, said, that the Despatch of the Secretary of State was not based upon any special provisions of the Councils Act, but upon the general power of superintendence over the Government of India entrusted to him by Parliament. Whatever power he had over the Governor-General in Council he could exercise over the Council as now assembled, and it was surely more convenient that he should state objections which he felt to be fatal to a Bill, prior to its passing, than that he should wait till the Bill had passed, and then disallow it.

His Excellency the President said, that there did not appear to be any question of constitutional right involved in this matter. The course of the Secretary of State, in reference to Bills before the Council, simply depended on questions of discretion. He had given no veto to the Bill, but had simply expressed his strong objection to it. Under the Rules of the Council, Bills were published prior to being passed, and it would not be a gracious proceeding in the Secretary of State, if he entertained strong objections to any Bill, to keep them back from the knowledge of the Council, and then to disallow it.

The Hon'ble Mr. Roberts said that the question had not been raised by him, but was raised by the Report, from which it appeared that some doubt did exist as to the effect of the Despatch on the deliberations of the Council. When that Report came before him, he had referred to the Indian Councils Act, and so far as he could judge, it appeared that the Secretary of State had exercised a power that was not authorized.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Maine then moved that the recommendation of the Committee be adopted.

The Hon'ble Mr. Roberts said that he should vote against the Motion.

The Motion was put and carried.

High Court Bill.

The Hon'ble Mr. Maine moved for leave to bring in a Bill to continue in force Act XX of 1862 (to provide for the levy of Fees and Stamp Duties in the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal; and to suspend the operation of certain Sections of Act VIII of 1859 in the said High Court) till the 1st July 1863. He said that Act XX of 1862 had been passed at the Special Meeting of Council to which His Excellency had already referred. Its operation would cease on the 31st of December, and as the Government was not yet in possession of the opinions of the Judges as to the provisions of any permanent Act that might be required for the High Court, it was necessary to continue this present temporary Act for a further period of six months. He proposed at the next Meeting of Council, to ask permission to proceed under a suspension of the Rules, so that the Bill might be passed at once.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

Municipal Assessment Bill (Straits' Settlement.)

The Hon'ble Mr. Maine moved for leave to bring in a Bill to extend the term for which the Municipal Commissioners in the Straits' Settlement are elected. He said that considerable inconvenience had been experienced in the Straits' Settlement from the Municipal Commissioners being elected only for a period of one year. After some correspondence with the Government of India, the Governor of the Straits was requested to prepare and submit a Bill extending the term of Office to three years, and the Hon'ble the Recorder of Singapore having been good enough to prepare a Bill for the purpose, it had been forwarded to this Government, for submission to the Council.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

Marriage Bill.

The Hon'ble Mr. Harington introduced the Bill to provide for the solemnization of Marriages in India of persons professing the Christian religion, and moved that it be referred to a Select Committee. He said that leave to introduce this Bill was given by the Council in the month of February last. Their late Hon'ble Colleague, Mr. Ritchie, on asking for leave to bring in the Bill, entered into a full explanation of the objects and reasons of the Bill. His remarks had been incorporated in the Statement of Objects and Reasons which had been been printed and circulated and it was unnecessary that he (Mr. Harington) should occupy the time of the Council by recapitulating them now. But a very important addition had been made to the Bill as proposed to be introduced by Mr Ritchie. This addition, which was contained in Part IV of the Bill as now framed, was intended to meet the cases of the numerous classes of Native Christians who were scattered throughout the Country. He thought there could be no doubt that the previous provisions of the Bill were altogether unsuited to large numbers of these persons, and that some special legislation was necessary in their behalf. It seemed to be generally admitted, that it was impossible for the persons to whom he was referring to comply with the formalities in respect to marriage contained in the existing law, and it was not pretended that they did comply with them. The consequence had been much irregularity in the solemnization of the marriages of these persons, and there were great doubts as to the legality of some of their marriages. The present Bill would give validity to all marriages, however celebrated, up to the date of the passing of the Bill, and, for the future, it was thought that the part of of the Bill to which he was referring would afford to all classes of Native Christians, who might choose to avail themselves of the same, a simple, convenient and inexpensive mode of solemnizing their marriages, and of establishing their marriages when proof might be required either in respect to the succession to property or otherwise. He (Mr. Harington) could not conceal from himself that the part which had been added to the Bill, as prepared by Mr. Ritchie, was not free from difficulty, and some modification might be necessary before the Bill became law. There was no intention of hurrying on the Bill. The Bill would be published for the usual time, and ample opportunities would thus be afforded to the local Governments, and to all persons interested in the Bill, of making themselves acquainted with its provisions, and of offering any remarks or suggestions that they might think proper.

The Hon'ble Mr. ERSKINE expressed his gratification at hearing that it was not intended to press on this measure without affording full time for expressions of opinion. The subject was one that well deserved the consideration of the Legislature; but it involved many questions of considerable difficulty, and it was desirable that it should be brought distinctly to the notice of the local Governments.

The Hon'ble RAJAH DINKAR RAO said that the objections he had against passing this Bill, and his views respecting it, were as follows:—Section XLIII provides that it should be ascertained whether the persons intending to be married do not stand to each other within the prohibited degrees of consanguinity, and whether they have, or have not, a wife or husband, as the case may be, still living. It was necessary to know these points, and also whether both the parties profess Christianity. For it was often the case that persons on account of famine or quarrels left their homes. Deceit, force, or allurement were also sometimes the means of separating individuals from their relations. All this should be ascertained from the relations of the parties; the statement of the persons intended to be married should not be deemed sufficient proof. The enquiry could not, he (the Rajah) thought, be satisfactorily made by a person in Holy Orders, or by a person licensed to grant Certificates of Marriage between Native Christians. This task should be entrusted to the local Civil Authority, who should proceed as in cases of kidnapping, abduction, &c. No harm would be done if some delay in the performance of such marriage occurred in making these enquiries, and excitement, if any existed, would also be removed. It was possible that such persons, after the excitement was over, might repent and wish to go back to their relations and request their forgiveness and protection. The natural affection of the relations, even if their religion rendered it impossible to re-admit them into caste, might induce them to provide for their maintenance. It was mentioned in Section XV that the father, mother, or guardian of any party has power to make objection to the marriage. But in case these persons were at a distance, how were they to hear of the intention and come forward within fourteen days, the time allowed by this Bill? The period allowed for enquiry should be allowed to the relations for the purpose mentioned. Care should be taken that no one who, by being a relation, or from his religious feelings, should object to the marriage, although he was not entitled by this law so to object, should be punished. Mention was made in Section XLIII about the age of the parties, but it was necessary to know whether they were free according to their custom. He thought it would be well that this Bill should be referred to the local Governments in order to ascertain the objections of the Native community under their respective Governments. It would be said that, on the publication of the Bill in the Gazette, any one might raise objections against it. This course might be better, but it seemed to be seldom adopted.

The Hon'ble MR. HARINGTON said that thh suggestion made by his Hon'ble Friend, Raja-Dinkar Rao, that, in addition to the usual publication of the Bill, it might be advisable to call the special attention of the local Governments to the Bill seemed worthy of consideration, and he thought he might promise his Hon'ble Friend that his suggestian would be adopted. The remarks made by his Hon'ble Friend on some of the Sections of the Bill would be fully considered in Committee.

ABKAREE BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. HARINGTON introduced the Bill to amend the Law relating to the Abkaree Revenue of Fort William in Bengal, and Act XXIII of 1860 (to amend the said Act XXI of 1856), and moved that it be referred to a Select Committee. He said, in introducing this Bill, he deemed it right to draw attention to the fact that the Bill as framed would apply only to the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal. He had intended to propose that the provisions of the Bill should be made of general application, but after consulting his Hon'ble Friends, Mr. Erskine and Mr. Ellis, he had come to the conclusion that it would be better to leave the Governments of Madras and Bombay, which had their own Abkaree laws, to legislate for themselves, having first obtained the sanction of the Governor-General to their so doing. The previous sanction of the Governor-General would be necessary under the Indian Councils Act in reference to the character of the legislation. Some addition to the Bill would probably be necessary to admit of the extension of its provisions to the Punjaub and other Non-Regulation Provinces, but this might be considered in Committee.

The LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR of Bengal enquired if the Bill related to Bengal alone, and if in that case it might not be left to the Bengal Council.

The Hon'ble MR. HARINGTON said that the Bill was introduced on the recommendation of the Government of Bengal, but it included the whole of the Bengal Presidency, both Bengal and the North-Western Provinces.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The following Select Committees were named:—

On the Bill to provide for the solemnization of Marriages in India of persons professing the Christian Religion—the Hon'ble Messrs. Harington, Erskine, Ellis, and Roberts.

On the Bill to amend Act XXI of 1856 (to consolidate and amend the Law relating to the Abkaree Revenue of Fort William in Bengal) and Act XXIII of 1860 (to amend the said Act XXI of 1856)—the Hon'ble Messrs. Harington, Erskine, Ellis, and Roberts.

Government of Bengal.

Capabilities of Chittagong for the growth of Tea and Coffee.

From W. G. YOUNG, Esq., Officiating Commissioner of the Chittagong Division, to the Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 392, dated the 26th November 1862.)

SIR,—I HAVE the honor to forward, for the Lieutenant-Governor's perusal, two letters, addressed to me by Dr. Beatson and Mr. James Bruce, on the capabilities of this District for the growth of Tea and Coffee. The former gentleman has been a resident in the District for eight years, and the latter for more than twenty years. I also forward a Statement furnished by the Collector, shewing the Waste Lands available for grants in the surveyed part of the District, as distinguished from the unsurveyed Hill tracts in which there is any amount of jungle and waste.

2. Perhaps the Lieutenant-Governor will think that these papers are sufficiently interesting to be published in the Supplement to the Calcutta Gazette.

P. S.—I shall be obliged by your returning me the enclosed papers when no longer required.

From DR. W. B. BEATSON, Civil Assistant Surgeon of Chittagong, to W. G. YOUNG, Esq., Officiating Commissioner of the Chittagong Division,—(No. 30, dated the 29th October 1862.)

SIR,—I HAVE the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 350, dated 18th instant, requesting me to furnish you with a Report on the cultivation of Tea and Coffee in this District, shewing if such cultivation might be made a profitable branch of industry, and what causes have hitherto stood in the way of its being carried on.

In reply, I beg to state that I have no doubt that both Tea and Coffee of excellent quality can be produced in Chittagong, and that the only causes which have hitherto stood in the way thereof have been general ignorance of the fact, and want of capital on the part of the few acquainted with it, who could have given their attention to the manufacture.

Both Tea and Coffee grow luxuriantly with little cultivation, and are very probably indigenous. The latter seems to have been common at an earlier period, as Sir William Jones speaks of Chittagong, in his letters, as a place "where the Hills are covered with Pepper vines, and sparkle with the blossoms of the Coffee plant." Tea is said to have been found wild lately among the more distant Hills, and plants have been sent to Calcutta for examination, but I have never myself met with it.

The cultivation of Tea was first introduced by Mr. Scouce, late of the Civil Service, who imported seed from China, and established an experimental Garden about fifteen years ago. When I first arrived at Chittagong in the year 1854 the Garden had passed into other hands, but was still in good order, and contained not only Tea and Coffee, but various kinds of spices, Cinnamon, Pepper, Allspice, &c.

Soon after it became neglected, and the fences being destroyed, overrun with cattle, which, of course, did much damage. Nevertheless the Tea plants survived, and many of those originally planted remain to the present day.

The Garden is now in the hands of Mr. Fuller, who has about twenty-two acres under cultivation, and the produce, of which he has sent me a sample, is, in my opinion, superior to any Indian Tea I have met with. A sample moreover was forwarded to England last year, and examined by Messrs. Twining and Company, a copy of whose Certificate of its good quality is annexed. This sample consisted of leaves coarsely and unskilfully prepared, and it is therefore probable that, when cultivated and manufactured with greater care, Chittagong Tea will obtain a high value in the market.

I have not seen any of the Coffee produced in Mr. Fuller's Garden; other specimens I have met with have been good though cultivated with little care. The Coffee plant requires three years to bring it to maturity, and will not flourish without shade.

With reference to the expense of cultivation, I am informed that Coolies can be obtained for Rupees 5 per mensem and boys for Rupees 3. Any amount of labor is probably procurable as large numbers of Coolies constantly emigrate to Akyab, who would doubtless prefer remaining in their own District could they find remunerative occupation. At present the cost of clearing an acre of land is Rupees 90.

The cost of watering would be small, as the rains are very heavy and often last from April to November, so that, for a large portion of the year, there would be no outlay on that score. The soil is generally light and sandy, mixed with clay, and would probably require manuring.

With the cultivation of Tea and Coffee the manufacture of starch might, I think, be advantageously combined.

The common jungle of the District is a species of Ginger commonly known as "wild arrowroot." The leaves of this plant die off at the end of the rains, and its tubers are found during the cold weather abounding in starch which they yield to slicing and maceration in water. Starch is largely used in manufactures in England, and I believe a large quantity of the Rice exported from Arracan is converted into it. I think, therefore, that starch imported in large quantities would find a ready sale.

The supply of the wild arrowroot is inexhaustible, and if removed at the proper time of year would furnish material for a simple and valuable manufacture, while at the same time the growth of a noxious jungle would be checked.

The dead leaves and refuse of the manufacture would also serve to manure the ground devoted to Tea planting. I would strongly recommend that the manufacture of starch from this plant should be made the subject of careful experiment during the ensuing cold weather.

CERTIFICATE.

"We tested your sample of Tea and found it, A 1., such a Tea, if properly packed and brought over here as an article of merchandize, would command a high price, and especially if it were rather better manipulated and not quite so high dried. The flavour, however, is excellent, and the infusion is very bright and clear."

R. TWINING AND Co.

No. 215, STRAND,
The 1st July 1861.

From J. E. BRUCE, Esq., Assistant Salt Agent, Chittagong, to W. G. YOUNG, Esq., Officiating Commissioner of the Chittagong Division,—(dated the October 1862)

SIR,—IN reply to your letter No. 350 of the 18th current, I have the honor to furnish you with all the information that I possess regarding Tea and Coffee at this Station.

2. From Coffee plants which I have seen in private Gardens and in the Coffee Company's Garden at this Station, which was formed in 1842, I am quite satisfied that Coffee will grow well here if planted in suitable soil.

3. The plants in private Gardens grow luxuriantly and produce large crops. Those in the Company's Garden grow also, but not near so large. They also produce well according to their size, but the land on which they were planted was little else than sand; consequently considerable expense was incurred for watering, and large quantities of manure trees were grown for shelter; under these trees only did the Coffee plants continue to grow and produce Coffee. Mr. Sconce and myself were the only persons of the Company who took any interest in the Garden. He could not always look after it, and for four and a half months I was out of the Station at the manufacture of Salt. I have no doubt that Coffee planted on lower ground would prove a profitable undertaking, provided the revenue is not too high.

4. The Company's Garden was given up by all the Members but Mr. Freitas and myself; but as neither of us could give our attention to it, it was at last abandoned altogether, for the rent was very high, being Rupees 14 a year for a very small piece, and no remission could be obtained, though not a fifth part of the original grant was under cultivation, and watering, manuring, weeding, and fencing were very expensive.

5. One Mr. Hogg commenced up this river at Rangoneah on a large scale, but he died, I believe, within the year, so that no conclusion could be drawn from his experiments.

6. Some thirty years ago or more a Dr. Chapman planted Coffee on a spot at the back of the lines, and this I learned by having myself gathered the Coffee berries in the jungle about fifteen years ago.

7. They were very small and were not ripe when I got them. I have never been again to look after the plants, though I think I can easily find the spot.

8. I forgot to state that a maund of one Coffee was sent to England and pronounced good, but not properly picked and carelessly packed.

9. Mr. Sconce planted a Garden of his own entirely at his own expense, in which he put many Tea plants also; in our Garden then were only three Tea trees. Mr. Sconce's Garden is now known as Elson's Garden, and is in Mrs. Fuller's possession. From this Garden Mrs. Fuller has for some three years past produced Tea which she manufactures at this place (with untaught Natives), some of which taken home by Mr. Radcliffe, (lately Judge of this Station), was pronounced by Twining and Company to be excellent Tea, as good as China, but made very badly. I am unable to state what is the produce per acre. In my opinion Mrs. Fuller's plants are planted too close, being so close as to entertwine their branches.

10. As a proof of the hardiness of the Tea plant I will state two cases; first, the three plants which were in the Company's Garden were excluded from the fenced portion, and left entirely unprotected for four years; the cattle constantly eat them down, still they did not die till the fifth year.

11. Second, the late Mr. Ince planted a Garden with Tea and Coffee, from which, after the third year, he made some Tea, but whether good or bad I cannot tell. These Tea plants were planted on low land fit for Paddy. After Mr. Ince left this the Garden fell into Native hands, and some years ago the holder of the Garden cut the Tea plants down to the ground and sowed Paddy. I happened by chance to go to this Garden that year, and I saw large green leaves coming up amongst the Paddy. On looking closely at them I could not recognize them as any kind of the to me known jungle, though they were at least six times as large as any Tea leaves I had ever seen; in all else they were exactly Tea leaves; they were growing out of water, a span deep, and on personally examining them I felt the old stump and root, and convinced myself that these leaves were growing from these stumps; they grew up, and last year they were healthy plants with plenty of the usual sized leaves and some seed.

12. I have a plant in my Garden that has been broken down, barked by goats, and left utterly uncared for for fifteen years at least, and it is still alive, but has few leaves, and the flowers never come to seed. I have tried to restore it, but failed: however it is still alive.

13. The causes which stand on the way of the cultivation are, first, the want of enterprise in the inhabitants generally; second, the monied men of this District are either Merchants, Zemindars, or Ship-owners. The former never think of cultivation at all; the second never encourage experiments of any kind, but grind down their Ryots for their rents, and the Ship-owners look to the water, not the land, for their profits. The Ryot thinks Rice the most profitable, and he can at least live on it, and has as little means as inclination to try experiments. One great curse to this Station is the immense number of cattle kept mostly by people who have not a yard of land to graze them on; they are allowed to feed anywhere and everywhere. I have had my new fences cut and cattle let in, but to prove who did it was impossible.

14. In conclusion, I think that the experiments which have been made have been in unfavorable places, and have tended to deter rather than encourage further experiment.

15. I reared Tea plants from seed last year in gumlows, but on being transplanted at the beginning of the rains they lived, some a month, others more, and the last of them died last month, from which I conclude it is better to sow the seed where the plants are to grow. Two years ago the same thing happened, though I took care of them both years.

16. I sent some Tea and Coffee plants by Sea to one Mr. Portious at Akyab, and he acknowledged receipt of them; the former in fine healthy condition, but the latter several dead and drooping. I never heard what became of them.

17. In all cases the Coffee seems to require shade, and the best is a fast growing tree called the Chuckwah; it is not too thick in its foliage, and very quickly arrives at a size to shade thirty feet diameter, and ultimately sixty to sixty-four feet diameter.

18. In our Coffee Garden twenty-eight Coffee plants would grow under the shelter of one of these trees, the greater part to the north of the Trunk. The Coffee plants grow to about seven or eight feet in height; those planted eight feet apart did not meet, those at six feet apart did meet.

19. Will you allow me to add that Teak and Mahogany trees grow well here. The difficulty of getting Teak seeds to germinate is easily got over. I have produced thousands of seedlings at the Sudder Ghaut by simply spreading soil from the bottom of a creek under the trees, and allowing the seeds to remain till they spring up themselves. They fall in November and December, and spring up about the middle of the rains.

20. I planted the Teak (four trees which produced the seed) in 1841 or 1842; they were then about three inches high; seedlings obtained from the Botanical Garden, Calcutta. The three now average thirty-seven feet high to the very top, and five feet eight and a quarter inches circumference at two feet from the ground.

21. I planted six seedlings, one died, one was broken off at the ground by a cow, the others grew up; three years ago one was blown entirely down by a heavy North-Wester; it has not died, but is growing in that position.

22. If the Native Landholders could be induced to grow these instead of the vile useless maddar and other trees, they would become very valuable after a number of years; but I fear they will continue to grow firewood rather than look ahead to the benefit of posterity.

23. I will, with the hope of its being acceptable, make some remarks about Cotton which I have grown in my Garden on the top of my Hill.

24. I received some seed from the Collector (Mr. Ward) in November last, with instructions to sow in March. As that was a long time to wait, I thought the seed might spoil, so I at once sowed some on the 4th of November last, and in four days the seed had vegetated; they were allowed to grow in the seed bed till the middle of December, when somewhere transplanted. Of those transplanted 12 per cent. died, the rest lived. It is to be remarked that the soil is light soil, and no manure was applied before sowing, but some rotten horse dung was used when the plants were transplanted. Not the least care was taken of them, either those transplanted, or left in the seed bed. They were not weeded nor dug round, nor even watered once for four and a half months, as I was away in the Mofussil.

25. In March last one of the seedlings in the bed produced two pods, but after that none of them looked healthy. However the first rains in the end of March evidently put new life into them, and in the end of July they began to yield Cotton. The plants shot up long and thin, and had from two to four stems each. I carefully collected the Cotton, and I now send you a sample of it with the seed.

26. By examining the seed you will see that there are three different kinds; one kind is covered entirely with a coat of green velvet down, another is partially covered with the same, but having a clean belt round the middle, and none are quite without the green down.

27. I have observed the clean seeds had the longest fibre that entirely covered with the green down the shortest, and that, partly clean and partly covered, had fibre of intermediate length. This leads me to suppose that this last is a hybrid betwixt the other two.

28. I have no knowledge of the original Cotton, of which I received the seeds (it was stated to be New Orleans), therefore cannot say to what extent it has deteriorated; but as the sample was left entirely to nature, grown in high dry land without watering during the whole of the dry season, perhaps some conclusion may be drawn by experienced persons of the probable results of careful cultivation on suitable soil in this District.

29. I may further remark that there was a Garden established in Chittagong. So far as I can recollect, betwixt 1836 and 1840, it was on the ground near Mr. Ward's dwelling, on the left hand side of the road, where the old brick building is in ruins, and where Rice is now growing.* This used to be called the Company's Garden. I saw Cotton plants growing in it, and I know it produced very large purple sugar-cane. These obtained great favor with the Natives, and several applied for and obtained cuttings. These produced good cane, and I have seen them sold in the Buxee's Haut.

* Known as Budenauth's Garden.

30. I was in no way connected with the above Garden, and cannot give the slightest information regarding the experiments made on their results; but as it was said to be a Government experiment, probably the Collector's Office will be able to produce some information on the subject.

31. A gentleman of the name of Price, generally known as Captain J. Price, tried Hemp here many years ago, when Mr. Skipwith was Judge at the Station, and the produce was good, but rather short in fibre. However Captain Price was a Sailor, knew nothing of cultivation, and went the most expensive way about what he did on light sandy land; the loss was considerable in comparison to the small experiment made by him.

32. Linseed is grown in this District to a small extent for the seed only; the seed is well scattered that the plants may branch and produce seed. It is sown in the cold season, and seldom rises to more than a foot high. It is never cultivated for the fibres. A considerable quantity used to be produced on the Islands of Halteah and Duckin Shabazpore.

33. I have tried to induce some of the Zemindars in Nezampore to sow it thick, and towards the end of the rains, or in some moist spot, shewing them cloth produced from the plant; but I doubt whether they really believed that the cloth they were looking at was the produce of the "Teesee" as they call it. However none of them ever tried it that I know of.

34. There is a wild semi-creeper grows abundantly here, called by the Natives Taree, the pods of which are used by the Native Shoe-makers for tanning leather. It is somewhat like the South American Sumach. This last plant, which is so much valued for the fine soft light colored leather which is tanned by it, grows well here. I have several large shrubs of it in my ground. I send a little of the Taree pods, but they are three or four years old.

35. Cocoa and Nutmegs have been produced on the ground where I live. They were grown by my late father-in-law, Captain Marquard. The May gale of 1819 destroyed all the Nutmeg trees but one, which is still growing, but unfortunately a male tree. The Cocoa trees died after bearing fruit for four or five years, I believe, from a want of knowledge how to take care of them.

36. The Clove tree, the black Pepper vine, both produced fruit here. A tree of the former used to grow at the Revd. Mr. Johannes', and may be alive still; I have gathered Cloves from it, and Mr. Sconce had the latter in his Garden producing fruit. Cinnamon also grows here as a tree, but has never been tried by cutting down to produce shoots from which the Cinnamon of commerce is taken. I have a tree in my Garden which produces seed. Mrs. Fuller's Garden has also one or two of these trees in it. It grows wild in the Hills here of an inferior kind; I send a piece of the wood; the Natives call it Tezodi.

Statement of Objects and Reasons.

This Bill was prepared by the late Mr. Ritchie, with exception to Part IV relating to the marriage of certain Native Christians.

Mr. Ritchie, in a paper left by him, thus explained the Objects and Reasons of the Bill. He said "the object of this Bill is to put an end to the state of uncertainty which now exists in regard to Marriages in India of persons, one or both of whom are of the Christian Religion, but which are not solemnized in any of the modes expressly recognized by the law as valid.

"These modes are three in number—two of them being generally applicable to all persons of whatever denomination of the Christian Religion, and one being applicable only to a particular class.

"The first consists in the performance of the marriage ceremony by a Clergyman in Holy Orders, according to the sense in which the English law understands that term, that is, a Clergyman who has been episcopally ordained. No particular rite or religious ceremony is legally requisite to this form of marriage, but the presence of a Clergyman in Orders at the time of the mutual promise to become man and wife is essential. The Clergyman need not be of the same religious denomination as either of the parties. But the Clergyman of a denomination which does not recognise episcopacy, and who has not been ordained by a Bishop, confers no special privilege by his presence, and stands on the same footing in this respect as a layman.

"This was the only form of marriage recognised by the English common law as valid as was decided in 1844 in the House of Lords in the well known case of the Queen versus Millis.

"In 1818 it was provided by an Act of Parliament that marriages between persons, one or both of whom were of the Church of Scotland, solemnized by ordained Ministers of that Church as by law established, or by a Chaplain of the East India Company in India, should be of the same force and effect as if they were solemnized by ordained Clergymen of the Church of England, according to the rites and ceremonies of the Church of England.

"This privilege was recently extended by the Legislative Council to ordained Ministers of the Church of Scotland other than Government Chaplains (see Act XXIV of 1860.)

"Until the present reign no other positive law regarding the solemnization of marriages existed in India. But there was a general impression in consequence of Lord Stowell's famous decision in Dalrymple versus Dalrymple, that the presence of a Clergyman in Orders required by the English Marriage Act was not essential to the validity of a marriage in any part of the British Dominions beyond the operation of these Acts; and that a simple contract of marriage in words shewing that it was to take effect at once would suffice. The House of Lords in Millis' case decided upon the opinion of the English Judges, that the English common law of marriage as above stated obtained in Ireland, though the Marriage Act did not extend there, and that the presence of ordained Clergymen in Orders was thus essential. In consequence of the doubt thus thrown upon the validity of marriages in India in the absence of a Clergyman in Orders, the Statute 14 and 15 Vic. c. 40 commonly called the Indian Marriage Act was passed. This was followed by Act V of 1852, which gives effect to the provisions of the Statute.

"Under these Acts, marriages in the presence of a Marriage Registrar have been legalized. No religious ceremony is necessary, but it is optional to the parties to go through any religious ceremony they please. The Act of Parliament legalized all past marriages solemnized in India by persons not in Holy Orders, not being otherwise invalid by declaring them valid in law to all intents and purposes.

"But the doubt which existed as to the validity of such marriages at Common Law was not cleared up in regard to marriages contracted after the Statute. For it was provided that nothing in the Act shall invalidate any marriage which might be solemnized in India by any person in Holy Orders, or under the Statute of George the 3rd already cited, or any other marriage which under the law in force for the time being in India might have been there solemnized if the Act had not been passed. Provided that the Governor-General in Council might provide by Laws and Regulations, for the registration of such marriages."

In the case of Malcolm versus Cristall Perry's Oriental Cases.

The doubt thus left open as to marriages contracted since 1851 still exists. On the one hand Sir Erskine Perry, when Chief Justice of Bombay, and Doctor Lushington, as Dean of the Arches, have held that the principle laid down in the Queen versus Millis could not be applied to a country such as India or Australia in which, on the first introduction of English laws and institutions, there were no Clergyman in Holy Orders before whom marriage could be celebrated, and the House of Lords by passing a Divorce Bill founded on Sir Erskine Perry's decision, has to some extent, though by no means conclusively, sanctioned that view. On the other hand, the Court of Exchequer has held that the decision in question extended to invalidate a marriage performed between British subjects in Beyrout solemnized before a Baptist Clergyman not in Orders. And the Statute of 1818 and the Act of 1860 in favor of marriages performed by Ministers of the Scotch Church seem to shew that the Legislatures both in England and in India considered that the English common law applied to Indian marriages.

Catherwood versus Caston.

"It is almost impossible to determine which of these views is correct, though I am inclined to think that the former is right in principle. But the result of the doubts is, that there is a distressing degree of uncertainty as to the validity of many marriages solemnized since 1851, and that a great deal of fraud in regard to the performance of a sham marriage ceremony by persons having no special qualification but pretending to be qualified, has passed unpunished.

"In 1854, it was brought to the notice of the Government, that a person who had once been a school master, but had never been ordained to the ministry in any way professed to have authority to marry, and did perform the ceremony of marriage between several couples of Native Christians in the Backergunge District. Similar practices have been found to have prevailed in other districts, but as the person officiating did not profess to be a Marriage Registrar, but only to have authority to marry, and as according to my view of the law the marriages thus solemnized were legal, and the person referred to, therefore, as a witness did assist in rendering the marriages effectual it was found impossible to punish him for his imposition.

"It is felt to be time to put an end to the uncertainty which now surrounds the question, and which, on so important a subject, as the validity of marriages, ought not to be allowed to continue for a day longer than can be avoided.

"One ground upon which it is supposed that the Legislature in India left the question unsettled for the last few years, was that a law effectually dealing with the subject of Christian marriage must to some extent affect or interfere with the provisions of the English Statute of 1851, which it was beyond the power of the Legislative Council as then constituted to touch. The difficulty is now removed, as the India Councils Act contains no restriction upon the interference with the Act of Parliament passed in the year abovementioned, and the proposed change of the law is quite within the competency of the Council as now constituted.

"The only effectual mode of dealing with the question appears to be to pass a law declaring that for the future no marriages between persons, both or one of whom shall profess the Christian religion, shall be valid in law unless it be celebrated in one of the three modes already expressly recognized by law. There will be no hardship in thus declaring the law now. For the marriage Acts of 1851-52 have been ten years in operation. Their provisions are generally well known throughout India, and the facilities for contracting marriage under those Acts have been rendered as great by the appointment of Registrars at every place of any importance, both in our Dominions and in those Foreign States in alliance with Great Britain, (for which the Statue also provides) as can reasonably be desired.

"In regard to past marriages, it is proposed to declare that all marriages previously contracted in the presence of persons not in Holy Orders, if not otherwise invalid, shall be deemed good and valid. This is the course which had been adopted on occasions on which Parliament has prescribed a stricter rule for the future than that which had previously existed, or had been supposed to exist in regard to marriages.

See 6 & 7. Wm. 4. c. 85.
14 and 15 Vic., c. 40
7 and 8 Vic., c. 81.

"The Bill provides that for the future no marriage between persons, one or both of whom profess the Christian religion, shall be valid unless it be solemnized either (1) in the presence of a Clergyman in Holy Orders, or (2) in the presence of a Marriage Registrar according to the provisions of the Indian Marriage Acts, or (3) in the case of persons one or both of whom are of the Church of Scotland by law established, in the presence of a Minister of that Church.

"In regard to marriage by Clergymen in Holy Orders other than those of the Church of England or of Scotland provision is made for the registration of such marriages by the Clergyman, and for the transmission by him periodically of such Registers to the nearest Marriage Registrar.

"Punishment is provided for all persons who falsely pretend to have authority to perform a marriage ceremony, or to give validity by their presence to a marriage."

The object of Part IV which has been added to the Bill since it was framed by Mr. Ritchie, is to meet the cases of the numerous classes of Native Christians scattered over the British Territories in India. These classes number several thousand persons, the majority of whom are far away from Clergymen in Holy Orders or Ministers of the Church of Scotland, or Marriage Registrars, and their Pastors are frequently natives like themselves.

It is impossible to expect from these classes of Native Christians a general observance of the Rules contained in Act V of 1852 (for Marriages in India,) though there can be little doubt that the Act is applicable to them, and no one really supposes that the marriages of the Karen Native Christians for instance and others like them, are attended with all the prescribed formalities of Notices, Certificates, Registers, &c., &c.

It has been suggested that it would be better to leave Native Christians to what is called their own law of marriage, which is considered by some high authorities to have been preserved to them under Sections 21, 14 and 15, Vic. cap. 40, that is, the simple law of marriage per verba de præsenti, with the option of availing themselves of the provisions of the present Bill as drawn by Mr. Ritchie, should they think proper to do so. But there appears to be considerable difference of opinion as to whether marriages between Native Christians, solemnized in the manner abovementioned, are really valid. The point is one which ought not to be left in uncertainty, and in order effectually to clear up the doubts that now exist, legislation of some kind would seem to be required.

Moreover, assuming the legality of marriages between Native Christians, resting simply on the verbal declaration of the parties thereto, some provision of law would appear to be absolutely necessary for the registration of such marriages, and for affording easy means of establishing the same.

It is considered that the provisions contained in Part IV of the Bill, as it is now drawn, will do all that is really required in respect to the solemnization of the marriages of Native Converts to Christianity who may be prevented by distance or any other cause from availing themselves of the other provisions of the Bill, and that while the Part in question makes sufficient provision for the due regulation of such marriages, for preserving an official record of the same, and for preventing abuses, it will be found to afford to all classes of Native Christians a simple, convenient, and inexpensive mode of solemnizing their marriages, and of establishing the marriage when proof may be required either in respect to the succession to property or otherwise.

One of the conditions contained in Section XLII of Part IV of the Bill as essential to the granting of a Certificate of marriage under that Part is that the parties shall not stand to each other within the prohibited degrees of affinity or consanguinity.

It is to be observed that this is no new provision as respects Native Christians, though probably it is not always attended to. There seems to be no doubt that the legal impediments of kindred or affinity in respect of marriage which apply to European Christians apply equally to Native Christians, and so long as such impediments apply to European Christians, it is considered to be impossible, with any degree of propriety, to exempt Native Christians from them, or to make any distinction in this respect between the two classes.

M. WYLIE,
Depy. Secy. to the Govt. of India,
Home Department.

THE following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 17th December 1862, and was referred to a Select Committee who will make a report thereon after the 20th March 1863:—

No. 59 OF 1862.

A Bill to amend Act XXI of 1856 (to consolidate and amend the Law relating to the Abkaree Revenue of Fort William in Bengal), and Act XXIII of 1860 (to amend the said Act XXI of 1856.)

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend Act XXI of 1856, and Act XXIII of 1860, with respect to spirits which may be used exclusively in Arts and Manufactures, or in Chemistry; It is enacted as follows:—

Revenue Board may permit removal of spirits from Distillery on payment of duty.

I. It shall be lawful for the Board of Revenue, or other Chief Revenue Authority, to permit spirits to be removed from any licensed Distillery for the purposes aforesaid, on payment of duty calculated at 10 per cent on the value of the spirits, provided that no spirits shall be removed under this Act until they have been effectually and permanently rendered unfit for human consumption.

Revenue Board to prescribe rules for ascertaining and determining that spirits proposed to be removed have been rendered unfit for human consumption.

II. The Board of Revenue, or other Chief Revenue Authority, with the sanction of the local Government, shall, from time to time, prescribe rules for ascertaining and determining that spirits proposed to be removed for the purposes aforesaid have been effectually, and permanently, rendered unfit for human consumption, as required by Section I of this Act; for causing such spirits, to be so rendered, if necessary, by its own officers, at the expense of the person who wishes to remove them; and for regulating the maximum quantity to be passed out, and for fixing the value of the spirit on which the ad valorem duty shall be levied.

Penalty for breach of such rules.

III. Every person who shall wilfully contravene any rule prescribed by the Board of Revenue, or other Chief Revenue Authority, under the last preceding Section of this Act, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding 500 Rupees for every such offence.

Penalty for attempting to render fit for human consumption, spirits removed under this Act.

IV. Every person who shall attempt, or shall connive at an attempt, or render fit for human consumption spirits removed from a Distillery under the provisions of this Act, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand Rupees; and the possessor of such spirits on which such attempt has been made or which may have been rendered fit for human consumption, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred Rupees.

Further penalty.

V. In every case of conviction under the last preceding Section the liquor or spirits with the cask or vessel containing the same, and the cart, boat, and animal or animals employed in carrying such liquor or spirit shall be liable to confiscation.

Act to be read as part of Act XXI of 1856.

VI. This Act shall be read and taken as part of Act XXI of 1856.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

This Bill is supplemental to that part of the Bill lately introduced to amend the Law relating to the Duties of Customs on Goods imported and exported by Sea, which provides that Spirits so imported exclusively for the purposes of Arts and Manufactures or Chemistry shall be admitted at a less rate of Duty than Spirits similarly imported for human consumption as a beverage. In explaining the objects and reasons of the part of the Bill just referred to, I stated that Spirits distilled in the Country, and intended to be used exclusively for the purposes mentioned, would be dealt with separately. The present Bill proposes to place home-made Spirits intended to be used exclusively in Arts and Manufactures or in Chemistry, on the same footing, as respects Duty, as methylated Spirits exported by Sea for similar purposes and to render them liable to a Duty of 10 per cent ad valorem, instead of the comparatively high rate per gallon now charged. The Bill also contains what appear to be suitable provisions to prevent frauds upon the Revenue consequent upon the proposed relaxation of the existing law.

No. 2.—Report of the examination of such Opium.

16. The Public are hereby informed that, in providing the investment of the Behar and Benares Opium for the year 1861-62, the same precautions have been taken as those which have been observed during past years, to have the drug procured and set down in a pure state, to have only the prescribed quantity of leaves used in forming the cakes, and to have the due proportion of Opium put into each cake. An account of the weight of the drug when packed at Behar and Benares, and a Statement of the average weight of the chests indiscriminately taken for the purpose of comparison from the despatches on arrival at Calcutta, may be seen, on application, at the Office of the Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue, four chests of Behar and Benares Opium, viz., two of the season's provision under sale, and two of the provision's season will be also shown to the purchasers in the Sale Rooms on the day of Sale, to enable them to judge of the state of preservation of the drug in the chests offered for sale.

17. Any further information respecting weight or quality of the Opium advertized for sale that may be desired by parties connected with the trade will, as heretofore, be furnished to them on application at the Office of the Board of Revenue, but in accordance with established usage, under no circumstances will the Board entertain or recognize any claim to compensation for loss from any alleged deficiency of weight, abstraction of Opium, or adulteration of the drug, which may be preferred on reference to chests after the sale and delivery of the Opium for shipment.

18. It is hereby further notified, that, under the 6th Article of the Convention between Great Britain and France, dated the 7th March 1815, quoted below, the Agents in India of the French Government, or persons duly appointed by them, are entitled to demand, that out of the quantities of Behar and Benares Opium declared as above for sale at the twelve sales of the year 1863, there shall be delivered to them, at the average of the particular Sale or Sales to which the Opium so applied for may belong, a quantity not exceeding in the aggregate 300 chests, and the Agents of the French Government must make requisitions specifying the quantity of Opium required by them at any particular sale within thirty days from the advertizement of such intended sale; provided, however, that the Agents of the French Government may make such requisition for the whole quantity within thirty days from the publication of this Notification. If the Agents of the French Government shall not make the requisitions for Opium within the time abovementioned, the entire quantity of about 39,617 Chests of Behar and Benares as above estimated will be brought to sale in the usual manner; and if they shall make application for a quantity of Opium to be delivered to them out of the quantity advertised for sale at each or any of the twelve Sales abovementioned, but shall not pay for it within the prescribed period of payment the Government of Bengal reserves to itself the right of disposing of the Opium which the French Authorities may so fail to pay for, either by increasing the quantity reserved at the Sale next ensuing the date of payment, or by selling it at a Sale to be held expressly for the purpose.

Article 6th.—"With regard to the trade in Opium, it is agreed between the High Contracting Parties that at each of the periodical Sales of that article, there shall be reserved for the French Government and delivered upon requisition duly made by the Agents of His Most Christian Majesty, or by the persons duly appointed by them, the number of chests so applied for, provided that such supply shall not exceed three hundred chests in each year, and the price for the same shall be determined by the average rate at which Opium shall have been sold at every such periodical Sale, it being understood that, if the quantity of Opium applied for at any one time shall not be taken on account of the French Government by the Agents of His Most Christian Majesty within the usual period of delivery, the quantity so applied for shall nevertheless be considered as so much in reduction of the three hundred chests hereinbefore-mentioned. The requisitions for Opium as aforesaid are to be addressed to the Governor General at Calcutta within thirty days after notice of the intended Sales shall have been published in the Government Gazette."

ORDERS by the LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR of BENGAL.

No. 5725.

NOTIFICATION.—The 9th December 1862.—The following Despatch from the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State, with enclosure, is published for general information:—

From the RIGHT HON'BLE SIR CHARLES WOOD, BART., M. P. and G. C. B., Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, to His Excellency the Right Hon'ble the Governor General of India in Council,—(No. 47, dated London, the 24th September 1862.)

MY LORD,—I FORWARD to you, herewith, for your information and guidance, a copy of a letter* from the Board of Trade, having reference to a Report of Inquiry held at Bombay relative to the abandonment at sea of the Ship Loodianah, and drawing my attention to an Act passed in the last Session of Parliament, some of the provisions of which materially bear upon the powers and the proceedings of Courts of Inquiry held in the British Possessions abroad to investigate the causes of wrecks, or the conduct of Masters and Mates and Engineers in the Merchant Service.

* Dated 4th September 1862.

2. I also forward to you a copy of this Act, entitled "The Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act 1862."

3. I have to direct your special attention to the fact pointed out in the letter from the Board of Trade that it is essential that any Report of an investigation held in India under the Merchant Acts should not only receive, but bear the formal confirmation in writing of the Governor or person administering the Government of the Presidency where the Court is held; and I have further to request that you will impress upon the Marine Authorities of your Presidency the necessity of a rigid compliance with the provisions of the Act of Parliament, and with the instructions communicated in the letter from the Board of Trade referred to in this Despatch.

From JAMES BOOTH, ESQ., to the Under-Secretary of State for India, India Office,—(No. 4534, dated Whitehall, the 4th September 1862.)

SIR,—I AM directed by the Lords of the Committee of Privy Council for Trade to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 26th ultimo, transmitting extract of a letter from the Government of Bombay, enclosing copies of a Report and Proceedings of a Court of Inquiry held at the Police Office, Bombay, to investigate the circumstances connected with the abandonment of the Ship Loodianah at sea.

I am to acquaint you that a copy of the Report will be forwarded for the information of the Owners of the above Ship.

My Lords take this opportunity of directing the attention of Secretary Sir Charles Wood to an Act that was passed late in the last Session of Parliament, some of the provisions of which materially bear upon the powers and the proceedings of Courts of Inquiry held in the British Possessions abroad to investigate the causes of wrecks, or the conduct of Masters and Mates and Engineers in the Merchant Service.

I transmit herewith six copies of the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act 1862.

It appears to my Lords that it is very important that the earliest opportunity should be taken to direct the attention of the Governments of the several Presidencies and Dependencies in India to the provisions of the 23rd Section of this Act, which gives to Courts of Inquiry the power which, until the passing of the Act, was exercised exclusively by the Board of Trade of cancelling or suspending the Certificates of Masters and Mates; also to Section XXIV., which gives the Court a power which they did not previously possess of demanding the delivery to them of a Certificate pending the trial of the offender.

My Lords would suggest that the Secretary of State should, in making known those provisions to the Authorities in India, particularly impress upon them the necessity of a rigid compliance with the requirements of paragraph 6 of the 23rd Section of the Act, and should also point out that it is essential that any Report of an investigation held in India or the Dependencies should not only receive, but bear the formal confirmation in writing of the Governor or person administering the Government of the Presidency or Dependency where the Court is held.

This formality is rendered necessary by the 5th provision in Section CCXLII. of the Merchant Shipping Act 1854.

It is hardly necessary to observe that, unless it is in future shewn upon the face of any Report of Inquiry into wrecks, or into the conduct of Officers in the Merchant Service, that the requirements above referred to have been strictly observed, it will not be in the power of this Board to withhold a Certificate that may have been cancelled or suspended abroad, and the intention of the Act will be frustrated.

My Lords think it right to observe, with reference to the preceding remarks, that the Report of Inquiry in the case of the Londianah is not formally confirmed by the Government, and the evidence, which is not in original, is not certified as a true copy, and it would not have been in the power of this Board, had the occasion required it, to cancel or suspend the Certificate of the Master or Mate; those Officers must have escaped punishment owing to the informality of the proceedings.

I am to add that there are other provisions in the accompanying Act relating to Merchant Seamen which will form the subject of a further communication for the guidance of Shipping Masters in Her Majesty's British Possessions abroad.

DIVORCE COURT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. MAINE moved for leave to introduce a Bill for conferring upon the High Courts of Judicature the jurisdiction and powers vested in the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes in England. He said that the object of the Bill was to give effect to the policy embodied in the High Court's Act passed in 1861, and to the Letters Patent issued by Her Majesty for constituting the High Courts. The object of the High Court's Act seemed to have been not so much to create new branches of jurisdiction as to constitute and re-distribute the power which already existed. The 9th Clause gave power to Her Majesty to confer on the High Courts such matrimonial jurisdiction as she thought fit; but, following the principle he had mentioned, Her Majesty did not attempt to confer on the High Court such a jurisdiction as was exercised by the Divorce Court in England. The Secretary of State therefore requested the Governor-General to introduce a measure conferring a jurisdiction on the High Courts here similar to that exercised by the Divorce Court sitting in London. The course pursued was probably the only one which could have been followed under the circumstances, but it had given rise to a peculiar difficulty, which had been the cause of some delay in introducing this Bill. The matter was so delicate and important that, even before the text of the Bill was in the hands of the Members, he would state what that difficulty was. He need not say that before such a Bill as this was brought in, deeply concerning the High Court, it was submitted to the Judges of that tribunal. The Government were in possession of their answers, and two of the Judges of the High Court of Bengal had given specific opinions on the point to which he had referred. They called attention to its being doubtful whether, if the High Court, acting under the authority conferred by the Council, decreed the dissolution of marriage between persons belonging to a certain class of Her Majesty's subjects in India, there was anything in the present state of the law which would compel the English Courts to recognize those decrees and to view the marriages put an end to as legally dissolved. One learned Judge (Mr. Justice Norman) was, on the whole, of opinion that a decree of the High Court dissolving a marriage would now be recognized in England. The Chief Justice, however, considered it more than doubtful whether such decrees would be allowed by the English Courts to have this consequence, and though no concurrence of his (Mr. Maine's) could add weight to the opinion of Sir Barnes Peacock on this point, he must say that, ever since he had tried to address himself to this subject, he had been struck with the same difficulty. He would attempt to explain what this difficulty was. There was no doubt that the rule of a private international law, the rule received among communities under what was called the comity of nations, was that every man's status, his personal condition, was to be determined by the law of his domicile, of the country in which he was domiciled; so that a man who is a major or minor, or bachelor or divorced man, in the place where he had acquired a domicile, was a major or minor, and so forth, in every other country. Of course the highest authority by which a man's status could be declared in any country was the authority of a Court of competent jurisdiction, and hence it followed that all tribunals were bound by the comity of nations to respect and recognize the decrees of divorce passed by foreign Courts. Now, then, as the Courts of every dependency of the British Crown, which had a complete and independent judicial system, are foreign Courts relatively to the English tribunals, it would seem that a decree of the High Court dissolving a marriage between domiciled Christians under the measure now to be introduced ought to be deemed effectual by every English tribunal, and that such a decree would be regarded as valid in respect of one class of Indian Christians there seemed to be no doubt. When persons had been married in India, and the marriage had been dissolved by the High Court, no difficulty existed, and the dissolution would be held to be complete even in England. But when persons had been married in England, and their marriage had been dissolved in India, it was far from certain that English tribunals would consider them at liberty to remarry. The doubt had been caused by a judicial decision which had become memorable in that branch of jurisprudence, and which was known as the King against Lolly, or Lolly's case. Lolly, in 1812, was indicted for bigamy, and he pleaded in defence that his first marriage was dissolved by a Scotch decree. All the twelve English Judges held that such a dissolution was of no validity in England, and Lolly, who had been convicted, underwent the punishment to which he had been sentenced. The decision was, as he had heard, consonant with the prevalent feeling of the time, for much anxiety had been caused by the apparent facility with which divorces were obtained from the Consistorial Branch of the Scottish Court of Session, but at the same time it was in flagrant discordance with the rule of private international law. Hence, a long succession of the best legal authorities had expressed dissatisfaction with Lolly's case, or had attempted to explain it away. Some, with whom Mr. Justice Norman was disposed to agree, had pointed out that the decision turned partly on the circumstance that marriages at common law in 1812 were incapable of dissolution, so that the law being now otherwise the case had lost its authority. Others, including the Judge of greatest experience in matrimonial law, Dr. Lushington, had observed that the Judges, in 1812, did not seem to have paid attention to the question of domicile. But on the whole, he ventured to think that the better opinion was Sir Barnes Peacock's, who considered that, so long as Lolly's case was not formally over-ruled, it was impossible to say that persons married in England and divorced in India would be regarded in England as capable of contracting a legitimate re-marriage. This case, too, as the Council would see, was one in which doubt is almost as intolerable as unfavorable certainty; for doubts as to the validity of divorces were doubts as to the lawfulness of re-marriage. Doubts as to the lawfulness of re-marriage were doubts as to the legitimacy of children; and doubts as to the legitimacy of children were doubts as to the right of inheritances; so that these difficulties, if not set at rest, might lie in ambush for the third and fourth generation, and fifty or sixty years hence the right to an estate might be impeached on account of an unsettled question respecting an Indian divorce. The question, therefore, was what course ought they to adopt in legislating on these subjects. There could be no doubt that as they were competent to legislate for a large class of Christian subjects, those who had been married in India, they should not delay the relief they could give to such of them as were unfortunate enough to be compelled to resort to the new branch of the High Court. Meantime, the Governor-General in Council had requested the Secretary of State to lay the difficulty before the Law Officers of the Crown. If they, considering the criticisms which had been directed against Lolly's case by so many learned persons, were of opinion that it was originally decided erroneously, there would be reasonable security for persons married in England who re-marry after a decree of divorce by the High Court. If they thought that Lolly's case still stood in the way, the Secretary of State would doubtless think fit to apply to Parliament for a remedy, which might take either of two forms suggested by the Judges of the High Court. Indian divorces might be rendered simply and at once as binding in England as divorce by the English Divorce Court, or they might be registered there, and if not appealed from within a certain period they might acquire the validity of an English matrimonial decree.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

Emigration to Saint Croix.

The Hon'ble Mr. Maine moved for leave to introduce a Bill relating to emigration to the Danish Colony of St. Croix, and said that, after a rather protracted negotiation between the Danish and Her Majesty's Governments, it had been resolved to pass a measure giving effect to emigration to that Colony. The Bill had been framed exactly in the same way as the former Bills, and as it was a matter of comparatively small importance he would not take up the time of the Council with any further remarks.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

Articles of War.

The Hon'ble Mr. Maine introduced the Bill to amend Act XXIX of 1861 (to consolidate and amend the Articles of War for the government of the Native Officers and Soldiers in Her Majesty's Indian Army), and moved that it be referred to a Select Committee with instructions to report in four weeks. He said that the only Clause in the amended Bill which was of great importance was that which conferred certain powers on Officers belonging to small Detachments situated beyond the Seas. The exact nature of all the amendments would be seen in paper marked No. 1, appended to the old Articles side by side.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

ACT XX OF 1862 CONTINUANCE BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. MAINE also introduced the Bill to continue in force Act XX of 1862 (to provide for the levy of Fees and Stamp duties in the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, and to suspend the operation of certain Sections of Act VIII of 1859 in the said High Court) till the 1st January 1864. The object of the Bill (he said) was to supply an omission in the original Bill. By an accident, which very frequently occurred in the preparation of enactments of that kind, provision had not been made to enable the Court to fix the time within which an application for a review of judgment should be made. Provision had been made for Appeals, and this Bill would put applications for reviews on the same ground. He applied to his Excellency the President to suspend the Rules of Business in order that the Bill might be passed at once.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT declared the Rules suspended.

The Motion, that the Bill be passed, was then put and agreed to.

The following Select Committee was named:—

On the Bill to amend Act XXIX of 1861 (to consolidate and amend the Articles of War for the government of the Native Officers and Soldiers in Her Majesty's Indian Army)—Messrs. Erskine, Ellis, and Roberts.

The Council adjourned.

ARTICLE 82.

Powers of Officers Commanding Detachments in punishing offences.

An Officer Commanding a Detachment of his own Regiment or Corps may assemble a Regimental Detachment Court Martial; and an Officer Commanding a Detachment, consisting of men of different Regiments or Corps, may assemble a Detachment or Line Court Martial. Every Court so assembled shall be constituted in the manner provided for a Regimental Court Martial under the provisions of these Articles of War, and shall have the like powers.

The provisions of these Articles of War which relate to a Court Martial held in a Regiment or Corps shall, in all practicable cases, be taken to apply to a Court Martial held in a Detachment.

No Officer on detached command of less than three Troops or Companies, or of a Detachment not numerically equal to three Troops or Companies, and not being on the line of march or on board a ship or other vessel, shall carry into effect any punishment awarded by a Court Martial held by his order until the sentence shall have been confirmed by the Officer Commanding the Regiment or Corps to which the offender belongs, or by any other nearest Superior Officer holding a command of not less than a Regiment, who is hereby authorized to confirm every such sentence in like manner as an Officer Commanding a Regiment or Corps might do. Provided that in detached situations beyond the Sea, or out of the British Territories in India, or when on service in the field, or in cases where an immediate example is necessary, and reference cannot be made to such Commanding or Superior Officer without detriment to the service, the Officer Commanding such Detachment may exercise the powers which are vested in an Officer Commanding a Regiment or Corps.

Clause 2.

The Commanding Officer of any Detachment of not less than three Troops or Companies, or of any Detachment numerically equal to or greater than three Troops or Companies; and the Commanding Officer of any European Detachment to which native details are attached (of whatever strength or number such European Detachments or such native details may be); and any Commissary of Ordnance or other Commissioned Officer in charge of any Arsenal, Ordnance Establishment, or any Camp Equipage Depôt, may summarily try any offence against these Articles of War, committed by any person under his command or who is subject to such Articles (not being a Commissioned Officer); and may on conviction sentence such offender and carry out such sentence without confirmation or any further authority; provided that such sentence shall not exceed the powers of a Regimental Court Martial.

In detached situations beyond the Sea, or out of the British Territories in India, or when on service in the field, or in cases where an immediate example is necessary, and a Court Martial cannot be convened under Clause 1 of this Article without detriment to the service, and reference cannot be made without such detriment to the Officer Commanding the Regiment or Corps to which the offender belongs, or to any other Superior Officer holding a command not less than that of a Regiment who is hereby, in case of such reference, authorized summarily to try, and in case of conviction to sentence the offender and to carry out such sentence under this Clause as if the offender had been under his command; the Officer Commanding any Detachment, though of less than three Troops or Companies or not numerically equal to three Troops or Companies, may exercise the powers of summary trial, of sentencing the offender, and of carrying out such sentence described in this Clause.

Any Commanding Officer or other Officer holding a trial under this Article shall be deemed a Court Martial, and the words "Court Martial" in these Articles of War, shall be deemed to include such Commanding Officer or other Officer holding a trial.

The proceedings of such summary trial shall be conducted, so far as may be practicable, and shall be recorded in the same manner as is provided in Article 81 for summary trials by an Officer Commanding a Regiment or Corps, and shall, in like manner, be signed and forwarded to the Officer Commanding the Division within which such Detachment shall be at the time, who is hereby authorized to set aside the trial for the same reasons that an Officer Commanding a Division is authorized by Article 81 to set aside a trial by an Officer Commanding a Regiment or Corps. Provided that every sentence so awarded by an Officer Commanding any such Detachment or by any other Officer holding a trial under this Article may be carried out without waiting for its approval by the Reviewing Officer.

ARTICLE 117.

No person to be tried a second time for the same offence.

No person who shall have been acquitted or convicted by a Court Martial of any offence, shall be liable to be tried a second time by the same or any other Court Martial for the same offence. Provided that any person may be tried for the offence of murder, and punished for that offence, notwithstanding he may have been tried and punished for the act which caused death, if at the time of his conviction for the said act death shall not have resulted, or shall not have been known by the Court which passed sentence to have resulted.

When any person subject to these Articles of War shall have been found guilty by a Court Martial of any Military offence, such Court Martial shall enquire into and receive evidence of any previous conviction of such person before a Court Martial or a Court of Justice, and shall enquire into the general character of such person, if a Soldier, for the purpose of apportioning the punishment to which he is liable to be sentenced for the offence of which he has been so found guilty. And it shall not be necessary to give any notice to such person, previously to his trial that such evidence will be received.

ARTICLE 166.

Regulations respecting Bazar and Cantonment Police, and Punchayets, declared in force.

The Regulations by which in any Presidency the Office and powers of Commissariat Officers, or Officers in charge of the Police in any Cantonments, or Superintendents of Military Bazars, are at present defined and controlled; or by which Punchayets are constituted and guided, shall continue to be in full force, and to be observed at the several Presidencies respectively.

Construction.

III. This Act shall be read and taken as part of the said Act XXIX of 1861.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THIS Bill is intended to amend the Articles of War, Numbers 8, 32, 73, 78, 82, 117, and 166, as contained in Act XXIX of 1861, and is based on the recommendation of the Government of India in the Military Department. The accompanying papers show the Articles as they stand in the Act, contrasted with the same Articles as proposed to be revised. The Bill takes the form of a repeal of the existing Articles, and the substitution for them, in Act XXIX of 1861, of new Articles of the same numbers. A shorter form might have been adopted, especially in respect of Article 78, but it would not have been so clear and practically useful to the Military Authorities.

In explaining the alterations, it will be convenient to follow the order of the Articles as mentioned in the accompanying papers, rather than the order in which they appear in the Bill.

Article 166.—Certain words in this Article, namely, the words, "or by which jurisdiction is given to Courts Martial over offences committed by persons amenable to the Articles of War, within certain limits beyond or around Cantonments," have effect in the Bombay Presidency alone, and appear to keep alive a Military jurisdiction under Regulation XXII of 1827 of the Bombay Code; whereas it was the undoubted intention of the Legislature, under Article 124 of Act XXIX of 1861, to provide that any offence committed by any Officer or Soldier within the jurisdiction of any Criminal Court in India, and triable by such Court, should be tried by such Court only. But these words in Article 166 appear to be inconsistent with that intention, and the Bombay Government desire the removal of all doubt by the omission of the words from Article 166, and the Military Authorities and Government of Madras, as well as the Commander-in-Chief and the Supreme Government, assent to the omission. The Honorable Mr. Erskine has also suggested, with the approval of the Government of Bombay, the repeal of parts of Regulation XXII of 1827, and the whole of Regulation II of 1829, of the Bombay Code.

Article 82.—Considerable doubt seems to have arisen as to the real meaning and intention of this Article; chiefly with respect to the powers of Officers in Command of Detachments. The subject was fully considered by the Military Authorities at the different Presidencies, and a suggested form of amendment, which was circulated by the Government of India, was assented to. The principal effect of the amendment is to define distinctly what Commanding Officer is meant in the 4th paragraph of Article 82 of Act XXIX of 1861, which now stands at the commencement of Clause 2 of the amended Article, and to give summary powers to an Officer Commanding a Detachment in a situation beyond the Sea, or out of the British Territories in India, or when on service in the Field; or in cases of emergency. In the 3rd paragraph a clerical error, which appeared in the original Draft Articles sent from the Military Department in 1860, in all other copies of the Bill, and in Act XXIX of 1861, is corrected by the introduction of the word "not" before "numerically" in the 3rd line.

Article 73.—This Article is only altered by the words "no sentence adjudging or involving forfeiture of additional pay," being substituted for the words, "no sentence including forfeiture of additional pay," and the words, "sanctioned by the Commander-in-Chief," being substituted for the words "confirmed by the Commander-in-Chief." The reasons for these changes appear in the letter from the Adjutant-General, Fort Saint George, dated 20th March 1862, to the Secretary to the Government of India.

Article 78.—The only alteration in this long Article is the substitution of the word "sentenced" for "subjected," in the last paragraph. The reasons for this change appear in the same letter of the Adjutant-General of Fort Saint George.

Article 3.—The words, "and the Commander-in-Chief shall have power to reduce any Non-Commissioned Officer to the ranks," are added, on the suggestion of Sir Hugh Rose, as conveyed in the letter of Colonel K. Young, Judge Advocate-General, dated 9th May 1862.

Article 117.—The words, "and it shall not be necessary to give any notice to such person, previously to his trial, that such evidence will be received," are here substituted, at His Excellency's suggestion, conveyed in the same letter, for the words, "but no such evidence shall, in any case, be received until the Court shall have ascertained that such person had, previously to his trial, received notice of the intention to produce such evidence on the same. And it is hereby directed that such notice shall be given to all persons previous to trial." The reason for this change is stated in Colonel Young's letter. The notice of trial is, in fact, a notice that evidence of this description will be given.

Article 32.—The only other alteration is in this Article, and consists merely in the substitution of the term "Religious feelings" for "Religious prejudices." This change is in accordance with Section 298 of the Penal Code.

CHARLES JUSTIN MACCARTHY.

An Ordinance to extend the provisions of the Ordinance No. 1 of 1860, and to make offences against the Indian Act No. XXI. of 1859 punishable in Ceylon.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to extend the provisions of the Ordinance No. 1 of 1860, entitled "An Ordinance to prevent the over-crowding of Vessels carrying Passengers in the Gulf of Manaar and Palk's Straits," and to make offences against the corresponding Indian Act, (to wit the Act No. 25 of 1859, entitled "An Act to prevent the over-crowding of Vessels carrying Native Passengers in the Bay of Bengal,") punishable in Ceylon.

IT IS THEREFORE ENACTED BY THE GOVERNOR OF CEYLON, with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council thereof, as follows:—

Penalty on Master of unlicensed vessels carrying too many Native passengers.

Penalty on Masters of unlicensed vessels not acting in accordance with the licence.

2. The Master or Tindal of any licensed vessel which shall bring to Ceylon on any such voyage mentioned in the preceding Section, or from any part of the Coast of the Gulf of Manaar, or Palk's Straits, to any Port or place in Ceylon, a greater number of passengers than is specified in the licence, or in which the accommodation therein required shall not be afforded, shall be guilty of an offence, and liable, on conviction, to a fine not exceeding Two Pounds for each passenger in excess of such number, or for each passenger not provided with accommodation agreeably to the license.

Certain licensed passenger vessels to carry provisions according to appointed scale.

3. The Master or Tindal of any vessel licensed in India to carry passengers from any Port under the Government of Fort St. George, or from Chittagong, or from any Port in the Province of Orissa, to Ceylon, and who shall have proceeded on such voyage and arrived in Ceylon without having been furnished with provisions and water according to the scale fixed by the Collector of Sea Customs of the Port of Departure, shall be guilty of an offence, and liable, on conviction, to a fine not exceeding Two Pounds for each passenger in excess of the number fully supplied with provisions and water according to such scale.

List of passengers to be brought by Master to Ceylon.

4. Whereas the said Master or Tindal of any licensed vessel is required by the said Act to sign and deliver, in duplicate, to the proper Officer or person at the Port of clearance, a list of his passengers, and one such list is returned to him countersigned, to be produced by him to the proper Officer at the Port to which the vessel is bound:—If the Master or Tindal shall not produce to the proper Officer of the Port in Ceylon at which such vessel arrives, such list of passengers properly signed and countersigned, with the names of the additional passengers who shall have engaged to proceed by such vessel after such list shall be so countersigned, added thereto, also properly signed by the Controlling Officer at the Port where such additional passengers are so engaged, he shall be guilty of an offence, and liable, on conviction, to a fine not exceeding Five Pounds.

Penalty for impeding entry or inspection.

5. The principal Officer in charge of the Customs at the Port at which any vessel shall arrive in Ceylon from any Port aforesaid, or any person authorized by him, shall be at liberty at all times to enter and inspect any passenger vessel so arriving, and the fittings, provisions, and stores therein: and whoever impedes such entry or inspection, or refuses to allow of the same, shall be guilty of an offence, and liable, on conviction, to a fine not exceeding Five Pounds.

Penalty on landing passenger at a place other than that at which he has contracted to land.

6. If any passenger in any vessel shall be landed at any Port or place in Ceylon other than that at which he may have contracted to be landed, unless with his previous consent, or unless such landing is made necessary by the perils of the sea, or other unavoidable accidents, the Master or Tindal shall be guilty of an offence, and liable, on conviction, to a fine not exceeding Twenty Pounds.

Offences punishable summarily before a Police Magistrate.

7. Offences against this Ordinance shall and may be tried by the Police Magistrate of the District in which the offender is found, notwithstanding that the offence is as to amount of fine, place, or other circumstances, not within the jurisdiction of that

Police Magistrate. If a person directed to pay any penalty be the Master or Tindal of a vessel, and the same is not paid at the time, and in the manner prescribed by the order of payment, the Magistrate may, in addition to the means prescribed by law for enforcing payment, direct, by warrant, the amount remaining unpaid, to be levied by seizure and sale of the said vessel, her tackle, furniture, and apparel.

The Public are hereby informed that, in providing the investment of the Behar and Benares Opium for the year 1861-62, the same precautions have been taken as those which have been observed during past years, to have the drug procured and set down in a pure state, to have only the prescribed quantity of leaves used in forming the cakes, and to have the due proportion of Opium put into each cake. An account of the weight of the drug when packed at Behar and Benares, and a Statement of the average weight of the chests indiscriminately taken for the purpose of comparison from the despatches on arrival at Calcutta, may be seen, on application, at the Office of the Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue, four chests of Behar and Benares Opium, viz., two of the season's provision under sale, and two of the provision's season will be also shewn to the purchasers in the Sale Rooms on the day of Sale, to enable them to judge of the state of preservation of the drug in the chests offered for sale.

17. Any further information respecting weight or quality of the Opium advertized for sale that may be desired by parties connected with the trade will, as heretofore, be furnished to them on application at the Office of the Board of Revenue; but, in accordance with established usage, under no circumstances will the Board entertain or recognize any claim to compensation for loss from any alleged deficiency of weight, abstraction of Opium, or adulteration of the drug which may be preferred on reference to chests after the sale and delivery of the Opium for shipment.

18. It is hereby further notified, that, under the 6th Article of the Convention between Great Britain and France, dated the 7th March 1815, quoted below, the Agents in India of the French Government, or persons duly appointed by them, are entitled to demand that, out of the quantities of Behar and Benares Opium declared as above for sale at the twelve sales of the year 1863, there shall be delivered to them, at the average of the particular Sale or Sales to which the Opium so applied for may belong, a quantity not exceeding in the aggregate 300 chests, and the Agents of the French Government must make requisitions specifying the quantity of Opium required by them at any particular sale within thirty days from the advertizement of such intended Sale; provided, however, that the Agents of the French Government may make such requisition for the whole quantity within thirty days from the publication of this Notification. If the Agents of the French Government shall not make the requisitions for Opium within the time abovementioned, the entire quantity of about 39,617 Chests of Behar and Benares as above estimated will be brought to sale in the usual manner; and if they shall make application for a quantity of Opium to be delivered to them out of the quantity advertised for sale at each or any of the twelve Sales abovementioned, but shall not pay for it within the prescribed period of payment, the Government of Bengal reserves to itself the right of disposing of the Opium which the French Authorities may so fail to pay for, either by increasing the quantity reserved at the Sale next ensuing the date of payment, or by selling it at a Sale to be held expressly for the purpose.

Article 6th.—"With regard to the trade in Opium it is agreed between the High Contracting Parties that at each of the periodical Sales of that article there shall be reserved for the French Government and delivered upon requisition duly made by the Agents of His Most Christian Majesty, or by the persons duly appointed by them, the number of chests so applied for, provided that such supply shall not exceed three hundred chests in each year, and the price for the same shall be determined by the average rate at which Opium shall have been sold at every such periodical Sale, it being understood that, if the quantity of Opium applied for at any one time shall not be taken on account of the French Government by the Agents of His Most Christian Majesty within the usual period of delivery, the quantity so applied for shall nevertheless be considered as so much in reduction of the three hundred chests hereinbefore-mentioned. The requisitions for Opium as aforesaid are to be addressed to the Governor General at Calcutta within thirty days after notice of the intended Sales shall have been published in the Government Gazette."
